PRESIDENT ASKS LIBERAL SUPPORT OF LIBERTY LOAN

Calls Nation to Rally for Victory in Proclamation Naming April 26 as Liberty Day.

ASKS PEOPLE TO ASSEMBLE

Wants Response to Loan to Show Determination to Fight for Peace of Justice.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TAKE JUMP

Now Total $1,089,734,900 for Entire Country—St. Louis District Retains Lead.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—On the heels of the announcement by the Treasury Department that sales of Liberty bonds "are not up to expectations," and that "there is a feeling of disappointment, particularly in the large cities," President Wilson today issued a proclamation calling for subscriptions to the War Loan, and setting aside Friday, April 26, as Liberty Day, when the President asks the people of the United States to "assemble in their respective communities and liberally pledge anew their financial support to sustain the nation's cause."

The President appeals to the people to hold patriotic demonstrations on Liberty Day, and grants a half-holiday to all Federal employes, to enable them to participate.

"Let the nation's response to the Third Liberty Loan," says the President, "express in unmistakable terms the determination of America to fight for peace, the permanent peace of justice."

The full text of the proclamation will be found elsewhere in this morning's TIMES.

Today's Treasury statement of Liberty Loan subscriptions shows that the billion dollar mark has been passed by nearly a hundred millions. The grand total last night was $1,089,734,900. That result has been achieved in fifteen days of campaigning; sixteen days remain. In that time there remains to be subscribed $1,910,265,100, and the daily average must be $119,329,800.

The subscriptions yesterday totaled $136,611,650, which is nearly up to the mark made Monday, and is well in excess of the average that must be maintained for the rest of the campaign. The outlook is therefore more hopeful.

Changes in Reserve Districts.

Interesting changes in percentages appear in the various Federal Reserve districts. The St. Louis district is still at the top of the list, with 71 per cent. of its quota subscribed. Dallas is back in second place, with 42 per cent., displacing Chicago, which is now third, with 40 per cent. Minneapolis is fourth, with 38 per cent. Kansas City falls from fourth to fifth place, with 37 per cent. The rest are as follows: Boston, 36; New York, 35; Philadelphia, 33; San Francisco, 33; Cleveland, 31; Richmond, 20; Atlanta, 7 per cent.

All districts show decided gains except Atlanta. The percentage for the whole country is 36, and there was a general percentage increase for the entire country over Tuesday's total of 5 per cent.

The reports of totals by districts follow:

| District. | Subscription. | P.C. |
|---|---|---|
| New York | $818,249,850 | 35 |
| Boston | 91,770,700 | 36 |
| Philadelphia | 82,874,000 | 33 |
| Cleveland | 95,950,000 | 31 |
| Richmond | 27,048,600 | 20 |
| Atlanta | 7,084,850 | 07 |
| Chicago | 180,040,800 | 40 |
| St. Louis | 92,800,950 | 71 |
| Minneapolis | 40,000,000 | 38 |
| Kansas City | 49,131,000 | 37 |
| Dallas | 33,959,900 | 42 |
| San Francisco | 70,844,350 | 33 |
| Total | $1,089,734,900 | |

The campaign in the St. Louis district continues encouraging. On April 17 the district increased its subscription by 11 per cent. and advanced its total sales to 71 per cent. of its $130,000,000 allotment.

That part of Indiana in the St. Louis district, which passed its quota yesterday, now leads in percentage figures, with sales aggregating $10,686,000. This gives it 112 per cent. Arkansas is second, with a percentage of 95 and sales aggregating $14,608,450. Even this fine mark does not tell all the Arkansas story. Returns from Little Rock are not all in, and that city alone, if all its ess were reported, would carry the state over.

Other Western Successes.

Missouri shows similar success. All of the larger cities are in either the St. Louis or the Kansas City district. There-

President in Liberty Day Proclamation Calls Nation to Defend Rights Menaced by Foe

WASHINGTON, April 18.—President Wilson's Liberty Day proclamation follows:

By the President of the United States of America:

A Proclamation

An enemy who has grossly abused the power of organized government and who seeks to dominate the world by the might of the sword challenges the rights of America and the liberty and life of all the free nations of the earth. Our brave sons are facing the fire of battle in defense of the honor and rights of America and the liberty of nations. To sustain them and to assist our gallant associates in the war, a generous and patriotic people have been called upon to subscribe to the Third Liberty Loan.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do appoint Friday, the 26th day of April, 1918, as Liberty Day. On the afternoon of that day I request the people of the United States to assemble in their respective communities and liberally pledge anew their financial support to sustain the nation's cause. Patriotic demonstrations should be held in every city, town, and hamlet throughout the land, under the general direction of the Secretary of the Treasury and the immediate direction of the Liberty Loan Committees organized by the Federal Reserve Banks. Let the nation's response to the Third Liberty Loan express in unmistakable terms the determination of America to fight for peace, the permanent peace of justice.

For the purpose of participating in Liberty Day celebrations, all employes of the Federal Government throughout the country whose services can be spared may be excused at 12 o'clock noon, Friday, the 26th of April.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia, this 18th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1918, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-second.

WOODROW WILSON.

Germans Are Definitely Checked, Says French General Who Led Rescue

Now It Is Nerves That Will Win Final Victory, Says General, Who Stemmed the Tide at Junction of Anglo-French Armies—He Pays Tribute to British Pluck.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 18.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was received today by the French General who checked the German offensive at the most critical phase of its development.

Calmly and logically he developed his conception of the situation, saying:

"The great German offensive has been checked definitely and an offensive that is checked is an offensive that has failed.

"What matter if the enemy gains ground here or there in operations of secondary importance. That cannot affect the issue; he has failed and he knows it. We stopped them in full career when they were flushed by victory to a supreme effort. We shall hold them now more easily.

"You cannot judge this war like other wars. This war has been one gigantic battle, lasting four years with opponents always in contact. The tide of success has swayed now this way and now that as it did in the briefer battles of the past at Jena, Austerlitz or Marengo. But if the issue has long been undecided, it is none the less certain. Sooner or later the weak point is revealed and defeat follows implacably.

Now or Never for the Foe.

"The Germans have been forced to attack us. They dare not wait because they know that America's millions are hurrying to help us. For them it is now or never.

"They are not yet at the end of their tether. Already they have engaged in this battle a great number of their divisions on the whole French front. After losses such as theirs, a division, hastily reorganized and thrown back into line, is more than 50 per cent. below the former efficiency. Perhaps the enemy can count on fresh divisions, capable of vigorous action. Wherever they hit, they will fail. Then it will be our turn.

"In this huge four years' battle, as in the past, victory goes to the side that is most master of its nerves. The will to win is greatest of all factors. Moral superiority can triumph even over material disadvantages. Now both are on our side.

"The spirit of our men is magnificent, and the German morale is failing daily. You can exalt an army's morale for a time by extravagant promises of success and by an elaborate program, such as the Germans followed, of encouragement by propaganda. But there is bound to be a corresponding reaction when these hopes are not realized.

"In this supreme moment of the war it is mastery of nerves that will turn the scale—nerves not only of armies, but of civil population. It is there that the rôle of the press is so highly important. It is your duty to strengthen the nerves of the people at home, not by wild and unfounded optimism, but by plain statement of the factors in our favor, so that they may present a firm and unbreakable front behind their leaders, and so that these leaders may gain strength therefrom to choose and follow coolly and fearlessly the road that runs straightest to victory."

Pays Tribute to the British.

This General was in reserve when the offensive broke. Two days later his headquarters was established close behind the firing line, and some divisions were aiding the British to withstand the onrush of enemy masses three or four times their number.

Napoleon once said that the test of a great General is success in retreat rather than victory. If that be true, this modest, unassuming little man is one of the great war's greatest commanders, for never were the conditions less favorable than when he took charge of the operations on March 23¼. Here are his own words:

The British had had bad luck. Taken unawares by a deluge of gas and high explosive shells and a crushing German superiority, they were in danger of losing cohesion. But I cannot pay too high a tribute to their courage and to the loyal devotion with which the British corps commanders executed my orders. The British artillery (my own was still en route) gave invaluable support. Despite their losses, the men of the British Fifth Army held out magnificently, side by side with the French, until the arrival of my successive divisions enabled them to be withdrawn.

"I have written letters to express my great appreciation of British co-operation."

In short, this General established order out of confusion, and renewed the connection that for a time had been broken in the face of furious assaults by an enemy whose morale was exalted to the highest pitch by victory beyond his hopes.

What the situation really was I may, perhaps, now be allowed to relate. In the first days cavalry divisions, but three battalions strong, were strung across ten-mile stretches of the front without any artillery, save a few cannon on armored cars, and had "resisted to the death" as their only order.

Had not the unquestioned air superiority of the Allies driven the German aeroplanes to cover, it is a question what would have happened. At one moment there was a weak point several miles wide in the allied line. That the measures taken by the French command are worthy to rank with Foch's daring manoeuvre at the Battle of the Marne has been corroborated beyond the shadow of a doubt by the testimony of prisoners from different units.

An officer gave a thrilling description of the way in which the French troops were flung forward in hot haste as they arrived.

"One division," he said, "was rushed

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, April 18.—The arrival of French troops on our northern front is the most important act that has happened during the last three or four days, and it was with deep satisfaction that we met these troops on the roads and knew that at last our poor, tired men would get support and help against their overwhelming odds.

Beside the khaki army of the British has grown very quickly an army in blue, the cornflower blue of the French poilus. They are splendid men, hard and solid fellows, who have been war-worn and weather-worn during these three and a half years past, and look the great fighting men who have gone many times into battle and know all that war can teach them in endurance and cunning and quick attack.

As they came marching up the roads to the front they were like a streaming river of blue—blue helmets and coats and blue carts and blue lorries, all blending into one tone through these April mists as they went winding over the countryside and through French market towns, where their own people waved to them, and then through the villages on the edge of the Flanders battlefields, where they waited to go into action under shell-broken walls or under hedges above which British shell fire traveled or in fields where they made their bivouacs, and fragrant steams arose to one's nostrils as cuistots lifted the lids of stewpans and hungry men gathered around after a long march.

I saw some of these French soldiers under fire yesterday, harassing fire which the enemy was flinging about the roads and fields, and they were very careless of its menace and went about their jobs calmly, with many jokes among themselves, like men who are accustomed to this sort of thing, and made no account of it.

Some of their officers were strolling about on a plot of ground which the enemy was plowing with odd shells, big and beastly things which came with a shrill singsong and burst enormously, and these French officers, very chic, very courteous to the English about them, smoked cigarettes and chatted together as they watched the battle not far away, and the flames of Bailleul and the wicked line of fire from the German barrages down the Flemish roads. Their nerves seemed unshaken by the noise, and they were not excited.

Yesterday morning some of their men attacked on a British flank and drove the enemy out of a village for a time, and helped to strengthen the lines of defense for the battle which is now going on.

It gives one a greater sense of security to know that these French forces are with us in the north, and the enemy will not be glad to see their blue among our khaki.

Thursday's Battle.

Several actions are in progress today, practically all the way from the Flanders front down from Wytschaete to the country in front of the forest of Nieppe and as far south as Givenchy.

The enemy is making desperate efforts with strong forces to capture Kemmel Hill, which his troops have been ordered to take at whatever sacrifice, and with this object he is trying to break away beyond Meteren, west of Bailleul, as well as striking down from the ridges north of it.

These attacks against our nothern front were preceded yesterday by a strong offensive against the Belgians between Kippe and Langemarck on a front of six kilometers, (four miles,) but after gaining an entry through the front-line trenches the Germans were counterattacked in the most gallant way by the Belgians, who made 600 prisoners, among them many officers from regiments representing at least four German divisions.

Foe Unhappy on Bad Terrain.

During the British withdrawal from the height of Passchendaele the enemy troops hesitated very much in following up, and it was many hours before their forward patrols drew anywhere near. Meanwhile British guns were waiting for them and swept this ground with fire, killing their outposts and breaking up their assemblies at Polygon Wood and other places on the old Flanders battlefields of last year's fighting. All that ground is still as horrible as when I described it in the early Autumn of last year, with its innumerable shell craters filled to the brim with water, and liquid bogs among

Irish Parties Unite to Fight the Draft; Man-power Bill Now Law With Royal Assent

LONDON, April 18.—Leaders of the Nationalists in Ireland, including the Redmondites, who are now led by John Dillon; the Sinn Feiners, O'Brienites, Laborites, and Clericals are united in their determination to resist conscription "by the most effective means at our disposal," according to the wording of a resolution passed at a meeting of Bishops at Maynooth today.

Their action coincides with the conclusion of the final stages of the man-power bill here, the royal assent being given to the measure today.

For the first time in many years the Nationalists met the Dublin Sinn Feiners and their older enemies, William O'Brien and Timothy Healy, while labor representatives, who had not been very friendly to the Nationalists in recent years, were also present at a conference in Dublin, held under the Chairmanship of the Lord Mayor. The Sinn Feiners were loudly cheered when they arrived at the Mansion House.

The outcome of the conference was that a committee composed of John Dillon, Edward De Valera, Timothy Healy, and a labor representative, with the Lord Mayor of London, was appointed to attend the Bishops' meeting at Maynooth, where the resolution was passed.

The meeting also directed that public meetings should be held in the parish on Sunday, at which a pledge should be administered in the words of the resolution. Masses of intercession will also be held in every Catholic Church.

In the meantime, the authorities, although they do not expect that any conscripts will be called until the home rule bill is on the statute books, are taking steps to deal with the situation, which, to say the least, is threatening.

Field Marshal Lord French, Commander in Chief of the forces in the United Kingdom, arrived in Dublin yesterday with his staff.

The Nationalists, or at least a majority of them, are understood to have decided to abstain from attendance in the House of Commons during the crisis, thus adopting the attitude of the Sinn Feiners who were elected to Parliament but have never attended.

Dutch Ask Double Pledge for Grain Ships' Safety

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 18.—Any false impression which might have been created by Minister Loudon's original statement that the Dutch Government required a guarantee that ships would not be requisitioned if sent to bring grain has now been interpreted to mean that the only guarantee required was the word of the allied Governments, which was quite sufficient.

In addition, Minister Loudon demands a guarantee that the ships will not be torpedoed.

FRENCH ADVANCE ON AVRE

500 PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

Attack Made on a 2½-Mile Front at Crucial Point Southeast of Amiens.

CASTEL OUTSKIRTS GAINED

Petain's Troops Also Reach the Slopes of Hills Dominating the River Valley.

PARIS, April 18.—Attacking at the tip of the Somme salient southeast of Amiens, French troops today have made progress on both banks of the Avre River south of Hangard.

The assault was delivered on a front of two and one-half miles between Thennes (on the east side of the Avre) and Mailly-Raineval, (on the west side and southwest of Moreuil.) Near the former town they have taken most of the Senecat Wood and reached the outskirts of Castel. To the southward they have pushed to the slopes of the heights overlooking the river.

The day report recorded the breaking up by artillery fire of a strong German detachment which was moving to attack the French line near Corbeny, on the Aisne front.

The night bulletin reads as follows:

We have attacked various enemy positions on the Avre on a front of four kilometers between Thennes and Mailly-Raineval.

East of the Avre we have made progress and west of it we have taken the greater part of the Senecat Wood and carried our line to the outskirts of Castel. Further south we reached the slopes west of the heights dominating the Avre.

The number of prisoners taken by us exceeds up to the present 500, of whom fifteen are officers. We captured several machine guns.

It is confirmed that an enemy raid last night east of Caurières Wood was deadly for our assailants. We found about forty German bodies on the ground. We took twenty prisoners, including one officer.

The day statement reads:

In the region of Corbeny the French caught under their fire and dispersed a strong German detachment which attempted to approach the French lines after artillery preparation.

The Germans undertook several raids in the Champagne and on the right bank of the Meuse, especially to the east of Caurières Wood and near Damloup. All the enemy's efforts were repulsed, and prisoners remained in our hands.

Northwest of Roize, in Lorraine, we succeeded in several incursions into the German lines, and took a certain number of prisoners.

BERLIN, April 18, (via London.)—Repulse of French attacks north of Moreuil is reported in the night report from General Headquarters, which also says that the situation on the Lys front is "unchanged."

The day report told of the renewal of gun duels on both sides of the Somme and in the Moreuil-Montdidier sector. It also chronicled the taking of 2,500 prisoners on the Lys battlefield in the last few days and of some further gain of ground north of the river.

On the Ypres front, it is admitted,

EYSDEN, Holland, April 18.—This is written from the Dutch frontier, where pass most of the Belgan women, children, and old persons who are allowed by German officials to join relatives. The men refugees I have talked to said that people in the country live on bran soup and three-quarters of a pound of bread per day, which was made from flour mixed with sawdust from plane trees. They also have hard yellow turnips upon which cattle were fed before the war, and some potatoes.

They also stated that there was no tobacco in Belgium for the workmen, who were obliged to smoke dried leaves from trees and potato plants, dried and broken up. Many men in Belgium and Germany had given up smoking. A small packet of cigarettes costs 2½ marks and a packet of papers costs 1½ mark.

The Belgian people were keeping up their spirits, buoyed up with the hope that now America had come in the Allies were sure to win in the end. Rumors were common in Brussels and all over Belgium that the war could not last through the Summer, the men said.

Hurrying Wounded to Germany.

There are 500 Belgium workmen here who are employed in a factory on a direct line from the French front through Belgium to Aachen, where the German wounded are conveyed. Red Cross trains pass at a point about half way between Vise, which is three and a half miles distant, and the station at Eysden. On a clear day officials of the Holland Railway can walk a short distance along the tracks which formerly led into Belgium and see the trains pass.

One of them told me today that on March 23 and 24 he saw over eighty Red Cross trains come from Vise each day. The majority of them pass this point in the darkness, and the rumbling of the carriages can be heard all night.

Workmen who have been along the track repairing the lines said that at Vise and places such as St. Martin, where the German trains stopped for some time, there were small pools of blood under the cars.

The frontier at this point is very crooked and difficult to distinguish. An electric wire fence is at the rear of the half destroyed village of Mouland, which is in Belgium. There is also the barrier of a high wall, where German and Dutch soldiers are on guard, about 100 yards apart. Between them is a small No Man's Land, which was found necessary, as there have been several fights when Dutch and German soldiers met in the middle of the road.

I had been warned by the Consul at Maestricht to be careful on account of the zigzag frontier line, because it was difficult at times to know whether one was in Belgium or Holland. The boche's sentries carefully hide beyond trees to be on hand to show the unwary strangers the way if they get lost.

As the Brigadier of the Dutch gendarmerie refused to give me a permit this morning to walk along the frontier, I had to find my way by night. Once, in a country lane near the Meuse, I should have walked back into Belgium if I had not seen a small Dutch flag on a pole in the field and stopped just in time. A few feet away to the right of the roadway stood a boche, leaning against a tree with his rifle lying across his left arm, quietly watching my proceedings. I was told afterward that he would have let me walk in and then barred my return into Holland, and

HAIG BEATS OFF ASSAULTS

LOSES HEAVILY IN REPULSES

Then Renews His Efforts in the Bailleul-Kemmel Region and Meets Another Check.

GUNFIRE IS STILL FURIOUS

Artillery Both North and South of the Somme Is Also Becoming Active.

LONDON, April 18.—Switching their main attack from the northern flank on the Lys salient to the southern, the Germans delivered this morning a series of terrific assaults upon the allied front from Givenchy (just west of La Bassée) eleven miles northwest to the neighborhood of St. Venant, (on the Lys River west of Merville.)

Heavy shelling preceded the drive in force, but the Germans were repulsed at every point, according to Field Marshal Haig's report tonight.

He states, however, that the fighting near Givenchy, which was particularly violent from the start, is still going on, while the German guns are active all along this front.

Later in the day the German troops renewed their attacks on the northern flank of the salient, especially in the vicinity of Kemmel, (north of Wulverghem,) but suffered repulses there.

The day bulletin of the War Office stated that the British front in this area remained unchanged during last night. Local attacks in the region of Merris (southeast of Bailleul) were beaten off.

A Day of Checks for Germans.

Field Marshal Haig's report tonight reads as follows:

There has been severe fighting again today on the greater part of the Lys battlefront.

From La Bassée Canal at Givenchy to the Lys River east of St. Venant, a bombardment was reported this morning, followed by strong hostile attacks, all of which have been repulsed.

The losses inflicted on the attacking German infantry by our fire are again reported to have been extremely heavy, and over 200 prisoners have been taken.

The struggle has been particularly fierce in the neighborhood of Givenchy, where the enemy made determined efforts without success to retrieve his previous failures. The fighting in this locality has not yet ceased, and the activity of the enemy's artillery is continuing on the whole of this front.

Later in the day further attacks, accompanied by heavy shelling, developed against our positions south of Kemmel and were repulsed.

Beyond considerable artillery activity in different sectors, particularly south and north of the Somme, there is nothing of especial interest to report from the British front.

Violent Gunfire by the Enemy.

The day report of the War Office says:

There has been no change on the British front during the night.

The hostile artillery has shown great activity on the southern part of the Lys battlefront from Givenchy to east of Robecq. A heavy bombardment of our positions between Locon and Robecq was still continuing at dawn.

Local attacks were repulsed by our troops yesterday evening in the Merris sector.

More detailed accounts of the fighting of yesterday on the Forest of Nieppe-Wytschaete front establish the severity of the enemy's losses. Southeast of Kemmel Hill the German infantry attacked in three waves, and at one point pressed back our line slightly. In this locality the situation was restored by a counterattack, and shortly after midday the attack had been repulsed at all points. In the Bailleul sector the enemy attacked three times before midday, and in each case suffered a complete repulse.

Our line yesterday evening was reported intact on the whole front.

The official communication, dealing with aviation, issued this evening says:

During Wednesday morning there was a slight improvement in the weather, but before midday rain and mist again set in. Our airplanes were active throughout the day on the Meteren-Wytschaete front, bombing the enemy troops and harassing them with machine gun fire. More than 500 bombs were dropped from very low heights.

There were a few fights early in the day, in the course of which two hostile machines were downed and one was driven down out of control. Four of our machines are missing.

Says French Are "Heavily Engaged."

OTTAWA, April 18.—The French are heavily in action on the northern battle area, says a Reuter dispatch from London today.

Another Reuter dispatch sent from British Headquarters in France, says:

"Apparently the tanks, armored cars, and cavalry have not been in action on either side. We are now down to a sheer contest of man power, a swaying, ceaseless attack and repulse, with the vital issue carried in the anxious problem of whether our powers of endurance can wear down the repeated bull rushes of vastly superior numbers before a decision is reached.

"At the moment the prospect assuredly justifies confidence in this respect. The appearance of French battalions and batteries of 'seventy-fives' in the ranks of the army which the Germans are counting on cutting off from the Allies cannot be pleasing to the enemy. The Germans seem to be still finding difficulty in getting forward their batteries and maintaining ammunition supplies to all parts of the advance, although they have heavy concentrations in other parts.

"The enemy is apparently drawing on fresh reserves. In the course of the great battle more than thirty divisions have so far appeared and it is certain that the German command is exploiting every success by the most prodigal expenditure of man power and not counting the cost."

Used 137,000 Men in Givenchy Drive.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18, 2 P. M., (Associated Press.)—Ten divisions [about 137,000 men] of German troops were driving today furiously against the British defenses between Givenchy-lez-La Bassée and St. Venant in an attempt to effect a crossing of La Bassée Canal. The British were holding well and inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy, according to the latest report.

The British were facing at least 75,000 riflemen, who were supported by great numbers of guns and 50,000 to 60,000 other troops, who go to make up the complements for the infantry.

All the areas back of this section were sprinkled with gas shells throughout last night. At 6 o'clock in the morning the bombardment was nearly of drumfire intensity between Locon and Robecq.

The attack between Givenchy and St. Venant began at 9 o'clock, after the bombardment by the enemy artillery had lasted five hours. Hard fighting developed immediately along the line. It was especially intense about Givenchy and in the Robecq-Locon sector.

The defending forces at Givenchy sustained numerous desperate attacks and held their ground during the early hours of the battle.

At Hinges Hill, east of Locon, where the German line bulged out close to the canal, the enemy made a particularly determined effort to get across that waterway.

Twice the German infantry attacked here, each time coming forward in four waves. In one of these drives they succeeded in getting some bridges across the canal, but the only Germans who crossed were those who ran over and surrendered.

The British artillery and machine guns poured a deluge of steel about the frail bridges, and the slaughter of the opposing troops was heavy. One party of 200 Germans advanced at one time with hands over their heads to surrender. For some reason they changed their minds abruptly and fled. They were shot to pieces as they ran.

There was also hard fighting about Pacaut Wood near the canal, and between Robecq and St. Venant, where the Germans hoped to improve their positions to facilitate operations to the north and south. The attacks in this region were repulsed completely. A concentration of enemy infantry in Caloone, west of St. Venant, was caught in the British artillery barrage and badly cut up.

British troops near Wytschaete this morning were continuing their all-night battle with the Germans. A German attack yesterday resulted in pushing a salient out northwest of the place, but a subsequent British counterattack again drew the British line close about the town, and at one time a small body of British infantry penetrated to the southeastern section.

The British lost a very small piece of territory between Bailleul and Dranoutre yesterday, but the German attack here must be recorded as a failure.

Further westward hard fighting continued about Meteren, and this place today was apparently No Man's Land. A heavy German attack, east of Meteren, was smashed.

Just south of this place, near Merris, the British by a counterstroke succeeded in pushing their lines forward towards the western outskirts of the village.

Can Advance Little at Ypres.

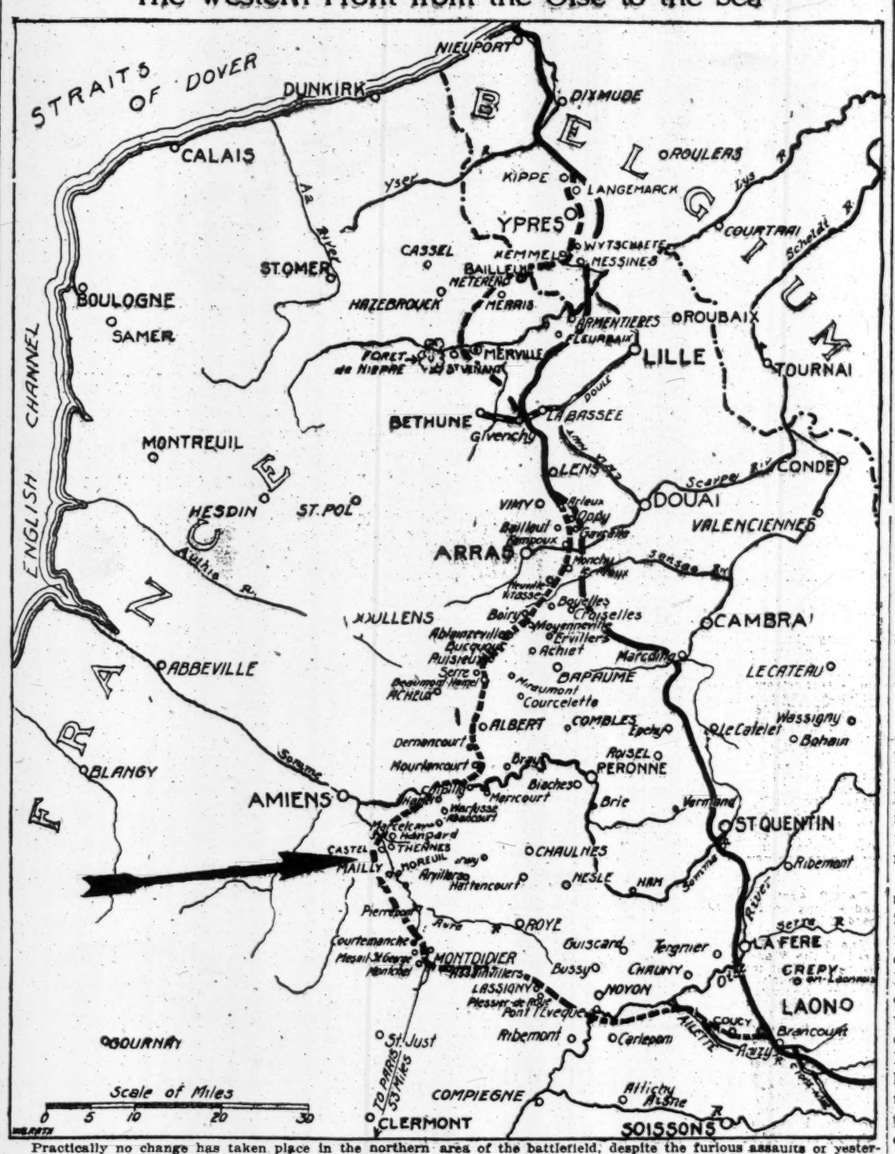
The Germans are continuing to push [illegible] cautiously into the positions the British have evacuated east of Ypres, and the defending artillery has been playing havoc with the advancing troops. Twice the enemy massed to come into the Polygon Wood, and on each occasion they were smashed by artillery fire. The Germans did not actually get under way for the occupation of the Passchendaele defenses for many hours after the withdrawal was completed. The country from which the British pulled back is an awful mud hole, and it will take the enemy a long time to man the new positions and get his artillery forward through the muck.

Mont Des Cats, with its famous monastery, lying east of Cassiel, has been shelled by the Germans. Several shells have found a mark in the defenseless home of Trappist monks.

The Western Front from the Oise to the Sea



Practically no change has taken place in the northern area of the battlefield, despite the furious assaults or yesterday by the German forces, first on the front of Givenchy-St. Venant, southwest of Armentières, and then on the Bailleul-Kemmel front, where they had previously made impressive gains for several days.

The French have begun a new assault on their own account in the Hangard region, northwest of Montdidier, at the point indicated by the arrow.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

The fighting of the past two days has emphasized the relative unimportance of the Messines-Wytschaete ridge in the great battle which is still going on in Flanders. Since the taking of this position by the Germans the battle line, except for a voluntary withdrawal of the British lines in the northern part of the Passchendaele ridge, which withdrawal was decided upon last Sunday before the Messines ridge was taken, the British lines have remained stationary. The Germans have made most persistent attempts to extend their gains from Wytschaete to the north and northwest, but have been utterly unable to make any impression on the British front. The stumbling block in each case has been the chain of hills running westward from Wytschaete, the highest point of which is Mont Kemmel. Here the German attacks have been broken up as soon as they get under way. Yesterday morning and on Wednesday the German efforts in this direction were almost continuous. With this height in their possession the value of Ypres becomes nil, the possibility of holding it shrinks to nothing. Herein lies the reason for the German persistency.

In addition to this the Germans are finding their position in the salient which they have created at such heavy cost west of Armentières very uncomfortable. They have not enough ground in which to manoeuvre nor in which they can effectively make disposition of their forces. In addition to this the entire salient is swept with artillery fire from one end to the other, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to maintain themselves in this position and keep up the necessary flow of materials. All roads are torn up, the railroads completely destroyed. The matter of transport is assuming very serious proportions. This salient is less than twenty miles across from the foot of Mont Kemel to Givenchy. It is about seven miles deep. There is not a section of it that cannot be reached by heavy artillery either from Mont Kemmel or the heights near Bethune. The Germans then are under the impelling necessity of extending their lines in one direction or the other, or of being forced to abandon the attack. Nor does it appear that they have so very long in which to make a decision. They are losing men very rapidly and are acomplishing nothing to show for it. Something must be done to relieve the situation.

There are several alternatives, none of which, however, appears to hold out promising prospects of immediate solution of the problem. If Ypres can be taken and the flat country from the northern slopes of Mont Kemmel to the sea occupied, this height, surrounded on three sides, will have to be given up. In this case the northern side of the salient will be straightened out and the limitations on space which the Germans are now laboring under will have been removed. Another alternative is to break through this northern side from the south. This the Germans have tried to do and have been forced to give up as a failure. Another possibility is to drive the wedge in deeper, flank the heights, and cut the British communications by taking the town of Hazebrouck. This also has been tried and has failed. Hazebrouck is guarded by the forests of Nieppe on the southeast and by the heights of Mont Kemmel and its extensions on the northeast. There is only the narrow lane running directly east along the line of the Hazebrouck-Armentières railroad through which the approach can be made. This has also been attempted in several attacks against Merris, and although the town is in German hands the battle line runs close by the village if indeed it does not pass through it.

There remains one other possibility—an attack southwest toward Bethune between Givenchy and Merville. This ground is flat and generally open. It is backed up, however, by the high ground running northwest from Bethune, on the edge of which the latter town is situated. Moreover, troops advancing against this line are enfiladed by the positions in and about Nieppe Wood within easy range of light artillery. Nevertheless this section of the line, which has for some days been free from any attack, offers the best possibility for a German success. Having tried all of the other alternatives with no very great success, although most of the efforts have been locally advantageous, the Germans, it appears, are about ready to make a final effort here. The lines here have been under heavy artillery bombardment for some hours, the fire being on a scale which has previously presaged an infantry attack.

The question of numbers, the Allies' side of which is at present so puzzling, is fairly clear with respect to the Germans, and indicates that the Germans cannot continue much longer at the present rate of wastage. Already over five-eighths of the German divisions have been in the fighting. Of these one-third have been sent back twice after having to be sent back to be again filled up and recruited after heavy losses. While the Germans are by no means at the end of their rope, yet they are nevertheless approaching the point where they must break the Allies or break themselves. This has been the result of a single month's fighting. They cannot stand another such month.

ANXIOUS FOR FOCH'S STROKE.

London Knows His Reserve Army Has Not Been Used Yet.

OTTAWA, April 18.—A Reuter dispatch from London today says that "there is still anxiety as to when General Foch will make the decisive stroke," now that the British have stood four weeks of hammering by the immense German reserves, estimated at 420,000 men, in a fashion which led the French writers to describe the British Armies as the "wing of sacrifice." The dispatch adds:

"Experts do not indorse the opinion advanced in some quarters that the advance, critical in the northern theatre, has been definitely checked. It is agreed that the Germans have not obtained the decisive result aimed at, thanks to the extreme stubbornness of the British resistance.

"The battle, in fact, appears to have been following the course of the great series of German thrusts of October, 1914, which ended in Ypres and failure for the enemy.

"There was then no allied reserve. That reserve now exists and has not yet been used. There will probably be continuous fluctuations in the northern area for some time to come, but the salient fact of the fighting is the staying power of the British soldiers."

CANADIANS IN THE FIGHT.

One Division Probably Engaged—Artillery Busy at Many Points.

OTTAWA, April 18.—Advices from the front indicate that at least one Canadian division (believed to be the First) is now participating in the conflict on the Lys.

Up to the present Dominion troops have not had an extensive share in the fighting of the last three weeks. In their Picardy offensive the Germans struck south of the Canadian lines, and only the Dominion cavalry brigade and some Canadian armored cars took part in the battle that followed. Their losses, it is understood, did not exceed 2,000 in killed, wounded, and missing.

In the present drive the Germans attacked north of the terrain held by the Canadians, and with the exception of the division now reported in action General Currie's men have experienced nothing more than the usual artillery fighting.

Official expectations are, however, that before many days have elapsed the entire Canadian force will be brought into action once more.

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, April 18, (Canadian Press, Ltd.)—All night long Canadian guns, heavy and light, have been active in shelling hostile batteries, routes, railways, and dumps, while time after time hostile infantry positions, assembly areas, and communications have been swept with a harassing fire. Indeed, artillery activity recently has been the main feature on the Canadian front. There have been constant duels between the Canadian and enemy batteries. A considerable amount of gas has been used.

SIGNS OF DISORDER IN THE GERMAN RANKS

Troops Sent Up Without Plans Are Led by Junior Officers, Who Mess Up Things.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18, (Associated Press.)—The Germans have been bringing up fresh divisions to the Bailleul sector, but the most promising sign is that they are beginning to use a second time the troops which had such hard fighting in the early days of the offensive. For the last few days the high command appears to have departed from its usual careful methods.

In order to save time and to push forward quickly before the Allies are able to get up more reinforcements, the enemy seems to have been sending troops into the attack without any more specific plans than that they must get to a certain general objective.

Junior officers have been directing much of the fighting and going ahead on their own initiative. The result of this has been apparent, for the enemy undoubtedly has been messing affairs at numerous points.

The noticeable feature of the talk of German prisoners and the captured documents and letters is the continual reference to the heavy casualties ever since the Germans began the offensive. They certainly were excessive in the first days of the big push, and now the northern battlefields are covered with the bodies of enemy dead.

BELGIANS BEAT OFF 4 GERMAN DIVISIONS

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18, (Associated Press.)—An effort made by the Fourth German Army, which holds the enemy's right flank to the sea, to drive in the front of the Allies from the coast was extended yesterday to the Yser region, held by the Belgians. At half-past 8 o'clock in the morning after an all-night bombardment, the Germans attacked on a front of four miles between Langemarck and Kippe.

The Germans gained a footing in the Belgian advance position, but were thrown out after a fight, lasting nearly all day. The Belgians took 600 prisoners, including many officers belonging to seven different regiments.

OTTAWA, April 18.—A Reuter dispatch from British headquarters in France says:

"The German attack (yesterday) against the Belgian positions nearer the coast is especially noteworthy. In this stage of the campaign the enemy employed four divisions—one of marine infantry, one Bavarian and two Prussian.

"An intense night-long bombardment was probably counted upon to forestall all resistance, but the Germans speedily found that they were mistaken, for the Belgians put up a fight ranking as one of the epics of their splendid war story, finally driving back the Germans in confusion. This brilliant victory was on a stretch of six kilometers between Langemarck and Kippe."

Philip Gibbs's Story of the Great Battle

its dead trees and the wreckage of battle, so it is not good for an advance of troops, and the enemy is wretched there.

Prisoners taken here and further south are disconsolate and show no enthusiasm for a continuance of this offensive. They have been told by their officers that they are going to break through to Calais and the Channel ports, but they do not believe they will ever get there, and admit that their losses have been ghastly.

Meanwhile an army of a different color is being revealed to them alongside that of Britain, and they know that on this road to Calais they must not only break through the British divisions against whom they have been fighting themselves out, but also through French troops who are now coming to the aid of their allies, after the latter have been sustaining such terrific smashes for nearly two weeks from masses of German divisons passing through each other in endless sequence in order to destroy the armies opposing them before these could get relief.

The attack this morning from Robecq, below St. Venant, down to Givenchy is a serious effort to gain La Bassée Canal and form a strong defensive flank for the enemy while he proceeds with his battles further north and also to get more elbow room from the salient in which he is narrowly wedged below Merville.

For this purpose he brought up several more divisions, including the 239th, which was in the Somme fighting of March, but not heavily engaged. This one attacked the British at Robecq, and up to the time of my last knowledge was repulsed with heavy losses. It was at a place called La Bacquerolles Farm, near Robecq, where after heavy shelling last night the enemy rushed one of the outposts at 10 o'clock. In order to facilitate the attack this morning of German divisions north and south at 4 o'clock the German guns began a heavy bombardment of the British lines as far down as Givenchy and maintained it for five hours, using large numbers of gas shells, on account of the east wind, which was in their favor.

Canal Bridges Shelled.

His guns shelled the bridges across the canal in the hope of preventing the British supports going up. Then his troops came forward in waves on a wide front. They were in immense numbers, as usual, with many mixed battalions. One of the British units today took prisoners from ten different regiments. There were some ten German divisions facing four British ones north of Bethune, and all along the line the troops were much outnumbered; nevertheless, the enemy was repulsed at all but a few points of attack and beaten back bloodily.

The fiercest fighting began opposite Givenchy and Festubert, east of Bethune, and for several hours this morning, which is the latest I know, the enemy's efforts had failed against the wonderful resistance of the British troops. Two hundred prisoners were captured further north of this, of different regiments, as I have said, and 109 men of the 468th Infantry Regiment were brought in from the ground about La Bacquerolles, where many of their dead are lying.

We seem to have lost one advanced post, but the 17th German Division, who tried to storm the high ground of Givenchy itself, was raked by the British fire. It was in that place that the Lancashires of the 55th Division made such great and gallant defenses, and the troops there now are fighting just as hard.

The result of all this battle today cannot yet be told with any certainty, because it is not yet over, but what is certain is that the enemy has again suffered heavy losses, not only from machine gun and rifle fire, but from shell fire of field guns and heavies, which have caught his men in their assembly places and moving along the roads with terribly destructive effect.

As prisoners describe it, one regiment of the 42d German Division has lost over 50 per cent. of its strength, and other losses are on a similar scale. These ghastly casualties have been piling up along this line between Merville and Bethune since the 13th of this month, when the Germans made a series of small attacks as a prelude to today's battle, owing, it seems, to battalion officers taking the initiative without orders from the High Command, in order to push forward and break the British lines if they could find weakness there.

Faced Fire During Five Hours.

On the 13th and 14th some of the South Country troops were attacked by strong forces repeatedly, and on the second day for five hours at a stretch the enemy endeavored to come across from houses and inclosures west of Merville toward St. Venant. For those five hours the South Country lads fired with rifles, Lewis guns, and machine guns into solid bodies of Germans, and their field guns tore gaps in the enemy's formations and broke up their assemblies before the attacks could proceed. One advance in five waves was mown down before it could make any progress, and others were dealt with in the same way.

While prisoners say that the British fire which swept their ranks was terrifying and most destructive, the South Country and Scottish troops along this and other sectors of the battlefront firing their rifles as never before, the enemy found it difficult to get ammunition up, and one German prisoner says that three guns out of his battery were destroyed by direct hits.

On April 15 some British airplanes attacked troops assembling for an advance on the forest of Lamotte and scattered them with machine-gun fire, while other machine guns afterward pounded them and broke up an attack before it could start. This destructive fire has been continuous for a week and beyond all doubt the German troops engaged on this Merville front have been frightfully punished.

The situation up north today has not changed much since I described it yesterday. Meteren seems to be in No Man's Land, and it is doubtful how the line exactly runs. In the Wytschaete sector the enemy has been making persistent efforts to break through to Kemmel Hill.

On the whole, the British line of battle is more secure than it has been for several days past, and, with the French co-operating, we may be justified in believing that the enemy may, at any rate, be held in his present positions, though he may yet concentrate further masses of men and guns on this northern sector.

Even the German reserves are not inexhaustible, and for whatever the enemy gains he is paying the price in blood. His mortality is so high that the path of his advance is one long graveyard, and his hopes must be dying with his lost men.

That, at least, is the belief of the British troops, and they mean to make it so, however great their own sacrifice.

REPULSED FRENCH, GERMANS REPORT

the German forward movement has been checked by a counterthrust south of Blankaert Lake [five and one-half miles northwest of Langemarck].

The evening report from Headquarters is as follows:

In Flanders, on the Lys battlefield, the situation is unchanged.

Northwest of Moreuil strong French attacks broke down with sanguinary losses.

The day report reads:

Yesterday the enemy left to us a large part of the Flemish territory which had been gained by him after months of struggle at the price of huge sacrifices.

General Sixt von Arnim's army took from the enemy, retreating step by step, Poelcapelle, Langemarck, and Zonnebeke, and, following him up closely, drove him back behind Steenbrook.

South of Blankaert Lake an enemy counterthrust checked our forward movement.

North of the Lys, under protection of a vigorous fire, we gained ground and cleared some machine gun nests.

During the fighting of the last few days over 2,500 prisoners, some guns, and numerous machine guns have been brought in.

On the other battlefronts on both sides of the Somme the firing duel is temporarily reviving. It was resumed with greater intensity near Moreuil and Montdidier.

On the eastern bank of the Meuse minor undertakings near Ornes and Watronville were completely successful, and some prisoners were brought in.

To the north of Flirey, between the Meuse and the Moselle, a strong French thrust failed, with sanguinary losses.

Second Mutiny Reported at Belgian Camp and Several Men Are Shot.

AMSTERDAM, April 18.—A dispatch from Eindhoven says that another mutiny broke out at Beverloo Camp, in the Province of Limbourg, Belgium, among the German troops when ordered to the British front in France.

Prisoners' Letters and Diaries Show That Prompt Victory Was Promised Them.

HIGH LOSS OF OFFICERS

Proof That Kaiser's Forces Will No Longer Be Driven, but Must Be Led Into Battle.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 18.—One of the most interesting features of the army is the Intelligence Department, especially that section that collects and connotes information from prisoners. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today visited such a bureau at the headquarters of the French Army now in the line. The nature of the work and its results were explained by a young Captain, a descendant of the author of "The Three Musketeers," whose nerve and enthusiasm are worthy of the famous Gascon hero of that romance.

Like every one in the same army with whom I spoke, his confidence is unlimited. After checking the enemy's advance with a comparative handful of unsupported artillery one is justified in supposing that on equal terms—and the terms are equal now that the Germans have lost the advantage of the first concentration for an offensive—victory is certain. But the Captain had chapter and verse to back up his confidence. His commanding General had just said, "Victory goes to the side that is most master of its nerves," and the Captain's work told him more than any other man in the army the extent to which the German nerves are weakening. All his information—and for that matter all other reliable data that reaches the French authorities—goes to prove that the German leaders won popular support for this battle and exalted the morale of the soldiers to the highest pitch by a definite promise that this was not only the decisive but actually the last battle of the war.

"In April we were to enter Paris," say the prisoners, "and peace would be signed immediately."

The Captain showed me documentary evidence of the elaborate propaganda that had been carried on throughout the German Army in preparation for the offensive. Without entering into details, it can be said that there was moral training no less thorough than the physical and material preparations. The first prisoners captured were as certain of victory as in the days of the triumphant march on Paris that preceded the Marne.

Each night an official broadsheet was read or distributed containing not only glowing communiques but encouraging news items from every quarter. Thus in a copy I saw there was a lurid account of the panic of Parisians under the first "thunderbolt hammer blows of the German supercannon."

Then, as the offensive was checked, there came a change. The prisoners betrayed doubt. There were ominous questions in their diaries and a note of anxiety in the letters they had written, but to their own dismay were forbidden to send home. Doubt gave way to depression. The losses were terrible and the forward movement ended.

"You damned French always seem to fall upon your feet," said one prisoner bitterly.

On the French front at least it can be safely stated that the reaction from the exaltation of the opening days of the battle is in full progress. Even against the British where the enemy has gained ground lately the losses have been such that the boys of the class of 1919—that means 18 years old—are already being used freely.

Still more significant is the fact that the French now capture a far greater proportion of officers than ever before, and that all the evidence agrees that the officers' losses is unprecedentedly high. This means that the German troops will no longer be driven forward into battle. They must have an officer to lead them or they are useless. Even on minor patrols this applies. Never a night passes but that the French capture one or two officer prisoners.

Another interesting source of news is the home letters found on the prisoners. The Captain produced one of recent date from a once prosperous town of Posen in which the wife of a superior army officer complained mournfully to her son that the family was now forced to take such scanty meals as were afforded by the municipal cook wagons, "because it is impossible to get food for home cooking," and added that even then his young sister was wasting away.

"She's in bed as I write, too ill to get up because of lack of food," the letter said.

It is the Captain's firm conviction that Germany was literally forced to undertake an offensive through internal conditions. He concluded:

"Furthermore we have positive information that however the German leaders may affect to minimize America's military contribution to the Allies they know and the mass of the German people knows that a prolongation of the war makes defeat inevitable. No less than other factors the dread of America's millions on the French front is responsible for the present desperate offensive. The Germans have staked all on a last throw and have lost. They do not all realize it yet, but soon the truth will be evident to the army and civil population alike. Then perhaps something will happen."

CAPELLE ASSERTS U-BOAT IS WINNING

Tells Reichstag Three to Six Times as Many Ships Are Sunk as Are Built.

AMERICAN DESTROYERS FAIL

Much Advertised Assistance Has Not Been Effective, Says the Admiral.

CONVOYS ALSO A FAILURE

He Declares That Several Vessels in a Group Are Often Sunk—U-Boat Losses Exaggerated.

AMSTERDAM, April 18.—Vice Admiral von Capelle, German Minister of the Navy, discussing submarine warfare before the Main Committee of the Reichstag, declared that the new U-boat construction exceeded the losses and that the effectiveness of the submarines had increased. He quoted figures to prove his contention that the U-boat sinkings were thrice or sixfold the tonnage of the new British construction.

The Minister declared that the American destroyers, "which had been so much talked about," had failed in their object, and he is quoted by the semi-official Wolff Bureau of Berlin as saying with reference to shipbuilding:

"For the carrying out of America's giant paper program America must first lay down the shipyards. After prodigious promises, America in 1917 built 750,000 gross register tons of seagoing ships. The large mercantile fleet placed on order America does not want for the war, but for the post-bellum period when, the shipping program having been in the meantime carried out, America will become England's world freight carrier."

The "robbery of Dutch tonnage whereby Anglo-Saxons had incurred the worst kind of odium for decades to come," he said, was the best proof of how far the shipping shortage already had gone with the western powers. To the sinkings must be added the big wear and tear in ships and the enormous increase in marine accidents, which Sir John Ellerman, in the British Shipping Chamber recently, had calculated to be three times the amount of peace losses.

Admiral von Capelle described as a base calumny the statement made by Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the British Admiralty, that German U-boat crews were unwilling to put to sea, and said the assertions of British statesmen that there had been extraordinarily big losses of U-boats were very greatly exaggerated.

The Admiral affirmed that the new U-boat construction exceeded the losses, and had increased both quantitatively and qualitatively. He added:

"We can also continue absolutely to reckon on the military achievements hitherto attained. Whether Lloyd George can continue the naval war with prospects of success depends, not on his skill, but on the position of the U-boats as against shipbuilding."

He then entered into details on the world's shipbuilding for the decade preceding the war, and contended that the new construction of the United States and Japan to a certain extent was needed for their own necessity. Hence only the figures of British shipbuilding could come into the question.

Speaking with reference to shipbuilding by England to repair the losses, Admiral von Capelle said that in the middle of 1917 there was talk of three million tons in official quarters in England. Then Lloyd George dropped to two millions, and now, according to Mr. Bonar Law, the output is 1,160,000 tons. As against, therefore, about 100,000 tons monthly put into service, there were sinkings of 600,000, or six-fold.

In brief, continued the Admiral, if the figures given were regarded as too favorable, and new construction was assumed to be at the rate of 150,000 monthly, that is 50 per cent. higher, and the sinkings reduced to 450,000, then the sinkings would still be thrice as large as the new construction.

"Another thing must be taken into consideration," he went on. "Henceforth, every ship sunk strikes at a vital nerve of our opponents, for when only absolutely necessary cargoes of foodstuffs and war necessities can be transported even the loss of a small ship has quite a different significance as compared with the beginning of the U-boat war. Under these circumstances even the greatest pessimist must say that the position of our opponents is deteriorating rapidly, and any doubt regarding the final success of the U-boat war is unjustified."

Admiral von Capelle admitted that Germany's opponents had had some success with their anti-submarine measures, but, he declared, this success at no time had any decisive influence on the U-boat war, and, according to human reckoning, would not in the future.

The American destroyers, which had been so much talked about, had failed. The convoy system, which, it was true, offered ships a certain protection, had, on the other hand, the great disadvantage of reducing their transport capabilities.

The German commanders were specially trained for attacking convoys, and not a day passed but one or more ships were struck out of the convoys. Experienced commanders managed to sink from three to four ships in succession belonging to the same convoy.

Admiral von Capelle then turned to the steel question, as affecting shipbuilding.

The Admiral said Great Britain's steel imports in 1916 were 763,000 tons, and in 1917 only 497,000 tons, meaning a reduction of 37 per cent., which presumably would further decrease during the current year. Interference in ore ports from other countries like the United States by the U-boat warfare also was having a hampering effect on British shipbuilding.

"American help in men and airplanes and America's participation in the war," said Admiral von Capelle, "is comparatively small. If later America wants to maintain a half million troops in France she would need a tonnage of about 2,000,000, which would have to be withdrawn from the Allies' supply service. Moreover, according to statements made in the United States and Great Britain, intervention in the present campaign by such a big army no longer comes into consideration."

After America's entrance into the war, Admiral von Capelle continued, material help for the Entente not only did not increase but decreased considerably. President Wilson's gigantic armament program, he said, had brought about such economic difficulties that America, the export country, must now begin to ration, instead of as had been hoped, increasingly helping the Entente.

"To sum up," said Admiral von Capelle, "it can be stated that the economic difficulties of our enemy have been increased by America's entrance into the war."

At the close of the sitting Admiral von Capelle announced that all orders for submarine boat construction were given by the Naval Department independently and that the Naval Administration never had been instructed by the Chancellor or the Supreme Army command to give larger U-boat orders.

DENY CAPELLE'S FIGURES.

His Statement of Losses Exaggerated, British Say.

LONDON, April 18.—According to a statement issued officially tonight, the figures given by Admiral von Capelle in his speech are misleading and contrary to facts.

"Exaggerated figures of losses are still relied on by the enemy," says the statement. "The average of monthly losses of British ships in 1917 was 333,000 gross tons, whereas Admiral von Capelle bases his argument on over 000,000 tons. The figures for the quarter ended March 31 will be published shortly, when it will be seen that the claim made of a continuance of the drop in the rate of losses is fully justified.

"With regard to steel, the First Lord of the Admiralty already has assured the House of Commons that arrangements have been made for a supply of steel to give the output aimed at, and at the present time the shipyards are in every case fully supplied with this material."

REICHSTAG FACES NEW PARTY STRIFE

Annexationists Attempting to Gain Control Through a Reshaped Majority Group.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 17.—The German papers agree that the Reichstag is confronted with a most difficult task. The Frankfurter Zeitung says that there are influences at work to undermine the Reichstag majority and that at the present sitting it must be decided whether the majority, which has resisted many crises since November, can remain united.

"The opposition has left no stone unturned," the paper says, "to undermine it and form a new coalition toward the right."

The Weser Zeitung says the burning subject of war aims cannot be avoided, as "more than ever at this session when the military position will be decided on the western front it is the duty to form a united political front which is necessary for a strong German peace."

The paper speaks of a new bloc, and says that this is important before the question of reform is settled. It mentions serious differences in the majority party, and says it is probable that a new bourgeois majority bloc will be formed which will guarantee a strong German peace. The paper says that in some circles of Wilhelmstrasse no secret is made of the fact that the change in war aims has only made the Government more decisive about carrying through the ballot reform bill. It is also realized that a Government crisis at this juncture will be unavoidable if the Conservatives and Annexationist National Liberals who want plural voting are opposed, and that in this case Vice Chancellor von Payer and Dr. Friedberg would be obliged to resign.

"This situation," says the Zeitung, "is supposed to have been thoroughly discussed at headquarters where it was decided that even the dissolution of the Prussian Diet might be necessary."

The paper hopes that this will not be needed, but argues that the many political and constitutional problems with which the Reichstag is now confronted make the people fear that political strife will begin just when the western offensive is so critical.

It is becoming evident that the Conservatives and other annexationists are desirous of forming a new bloc as soon as possible, and before the present majority, which has been decidedly weakened since the offensive began, has time to settle any more questions for the Reichstag.

DAVISON AT FLORENCE.

FLORENCE, April 17.—The historic Palazzo Vecchio presented an impressive sight today when the Mayor of Florence, surrounded by Government, military and municipal authorities, received Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the American Red Cross War Council, on his tour of various Italian cities. Mr. Davison was accompanied by Ivy Lee of the Red Cross; Robert P. Perkins, Red Cross Commissioner in Italy, and Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, another high official of the Red Cross.

The Americans were greeted with deafening cheers and the waving of thousands of American and Italian flags by the great crowd that had assembled, while the famous mediaeval banners of the city were hoisted in honor of the guests.

The Mayor welcomed the Americans in the name of Florence and Tuscany. Mr. Davison, in his response, thanked the city for its cordial greeting, and expounded the work and aims of the American Red Cross, which he pointed to as typical of the sentiments of the American people. A popular demonstration followed, with cries of "Viva America."

up in camions just as the Germans were similarly bringing up reinforcements. Airmen told how they saw the two long lines of cars rushing toward each other along a broad, straight road until the heads of the columns were so close that it seemed that they were actually about to come into collision. On both sides the men disembarked from the vehicles right on the firing line and (what was quite unprecedented) the leading files deployed immediately to cover the disembarkation of the remainder."

Thus outnumbered five, four, and never less than three to one, the French achieved the impossible, and on March 30 had established their line in the position where it now runs. That day and the next the Germans made the greatest attacks of all. Everywhere, in the General's own picturesque phrase, "they broke their noses," save in the neighborhood of Piemont and Plessis Park, in the centre, where, at the price of fearful losses a crack division of storm troops succeeded in bending the French line. The same night a counterattack recovered all ground lost, took 800 prisoners, and revealed over 2,000 German dead sacrificed in vain at that one point. Thenceforward the German flood was dammed. It is small wonder that the General's confidence is absolute.

NORTHCLIFFE MAY QUIT TWO POSTS

Resents Inclusion of Chamberlain in War Council—Calls Him "Mediocrity."

MILNER IS WAR SECRETARY

Succeeds Derby, Sent to Paris as Ambassador—Break in the Air Council.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 18.—It is rumored in the House of Commons that Lord Northcliffe contemplates resigning the two positions he occupies under the Government—head of the British-American Mission and Director of Enemy Propaganda—as a protest against the inclusion of J. Austen Chamberlain in the War Cabinet.

From a high and, what is more important, impartial authority THE NEW YORK TIMES learns that there are certain features of the changes in the Cabinet and air force which are far from being so unsatisfactory as today's debate in the Commons might suggest. Sir David Henderson's resignation as Vice President of the Air Council must not be construed as an indication that he supports General Trenchard's policy in opposition to Lord Rothermere's. It turns rather on the appointment of General Sykes.

It is settled that Lord Milner, the new Secretary of State for War, will not have a seat in the War Cabinet, and his recognized administrative capacity may do good work in a department which Lord Derby had allowed to get rather out of hand on that side.

Bonar Law in the House of Commons today confirmed the fact which was known yesterday that General Sir David Henderson, Vice President of the Air Board had resigned. He added that before General Trenchard's resignation was accepted differences between him and Lord Rothermere came before the War Cabinet. It was not proposed to state what the differences were. Lord Rothermere had described them as on a point of principle.

In several sections of the press deep regrets have been expressed at Trenchard's loss to the air service, and the impression is heightened by Henderson's decision to follow him. Outside of political and journalistic circles, the Ministerial changes formally announced today attract slight attention. Among the politicians the addition of Austen Chamberlain to the War Cabinet is regarded chiefly as a bid for the support of the Liberal Unionists of his following for the Government's home rule proposals.

Chief interest is taken in the fact that Lord Northcliffe's fulminations against Chamberlain have been disregarded by Lloyd George. Despite the rumor of Northcliffe's intention to resign his air post, one of his papers tonight explains that the Prime Minister had no option, as under the conditions ruling in the coalition the Unionists have the right of nomination to the office held by the Unionists.

Whether Milner will remain in the War Cabinet is still a moot point, but the prevalent belief is that he will and that Chamberlain's inclusion is an addition to its numerical strength.

LONDON, April 18.—Official announcement was made today that the Earl of Derby had been appointed Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary on a special mission to France, in succession to Lord Bertie.

Viscount Milner becomes Secretary for War in the Earl of Derby's place and J. Austen Chamberlain a member of the War Cabinet.

The appointment of Viscount Milner, it is considered, will make for efficiency, as he is rated by many as the strongest member of the War Cabinet. Personally he is not among the popular politicians, because he is extremely conservative in his views, and the Liberals always have condemned his South African policy.

The Earl of Derby has a genial, popular personality, which induces the view that he will fit well into diplomacy. The selection of Mr. Chamberlain does not seem likely to be greeted with unanimous enthusiasm. The Daily Mail, for instance, yesterday said such action would be trifling with the nation. It described Mr. Chamberlain as an honest mediocrity who owed his advancement entirely to the prestige of his father, the late Joseph Chamberlain.

In the House of Commons today it was announced by Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that Sir David Henderson, Vice President of the Air Council, had resigned, following the resignation of Major Gen. Trenchard, the chief of the air staff, on the ground that he would be unable to work with the new air staff chief, General F. H. Sykes.

PARIS, April 18.—Premier Clemenceau had a long conference last night with Lord Milner.

The Earl of Derby has been at the head of the War Office since the Lloyd George Cabinet took office in December, 1916. Previously he had been Director of Army Recruiting and Air Minister.

Announcement was made some time ago that Lord Bertie was about to leave his post in Paris, where he has been Ambassador since 1905. Lord Bertie, who was raised to the peerage in 1915, entered the Foreign Office in 1883 and was formerly British Ambassador to Italy. He is 74 years old.

Viscount Milner, who has been a member of the British War Cabinet without portfolio since Dec. 10, 1916, has had a prominent career in British politics and was British High Commissioner for South Africa previous to 1905, and from 1902 to 1905 he was Governor of the Transvaal and the Orange River colonies. He was born in 1854.

J. Austen Chamberlain, the eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain, has been a prominent figure in public life for a score of years. His last previous post was Secretary for India, which he resigned last July after being censured by the commission which investigated the disastrous first campaign of the British in Mesopotamia. Mr. Chamberlain, who as Secretary for India was largely responsible for the arrangements for the campaign, admitted in the House of Commons that serious errors had been made, particularly in regard to the hospital service.

made me a prisoner. The Germans regard all correspondents for enemy newspapers who are looking for news on the frontier, or even elsewhere, as spies.

Escape of Prisoners.

Two Canadian soldiers, who escaped from Germany, where they had been in prisoners' camps nearly two years, have arrived at Sittard. They are Richard Royston, whose parents live at Maulden, Bedfordshire, England, and who joined a Vancouver regiment, and Louis Spies, also of Vancouver.

They were captured at Ypres together on April 23, 1916, and started together from a farm near St. Ever, on the Rhine, fourteen days ago, with two other prisoners, but the party separated after two days because four were too many. Royston said:

"It was our third attempt to get away. We each wore a canvas waistcoat under our sweaters in which we carried sixty biscuits to last us on the trip. Our tramping was done at night. When we finally landed in Holland we gave ourselves up to the Dutch soldiers."

The escaped prisoners said that their life in the mines had been full of hardship, and when they refused to work in factories they were flogged, but conditions were much better on the farm. German soldiers who had been to the front respected the British soldiers and were afraid the British prisoners would revolt, so these prisoners were scattered over Germany. Royston and Spies say that the German people are tired of the war as well as the soldiers.

"Two other prisoners whom I saw," said Royston, "owed their escape to being sent to a farm to work. After leaving the camp I walked on through the town to the German frontier, where Dutch and boches face each other on the highroad. Before I reached the barrier across the road I was stopped and searched carefully by a Dutch gendarme, who made me empty my pockets to make sure that I was not engaged in some ruse for taking gold to the Germans. One smuggler was caught last week with 20,000 florins in gold, which he tried to carry across the frontier at night."

This evening a German Red Cross train arrived here with wounded Germans from England, who had been exchanged. There was not much enthusiasm at the station except by a few Germans living near.

PARIS, April 18.—During the week ended April 13 German submarines did not succeed in sinking any French ships of more than 1,000 tons. One ship under that tonnage, however, fell prey to the enemy.

ROME, April 18.—One Italian steamship of more than 1,500 tons and two sailing vessels, one of more than 100 tons, were sunk by German mines and submarines in the week ended April 17. One steamship was attacked unsuccessfully by a submarine.

PRAISE AMERICANS WHO STOOD BY CAREY

British Commanders Congratulate Engineers Who Helped Stem German Advance.

FOUGHT WEEK AS INFANTRY

General Rawlinson Sends Personal Thanks to Their Colonel—Pershing Joins in Praise.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18, (Associated Press.)—Reports from British commanders which have just been received at American Army Headquarters give the first definite information that American engineering troops in large numbers were among the forces hastily assembled from all branches of the service by Major General Carey for his improvised army which filled the gap in the line made by the Germans at the opening of their offensive last month. The American engineers were at work constructing and operating field railways and building bridges.

Three companies of an engineering regiment were caught in the early bombardment and ordered to fall back. To one of the American companies, which had been consolidated with the British Royal Engineers, was delegated the task of guaranteeing the destruction of an engineers' dump, which it had been decided to abandon. This detachment destroyed all the material, made a rapid retreat, caught up with the larger group, and immediately resumed work, laying out trenches. These operations lasted from March 22 to 27. As the German attack became more intense, the engineers were joined by cooks, orderlies, and railway men as a part of General Carey's forces. The commanding officer of an American regiment took charge of an infantry sub-sector and directed the action of his troops for one week, until the emergency passed at that point. To this officer General Rawlinson, commanding the British army engaged in that sector, sent the following letter:

"The army commander wishes to record officially his appreciation of the excellent work your regiment has done in assisting the British army to resist the enemy's powerful offensive during the last ten days. I fully realize that it has been largely due to your assistance that the enemy has been checked, and I rely on you to assist us still further during the few days which are still to come before I shall be able to relieve you in the line.

"I consider your work in the line to be greatly enhanced by the fact that, for six weeks previous to taking your place in the fornt line, your men had been working at such high pressure, erecting heavy bridges on the Somme. My best congratulations and warm thanks to all. "RAWLINSON."

When the British General, H. L. Mulers, commanding a cavalry division, received from his superior congratulations and thanks for the work of his command in beating off the enemy, he forwarded the following letter to the commander of one of the American engineering units:

"As a United States engineering battalion was fighting with the First Cavalry Division in the line on March 30, the army commander's congratulatory message applies to them equally with the units of the First Cavalry Division. It has been brought to my notice that the men under your command fought most gallantly alongside the British cavalry. I am most grateful to you and the unit under your command for the invaluable assistance you gave us on March 30, 1918. Please convey my thanks and congratulations to all ranks."

The reports of the gallant conduct of the Americans on the British front have caused General Pershing to send the following letter to the engineering commander:

"The Commander in Chief has noted with great satisfaction the fine conduct of the officers and men of your regiment during the recent German offensive, as testified by British army commanders."

MEDICAL OFFICERS HONORED.

Lieutenants Sweetser and Patton Rewarded for Service in Gas Attacks

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant Theodore Higgins Sweetser, of the Medical Reserve, United States Army, has been recommended for the British Military Cross for conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Near Passchendaele on March 13 he rendered valuable assistance to more than forty men suffering from gas, while he was suffering from its effects. At the present time the address of Lieutenant Sweetser is not available.

Lieutenant Sweetser's recommendation for the cross reads as follows:

"When the headquarters of another battalion received a direct hit from a gas shell and all the occupants, including the medical officer attached to the battalion, were suffering from the effects of the gas, this officer rendered valuable and most gallant assistance to over forty cases, and continued to do so when his two noncommissioned officers succumbed. He himself was suffering from the effects at the time.

"He also rendered valuable assistance to a party of tunnelers, the entrance of whose dugout had been struck by a gas shell, in waking the men up and forcing the tubes of their respirators into their mouths and clips into their noses. But for his prompt attention a large number of men would have succumbed."

General Pershing, in a letter to Lieutenant Sweetser, said:

"The Commander in Chief desires me to say that he appreciates the splendid conduct shown by you on this occasion."

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Wednesday, April 17, (Associated Press.)—Lieutenant George Patton of New York City of the American Army Medical Corps has received the French War Cross for courage in treating wounded men while without a gas mask during a heavy bombardment of gas shells. The Lieutenant found it was impossible to treat the wounded while wearing his mask. He took it off and continued to dress wounds until overcome by gas fumes.

Offer Reward for Evidence Against Americans and British.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18, (By the Associated Press.)—The activities of the German military authorities in suppressing propaganda at home are shown in the following quotation from a German bulletin which has been received at American headquarters:

"Baron von Gayl, General commanding the 7th German Army Corps in Muenster, offers 3,000 marks to the person who first succeeds in implicating an English or American agent guilty of inciting disturbances or revolution in this district, in such a manner that he may be condemned by a court."

AMERICANS RULE IN NO MAN'S LAND

Patrol Nightly in the Lorraine Sector Without Encountering Any Resistance.

MAP GERMAN GUN POSTS

Help French to Regain Trenches Twice in Twenty-four Hours and Punish Foe Severely.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Wednesday, April 17, (Associated Press.)—American troops operating on the Lorraine sector have taken over control of No Man's Land. Patroling parties are making almost nightly visits up to the German wire entanglements without encountering any resistance.

A Lieutenant and a party of twelve have made a five-hour exploring trip penetrating to the German third line and making maps of machine guns and snipers' posts and strong points without being seen by the enemy.

An artillery Lieutenant in an observation post sighted a German field kitchen coming up to the enemy line. He gave his battery its position and the kitchen was destroyed with three shots.

Commanders of units participating in the several days of fighting last week in company with the French in the Apremont Wood sector are finding it difficult to pick out men who especially distinguished themselves in the operations. One commander said that every man acted like a hero and it was hard to choose the most deserving cases. One of the most popular men with the soldiers on this sector is the Rev. des Valles, a Roman Catholic priest, of New Bedford, Mass., who is living with the men in an unofficial capacity, he having come to France as a representative of the Knights of Columbus.

When the attacks began Father des Valles, braving the dangers of shell and machine gun fire, went to the casualty clearing station, near the front line, to administer to the wounded. He assisted in dressing the injuries of the soldiers and gave each man a word of cheer. He handed out cigarettes to the men who smoked.

"He's as game as they make them and every inch a soldier," said a doughboy, while other soldiers spoke of the inspiration furnished by the priest.

Another popular man is a young banker of Springfield, Mass., who was pressed into service as a stretcher bearer. He was the smallest man in the outfit, and after several trips became so exhausted he was unable to hold the stretcher. He refused to give up, and had his companions tie the stretcher to his wrists with rope so as to enable him to hold the stretcher on the journey from the front line to the dressing station.

Twice in twenty-four hours an American company has assisted French troops in a neighboring sector to regain trenches temporarily taken by the Germans. The company was led by a Captain who took his troops over the top in the face of the most violent machine gun and artillery fire. Each time he succeeded in driving out the enemy and inflicting heavy damage, and then strengthening the positions.

A most pathetic story from the American lines is that of a young corporal who was mortally wounded after fighting for four hours. A piece of shrapnel struck him in the head. He had a grenade in each hand. Giving them to his companion, he said:

"I guess I'm done. Please write to my mother and tell her how it happened. But here—take these grenades, and for God's sake don't waste them."

The corporal fell in a faint and died in a hospital the next day without regaining consciousness.

At one point on this sector only fifteen yards separated the opposing trenches. A day before an attack the Germans threw a note into the American trench. It read:

"What are you? Canadians or Australians?"

"Come over and find out," was the reply thrown back by an American soldier.

The infantryman who related the incident added:

"I guess they know who we are now and they will not be likely to forget for some time."

One Lieutenant in a listening post with a small party of men was cut off from the remainder of the platoon in Friday's attack. He tried to send up rockets to signal an American barrage, but the rockets failed to work. A private then volunteered to run back with the message. He passed through three lines of barrage fire without being harmed and delivered the message. The American gunners laid down a barrage immediately and saved the Lieutenant and his party from the hands of a superior force of the enemy, which was headed in their direction.

SYMPATHY FOR COL. FEIGL.

Baker Writes in Praise of Son Who Was Killed in France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Secretary Baker has written to Colonel Fred Feigl of New York City in praise of the courage of the latter's son, Lieutenant Jefferson Feigl, who was killed in battle in France last month. The letter follows:

April 17, 1918.

My Dear Colonel Feigl: On my return to Washington I am shocked to learn of the death of your brave and devoted son, Lieutenant Jefferson Feigl, killed in action on the 21st of March on the battlefields of France.

Just a few days before his death I saw Lieutenant Feigl and learned from him, as I did from other American officers with whom I conversed, the splendid spirit of confidence and courage with which the American Army is inspired. He was in all respects the type and exemplar of the best in American spirit and action. His death is a loss to the army, but it adds the name of a soldier who died doing his duty fearlessly to the list of those who are making the great sacrifice in order that freedom may be preserved for the sons of men.

For your personal loss there can be little consolation, but you can rejoice that you have been permitted to make this contribution to the greatest cause in which man can struggle, and that your brave boy knew the worth of the cause for which he fought and counted its dangers as nothing if only the right might prevail.

Cordially yours,
NEWTON D. BAKER,
Secretary of War.

'PRESS ON,' WAS BAKER'S FINAL CALL TO ARMY

Quitting France, He Promised to Speed Forward the Remainder of Our Forces.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 18.—(Associated Press.)—General Pershing today made public a letter dated France, April 7, sent by Secretary of War Baker to the officers and men of the American Expeditionary Forces:

After a thorough inspection of the American Expeditionary Forces I am returning to the United States with fresh enthusiasm to speed up the transportation of the remainder of the great army of which you are the vanguard.

What I have seen here gives comfortable assurance that plans for the effectiveness of our fighting forces and for the comfort and welfare of our men have been broadly made and vigorously executed.

Our schools and system of instruction are adding to the general soldier training the specialized knowledge which developed among our French and British associates during the four years of heroic action which they have displayed from the beginning of the war.

Fortunately the relations between our soldiers and those of the British and French are uniformly cordial and happy, and the welcome of the civil population of France has been met by our soldiers with chivalrous appreciation in return.

We are building a great army to vindicate a great cause, and the spirit which you are showing, the courage, the resourcefulness and zeal for the performance of duty, both as soldiers and as men, are not only promising of military success, but are worthy of the traditions of America and of the allied armies with which we are associated.

Press on!

NEWTON BAKER.

The following statement was added by "order of General Pershing":

"In adding his own appreciation to the splendid spirit of our army, the Commander in Chief wishes to impress upon the officers and men of all ranks a keen sense of the serious obligation which rests upon them while at the same time giving fresh assurance of his complete confidence in their loyalty, their courage, and their sincere devotion to duty."

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Chairman Chamberlain of the Senate Military Committee called on Secretary Baker today, and at the Secretary's suggestion decided to call a meeting of the committee next week to hear Mr. Baker tell of his trip abroad.

Commends Men on Acteon.

SCHWAB CENTRES ON SHIP TASK

Will Forget All About Bethlehem Steel, He Says, in Taking Up New Work.

TO SPUR OUTPUT OF YARDS

Asks No Credit for Himself, but Will Start a Roll of Honor for Men.

FEELS CERTAIN OF SUCCESS

"I Am Going to Build Ships, and I Know It Can Be Done," He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Charles M. Schwab took up his work today as Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and announced that from this time on he was going to forget all about Bethlehem Steel, munition making and other interests, and think of nothing but how to build ships with which to win the war.

He spent his first day on the job going over the details of the task with Chairman Hurley, of the Shipping Board, and Charles Piez, President of the Fleet Corporation. Late in the were smiling and optimistic.

received the newspaper men and they afternoon Mr. Hurley and Mr. Schwab

"The work which Mr. Hurley and Mr. Piez have done is prodigious, splendid, magnificent," explained Mr. Schwab. "It is far greater than any man who hasn't seen the inside of things can appreciate.

"The foundation is laid and that task is well done. We are going to get the results which are needed and I shall be proud if I can have any part in the accomplishment. All I can say for myself is that I am filled with enthusiasm, energy and confidence.

"I took this job because Mr. Hurley wanted me to take it. Beyond the fact that I am going to give all that is in me to this work I can't tell you much now. And this is not flippant patriotism.

Wants Credit for the Workers.

"Mr. Hurley and I are in full accord on everything, and we are going to work shoulder to shoulder to make the work a success. But the large burden must fall upon the people at the yards, and they are entitled to any credit for success.

"We can plan and advise and encourage, but we can't do the work ourselves. Appreciation and encouragement are the things needed. I have found in my long experience that no man can do his work well unless his efforts are appreciated."

"We are going to have a roll of honor," broke in Chairman Hurley, "and get everybody working with us."

"Yes, that's what I believe in," continued Mr. Schwab. "I do not want to have any man in the shipyards working for me; I want them all working with me. Nothing is going to be worth while unless we win this war, and every one must do the task to which he is called.

"I do not know anything about policies and things of that kind. That is Mr. Hurley's duty. I do not want to go to meetings to try to get things. I am essentially a field man, and that is where my work will be. I do not know what I can do; the only thing I know is that I am filled with optimism and energy, and I want every one else to feel the same way. All I know is that I am going to build ships, and I know it can be done."

Loses No Time in Start.

"When are you going to start in?" Mr. Schwab was asked.

"I've started in," he retorted.

"Will you end your connections with Bethlehem Steel?"

"I think it likely," he replied. "I'll do anything in that way that is thought best. Certainly I intend to give it no attention while in this position.

"My place is in the yards and I shall spend a great part of the time there. I want all of the shipbuilders and shipworkers to feel the same kind of enthusiasm and optimism that I feel. I want them to realize that nothing is going to be any good to any of us unless we win this war.

"And I want every one in the yards to understand that if we succeed in building these ships, and I know we will, that the credit won't belong to Mr. Hurley, Mr. Piez, and me, but to the men who actually built the ships. And we want them to know that they will get the full credit.

"Do I know whom I will bring with me to the Fleet Corporation? I haven't even thought of that. I only know that I haven't a single soul in the world to whom I want to give a job except the best man for the job. Then I want that man to work with me, and we will accomplish things. I have made only one rule: I have never given a job to a relative and I intend to stick to that at all costs. It's pretty hard, sometimes, though."

Mr. Schwab laughed heartily.

"We might as well get a laugh even if this is serious business," he said. "It's the spirit of optimism and encouragement which is going to build ships and win this war, and that's our job."

He turned to Mr. Hurley.

"Now, I've said about what you told me to, haven't I?" he asked, and laughed again.

Will Think Only of Ships.

"That's the way we are going to get at this job," replied Mr. Hurley. "Every one is going to put his shoulder to the wheel and think and live shipbuilding until we get the work done."

"That's all I'm going to think about," said Mr. Schwab, "and every one in the Fleet Corporation feels the same way. By the way, Mr. Piez is a fine man. I like him and I am glad to work with him. I suppose everybody likes him. I do not very well see how any one could help it.

"We are going to try to get the men in the shipyards to take the greatest pride in their work and let them know we take great pride in what they are doing.

"What I am here for is to help, not to correct, and I can't talk about details yet. I expect soon to make a tour of the shipyards and see what I can do. I haven't even considered as yet where I will have headquarters."

Chairman Hurley said that Mr. Schwab already had made many valuable suggestions and that the public would receive full information concerning the policies and methods to be pursued. He apparently was greatly pleased by the outcome of the conferences which had been held during the day.

It was stated at the Shipping Board offices that it might not be necessary for Mr. Schwab to sever his connections with Bethlehem Steel, as he had nothing to do with the letting of contracts and problems of that kind. Mr. Schwab, it was said, was perfectly willing to accept any decision in this matter.

After the interview Mr. Hurley and Mr. Schwab were photographed together. They were smiling.

HOSTILITY TO BERLIN GROWS IN AUSTRIA

Menacing Agitation In and Out of Parliament, Says a Dispatch to Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The political situation in Austria-Hungary remains extremely delicate, according to an official dispatch today from Switzerland summarizing reports from Budapest and comment in Austrian and German newspapers. Austria, the dispatch says, is coming to the greatest difficulties, security no longer exists, and the situation "is capable of any possibility."

Marked discontent prevails in Vienna, according to the dispatch, while speeches delivered in Parliament by Czechs, Jugo-Slavs, and Poles inspire hatred of Germany and demand reorganization of Austria-Hungary. Even the Social Democrats are said to have proclaimed in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies that the monarchy is not directly interested in the struggle of Germany against Great Britain, France, and America.

The dispatch follows:

"A dispatch from Budapest announces that Baron Burian will receive the portfolio of finance in assuming that of foreign affairs. This measure of an unusual kind leads one to think that Baron Burian will perhaps not hold the office of Minister of Foreign Affairs for a very long time. At any rate, the nomination of the new Minister has been received in Austria with more resignation than enthusiasm.

"One gathers the impression that it is once more a question of expediency destined to hide the impossibility of the co-operation of a personage of first importance. The essential characteristics of Baron Burian are, in fact, insignificance and docile obedience to the orders which come from Berlin and Budapest.

"According to the Schweizer Press Telegraph, which reflects the opinion of the German circles of Austria, one can judge in spite of the rigors of the censorship that the political situation remains extremely delicate in the monarchy.

SUMMONS CANADA TO KEEP RANKS FILLED

Borden Tells Commons the Fighting Forces Must Be Kept Up to Their Full Strength.

OTTAWA, April 18.—Regardless of sacrifices Canada must keep her fighting divisions on the western front up to full strength, Sir Robert Borden, Premier, stated during a secret session of the House of Commons yesterday, according to an official account of the meeting made public here today. Canada must also organize her remaining human power so as to maintain, and, if possible, increase, agricultural production, Sir Robert said.

Speaking to members and officials of the House and the Senate, the Premier gave a survey of the war situation, discussing the military position, supply and production of foodstuff and shipping. He presented also a communication from Mr Lloyd George, sent especially for reading at the secret session. The text of this was not made public.

Referring to Germany's apparent aim to destroy the British army in France, Sir Robert presented confidential information as to the strength of fresh forces which had been raised by Great Britain, France and Canada to combat this offensive.

A German attack in full force upon the Canadian Army Corps must be expected, the Premier said. "When this will come, no one can say," he went on, "but in view of the strategic value of the position of the Canadians there can be no doubt but that they must be prepared to meet any attacks launched by the enemy, and the country must be prepared to provide the reinforcements to make good all the losses.

"The Government has been in communication with the overseas military authorities, and as the result of the most careful consideration the clear conclusion has been reached that if the Canadian Army Corps is to be maintained as an efficient fighting force, additional measures must be taken. It must be recognized that the position is one of extreme gravity. Germany must be defeated, and to this end Canada must provide all the assistance in her power. We must supply the men necessary to keep our divisions up to full strength, no matter what casualties are suffered."

Sir Robert cited statistics regarding shipping losses in 1917, as set forth by Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the British Admiralty, in a recent speech in the House of Commons.

After Sir Robert's statement a discussion took place, participated in by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Sam Hughes and Major General Mewburn, Minister of Militia.

BARRED MISS RANKIN.

Deer Lodge Wouldn't Let Her Speak —Result of Strike Case.

DEER LODGE, Mon., April 18.—Miss Jeannette Rankin of Missouri, Montana's Representative in Congress, was not allowed to speak in Deer Lodge tonight, where she had been scheduled to give a Liberty Loan speech.

A meeting of citizens, led by State Senator Williams and R. D. Larable, voted not to permit Miss Rankin to deliver her speech, on account of alleged association in Butte with W. F. Dunn and Thomas Campbell, who were leaders in the strikes conducted there last Summer by the electricians and the metal mine workers' unions.

Miss Rankin, it is said, protested when informed of the action and insisted on a chance to make her side of the case known. This was refused, however, and she was notified not to come.

WARNS AUSTRIANS WHO FAVOR ENTENTE

Premier von Seydler Declares They Will Be Treated as Enemies of the State.

DEPLORES GERMAN DOUBTS

Marked Discontent in Vienna Follows Czernin's Retirement—Berlin Trusts Burian.

AMSTERDAM, April 18.—Dr. von Seydler, the Austrian Premier, in receiving a delegation of Deputies who called attention to the pronounced agitation which recent political events had caused in German circles, said he was aware of this excitement and greatly regretted it.

He was emphatic in declaring that neither the foreign nor the home policy of the Government was affected in the least by the change in the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Ministry, says the Vienna dispatch reporting the incident. The Premier added that according to the unalterable views of the Crown, with which he was completely acquainted, those who looked to the Entente for salvation would always be regarded and treated as enemies of the State.

The Budapest newspapers, in commenting upon the appointment of Baron Burian as Foreign Minister, lay emphasis upon the statement that unyielding loyalty to the alliance with Germany is the main feature of his policy. They assert that Austria-Hungary's foreign policy will not be altered in the least.

This view is echoed by German newspapers received in Amsterdam, which welcome the appointment of Baron Burian, whom they point to as a convinced supporter of the policy of an alliance with Germany.

The North German Gazette, the semi-official organ, says that the alliance with Germany will necessarily remain the cornerstone of the Dual Monarchy's foreign policy, being a necessity demanded by the historical interests of both peoples.

The Vossische Zeitung points out that Baron Burian is one of the most intimate friends of Count Tisza, the former Hungarian Premier, and says that his appointment is equivalent to the appointment of Count Tisza himself. It may even be, adds the newspaper, that the Dual Monarchy's loyalty to the alliance will be more sharply accentuated by Baron Burian than by Count Czernin.

The Lokal-Anzeiger welcomes the appointment of Baron Burian as that of a true friend of Germany, whose loyalty to the alliance is beyond doubt.

The Wiener Zeitung, says a Vienna dispatch, prints the imperial autographed document relieving Count Czernin of his office as Foreign Minister, which says:

"During one of the most important epochs in the history of the world you, in the interest of the policy which now as before will remain determinative for my house and my State, have performed in a self-sacrificing manner and with untiring loyalty eminent services, in which a success which rightly gives you satisfaction is not denied to you, seeing you were among the foremost to give the first conclusion of peace to suffering humanity."

For this Emperor Charles expresses unending gratitude, confers a high decoration upon Count Czernin, assures him of the continuous favor of the Emperor, and adds the hope that the Emperor and the State will not always be deprived of his extraordinary gifts.

The decision of the Hungarian Cabinet to resign was reached at a meeting yesterday morning, at which Premier Wekerle presided. All the members of the Cabinet were present except Count Sayerenyi, Minister of Commerce, and Count Zichy, Minister of Court, who were absent from Budapest.

After a short conference all the members present signed the document tendering their resignations.

BERLIN SPONSOR FOR BURIAN

Hohenlohe Is Said to Have Carried Wilhelmstrasse Message.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 18.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from an authoritative source that Baron Burian's appointment as Foreign Minister of Austria-Hungary was dictated by the ruling powers in Berlin, and that Prince Hohenlohe, who left suddenly for Vienna, probably carried instructions from Wilhelmstrasse, although it was vigorously denied that his journey was connected with Czernin's resignation.

The Austrian Emperor desired to appoint Schoenburg, former Austro-Hungarian Minister to the Papal See, and court circles were in favor of Baron Mensdorf, former Ambassador to London. It appears that Tisza refused the appointment. Burian's nomination came as a complete surprise, even in well-informed Austrian political circles.

It is considered likely that Burian's opening speech will be of a pacifist nature, in order to hoodwink the Austrians.

GILLETT BLAMES WILSON FOR DELAYS

Acting Republican House Leader Says President Has Resisted Congress's Aid.

ATTACKS CREEL FOR SPEECH

Facts About Shipbuilding and Airplanes, He Tells Republican County Committee, Were Kept from Public.

A severe attack upon President Wilson and his Administration was embodied in an address delivered before the Republican County Committee at its meeting in Lyric Hall last night by Representative Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts. Congressman Gillett, who has been a member of the House of Representatives since 1892, is Republican whip of the House, and at present, during the illness of Congressman James R. Mann of Illinois, acting leader of the Republican minority.

By way of preface the Congressman declared that he had refrained so long from criticism of the Administration in the interest of harmonious work for the prosecution of the war in Congress that he welcomed an opportunity to unburden himself in a family circle where there could be on misunderstanding of what he had to say. "I am not going to give full vent to my feelings at that," he added.

Narrow partisanship and absolute disregard of the civil service law were among the charges Congressman Gillett laid at the door of the Wilson Administration. But he concentrated his hottest fire on the shipbuilding program, the resistance offered by President Wilson against what he pronounced the well-meaning plans of Congress to aid the Administration by providing for a Congressional Committee on Expenditures and a Secretary of Munitions, and on the appointment of George Creel as head of the Bureau of Public Information, which he pronounced contrary to both the letter and the spirit of the law.

"Mr. Creel is just now in the public eye, mainly because of his recent statement that he should be proud to his dying day of the fact that the United States was unprepared for war," said Congressman Gillett. "There are doubtless others in the country who sympathize with him in his rejoicing, but some of them are in jail and others are in lunatic asylums, and I think there are very few who do not regret very deeply that we were so unprepared. Certainly few are in Mr. Creel's class.

"I fear that there has been a studied effort to disclose to Congress and the public only the favorable side and conceal discouraging facts. We have not been allowed to know how far below expectation our assistance to the Allies has been, and now as the facts are leaking out there is deep suspicion and disappointment. The airplane production, which we thought was the one bright feature in our enterprise, now seems to be as faulty and unreliable as the rest.

"Nor has Congress been fully advised of the use made of its appropriations. For instance, Congress has not been told of the expenditures of the Bureau of Public Information. There is a law forbidding any department to employ publicity experts, and the only authority for the Creel bureau is the appropriation by Congress of $100,000,000 at the outbreak of the war to the President as an emergency fund to use at his discretion. Out of that fund, despite the expression of the will of Congress against publicity experts, this bureau was organized, and we do not know what salary is paid to Mr. Creel or any of his assistants, nor have I been able to obtain anything more than the most general statement as to its expenditures."

Mr. Gillett said that one occasion when the Republicans in Congress took what substantially was a partisan stand was when they proposed the creation of a Congressional committee to check up war expenditures.

"Even this could not be called a Republican party measure, because it was passed in the Democratic Senate before it came to the House," said Mr. Gillett. "It seems to me that there is exceptional need for watchfulness of expenditures and accounting for these at a time when executive officials have such vast sums at their disposal as they have now.

"Probably the most striking instances of such extravagance have been in our efforts to build ships. The Government, with authority to expend nearly two billions for the construction of ships, gave out contracts right and left to shipbuilders and men who pretended to be shipbuilders and men who claimed that they could become shipbuilders in the hope of soon establishing a merchant marine. I am afraid no other branch of our Government has experienced such a series of mistakes, delays, and extravagances as has the Shipping Board."

For Secretary of Munitions.

Mr. Gillett said that the other instance where the Republicans had taken a partisan stand was in the matter of the proposal for a Secretary of Munitions, though even that measure had originated with the Democratic Military Committee of the Senate.

"I favored that measure and I believe most Republicans favored it, not because it would mean that the official would be a Republican—the appointment would have rested with the President—but because there had been such obvious and shocking failures and delays in some of our preparations for war which could be partly traced back to the lack of some central purchasing authority that it seemed as if it would be wise to follow the example of our Allies and have all purchases centralized in one head."

WANTS GREECE'S FULL AID.

Must "Employ All Our Forces" with Allies, Says Venizelos.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 18.—A dispatch to The Daily Chronicle from Athens says that at a session of the Greek Chamber Premier Venizelos, following some remarks by M. Stretos, said:

"It is not a loan which binds Greece, but actual war co-operation on the side of the Allies. Owing to her geographical position, her interests always were and always will be those of the dominating maritime powers of the Mediterranean. So long as the sovereignty of the seas remains, and will indisputably remain, in the hands of the powers holding it actually for the good of all humanity, and so long as the opposite camp holds not only the traditional enemies of Greece, but also those to whom Hellenic interests run counter, and will always be opposed, Greek policy ought to be the same."

Concerning compensations that Stretos pretended to demand of the Entente, Venizelos said:

"Evidently M. Stretos does not expect a detailed reply beyond my saying only that our duty in the world war between democratic ideals and imperialism is to employ all our forces and to assure that our contribution to the results of the great struggle, which unhappily will be a long one, is as large as possible. It is evident that the Allies hold the noblest ideals of humanity in their conception of the rights of Greece, but it must never be forgotten that rights upborne by feeble hands or depending upon feeble wills are not worthy of respect.

"If, as I hope, we will show once again the same vitality of force that we displayed in our last war, I am sure that when the great struggle is over Greece will present herself at the peace congress with very serious titles. We ought to understand that our gains will be in proportion to our acts."

HOUSE VOTES DOWN $2.50 WHEAT CLAUSE

GOES BACK TO CONFERENCE

Opponents of Senate Move Say It Would Add One Cent to Every Loaf a Bread.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—By a vote of 167 to 97 the House today refused to concur in a Senate amendment to the Agricultural Appropriation bill fixing the price of wheat at $2.50 a bushel at the local elevator. The enactment of such legislation, it was estimated by those opposing the Senate's action, would have added one cent to the price of every loaf of bread.

By a vote of 180 to 167 the House rejected an amendment offered by Representative McLaughlin of Michigan, which in effect fixed the price of wheat at the terminal market at $2.50 a bushel. Had this been agreed to it would have fixed the price at about 23 cents less than $2.50 a bushel at the local elevator, the 23 cents representing the freight rate from the local market to the terminal market.

After rejecting the Senate's provision the House voted to send the bill back to conference with instructions to its conferees to insist upon the elimination of the wheat amendment from the measure. Before the Senate tacked the amendment to the Agricultural bill the President issued a proclamation fixing the price of wheat at not more than $2.20 a bushel.

Representative Lever, Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture, who led the opposition to the amendment, declared that the President was opposed to the Senate amendment. Answering the argument that everything the farmer must buy was increased in price, Mr. Lever said that he would support a bill to fix the price of farm machinery.

"Do you favor having the price of farm machinery regulated?" asked Representative Young, Republican, of North Dakota, who favored $2.50 wheat.

"I do, and I may say that I intend to introduce a bill soon for that purpose," replied Mr. Lever.

Debate upon the wheat price clause was largely sectional, members from wheat-producing States favoring it, while men from areas raising other crops opposed it. Many speakers deplored the fact that the Government had gone into the business of fixing prices at all. Representative Anderson, Republican, of Minnesota, emphasized this trend in the discussion.

"The House should consider this question from the viewpoint of the good of the country," said Mr. Anderson, "and should accord to those who raise wheat the measure of justice which the situation requires. If we had this year a wheat crop of 850,000,000 bushels in prospect there is not a man in the House who would not gladly vote to repeal every section of the Food Administration law for price fixing. But we do not confront such a situation. We are dealing with a short crop this year and must meet it on that basis."

"Are you willing to make the Congress of the United States the wheat pit of the country?" shouted Mr. Lever in an impassioned appeal for defeating the provision. "Yet that is just what you are doing by all these bills. Furthermore, you are upsetting the machinery of industry.

"Wheat is the only product in this country upon which the Government has guaranteed a profit. The President has guaranteed a profit on wheat by fixing the price at $2.20. He has made promises to our allies based on the price of $2.20, which he has fixed upon wheat, and it would be a shame for this Congress to repudiate that promise. Canada has already fixed the price of wheat at a figure corresponding to the price fixed by the President, and the American Congress should stand by these figures, and not attempt to tinker with the matter, especially without full knowledge of the facts."

SOLDIER SENT ABROAD DESPITE COURT APPEAL

Hannis Taylor Wants Gen. Wood Cited in Cox Case—Wood in France When It Occurred.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—In the Supreme Court today Hannis Taylor, counsel for Robert Cox, a draft soldier who is testing before the court the right of the Government to send him beyond the boundaries of the United States, said he had been informed that General Leonard Wood had sent Cox to France while the appeal was pending, and it was his [Mr. Taylor's] purpose to move that General Wood be cited for contempt.

Mr. Taylor said that he had learned yesterday through a letter from Cox's father that within two weeks after the soldier's appeal had been filed in the Supreme Court Cox had been placed on a ship and sent to France. This he characterized as the most outrageous insult and indignity ever put upon the court in the history of English and American law.

The Cox appeal was filed in the Supreme Court on Jan. 6. General Wood was in France when, according to the letter from Cox's father, his son was sent to Europe, and General Wood could not therefore have been personally responsible for the act. When Mr. Taylor gave notice of his intention to move that General Wood be cited for contempt there was no response from the court or counsel for the United States.

FRENCH FIGHT UNSELFISHLY

Reserves Always Sent Where They Are Needed, Aubert Declares.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 18.—Although Alsace-Lorraine is by no means the only obstacle to peace, no peace can come, Louis Aubert of the French High Commission declared in a speech here tonight, until the territory wrested from France nearly half a century ago is restored.

"The return of Alsace-Lorraine to France," he said, "would commemorate the victory of the principles for which we are all fighting. When Herr von Kühlmann or Count Czernin proclaims that Alsace-Lorraine is the only obstacle to peace, do not believe him. But no peace is possible without the return of Alsace-Lorraine to France, for the brutal severance of these French provinces was the first crime of the new German Empire against democracy, and out of that crime have come all the others that have astounded the world."

The great sacrifices France has undergone were outlined by M. Aubert in a graphic recital of what the country has done.

"Challenged to a fight to the death," said he, "we have sacrificed everything, land and men, without stint. For over three years and a half, out of a population that invasion has reduced to 35,000,000, France has mobilized 7,500,000 men. Previous to the last drive 3,000,000 French soldiers were holding more than two-thirds of the western front. We have never fought a separate selfish war. Our reserves in man power and material we have placed in the hour of need at the disposal of Serbia and Italy, and today in Picardy and Flanders our divisions are fighting side by side with our galliant allies, the British."

CREW OF THE U-58 HERE AS PRISONERS

Thirty-eight Germans, Captured by Destroyer Fanning, to be Interned in Georgia.

ROLL IS SENT TO BERLIN

Capt. Lieut. Amberger, Commander of Craft Which Was Sunk Last November, Heads the Party.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of the Navy, gave out tonight the names of thirty-eight German prisoners, all of them members of the crew of the submarine U-58, who were landed at an American port two days ago and are awaiting transfer to the army prison camp at Camp McPherson, near Atlanta, Ga. The prisoners will be taken to the camp under guard of soldiers of the regular army.

There are five German officers in the party, one of them Capt. Lieut. Gustav Amberger, who commanded the U-58 when that craft was wrecked by a depth bomb dropped from the destroyer Fanning in the early dawn of Nov. 17 last. After the U-58 went to the bottom, and after the crew of the Fanning had picked up several life buoys, which bore on one side the word "Kaiser" and the other side the word "Gott," the prisoners were taken to an English port and turned over to the British authorities.

By an agreement entered into between the American and British Governments prisoners taken by American naval vessels are to be held in England until suitable opportunities for their transfer to the United States. By another agreement entered into between the Navy and War Departments all prisoners of war are taken in charge by the army when they arrive in America.

The prisoners are:

Anberger, Gustav, Captain Lieutenant.
Von Ritgen, Otto, Oberlieutenant zur See.
Schroether, Paul, marine oberengineer.
Muller, Frederick, Lieutenant zur See, Reserve.
Ropke, Henry, Warrant Officer Nav. and Dec.
Rauscher, Ernest, chief seaman.
Sporhase, Albert, torpedoman, fireman.
Kadding, Reinhardt, seaman.
Schiffers, Peter, fireman.
Trumpold, Paul, shipfitter, fireman.
Petersen, Carl, fireman.
Brauns, Bernhardt, seaman.
Selberg, Willie Carl, fireman.
Bronheim, Victor, boatswain's mate.
Sammuller, Michael, chief machinist's mate.
Kretzschmer, Kurt, wireless operator.
Thiel, Herman, chief seaman.
Litwin, Franz, boatswain.
Gregen, Hugo, fireman.
Haupt, Arthur, boatswain's mate.
Grunert, Ernst, machinist.
Renz, Fritz, boatswain's mate.
Birk, Edward, machinist's mate.
Olcschweg, Willie, electrician, wireless.
Wittenbechar, Berthold, chief fireman.
Ueckermann, Walter, telegrapher, radio.
Steinern, Joseph, fireman, electrician.
Bachmann, Fritz, fireman.
Schultz, Fritz, seaman.
Kuhlmann, Herman, seaman.
Meyar, Philip, fireman.
Wiseman, Henry, chief machinist's mate.
Rippe, Herman, machinists' mate.
Stoffels, Han, electrician.
Kruger, Ernst, electrician.
Schneider, Kurt, machinist.
Simons, Adolph, fireman, oiler.
Bush, Adolph, seaman.

The Government has notified the German Government, through the Spanish Ambassador, of the arrival of the prisoners in this country. The names of the men and the disposition made of them was communicated to the Berlin Government.

The destroyer Fanning, the vessel which captured the Germans, is commanded by Lieut. Commander A. S. Carpender. The submarine's destruction was due, in large part, to the alertness of a young American bluejacket, Coxswain David D. Loomis, who first sighted the periscope at 4:16 o'clock in the morning of Nov. 17.

POLICE NEED PUBLIC'S HELP

Inspector Underhill Calls for Closer Watch on Enemy Aliens.

Warning the public that there are 40,000 alien enemies registered in New York, and no doubt many more not registered, Inspector Thomas B. Underhill, head of the Division of National Defense of the Mayor's Committee, said yesterday that it is almost impossible for the police to identify these individual enemy aliens, and urged every loyal citizen to report any one he had reason to suspect.

The public is not giving the police enough assistance, which for their own protection they ought to give, Inspector Underhill declared.

AMERICA AFTER THE WAR

By AN AMERICAN JURIST

This book is made up of those special articles recently contributed to The New York Times which have already drawn excited comment from an amazed Europe. Far-sighted American readers who now have the opportunity of reading them all together and so catching the full force of the author's audacity, logic and vision in one unified impression will be even more astounded.

The author, who for reasons that cannot now be revealed, is remaining anonymous, draws a tentative sketch of what America will look like after, and as a result of, the war. He sees a great centralization of power at Washington, with the vast subsidiary changes which that means all over the country. He sees radical readjustments with Mexico, Canada, the West Indies and the powerful Pacific countries; a huge standing army and a great navy; possible financial stress and industrial unrest; a straining of democracy that may not hold. No patriotic American can afford to miss this book.

COAL RESERVE FAILS AS ORDERS POUR IN

Householders Want 3,000,000 Tons for Next Winter, but Can't Get It.

SUPPLY IS BELOW NORMAL

Consumers Say 30-Cent Reduction Has Not Been Made by Retailers.

Eighteen days have passed since the National Fuel Administration advised all consumers of domestic sizes of coal to put in next Winter's supply, and there are today, according to County Fuel Administrator Reeve Schley, orders for 3,000,000 tons on the books of retailers in this city which cannot be filled. The householder responded to the call of the Administration, but there was not enough coal coming in to fill advance orders. The local Administration estimates the arrival of only enough anthracite to meet the normal daily demand. If this condition persists, Mr. Schley said, it will mean that New York will face next Winter's cold weather with very little reserve.

Local officials say the railroads are not keeping deliveries up, and this is due, they say, to the car shortage. The report of Regional Director of Railroads A. H. Smith showed that in twenty-four hours ended at 6 o'clock yesterday morning 1,220 cars of anthracite were dumped at tidewater terminals and there were 3,136 cars of anthracite in the yards. Within twenty-four hours of the tidewater ports there were 889 cars and within forty-eight hours 500 cars of anthracite.

On April 1 it was announced that there was a thirty-cent-a-ton reduction in coal, and that it would be in effect during the warm months. There was complaint here that dealers were selling coal at prices that prevailed in Winter, and that none of the promised saving was in effect. Reports show that good quality coal is being sold here for as high as $9.50, with about a dollar less for lower grades of stove coal.

Mr. Schley pointed out yesterday that the marginal retail profits on anthracite coal for this city are $2.25 a ton on domestic sizes. Thus coal that is sold at the mines for, say, $4.25 a ton, will come to the retailer at about $6.10, the added amount being to cover the transportation, handling, and delivery, insurance and war tax. Now to this price the dealer is allowed to add his margin of profit, or $2.25, which would amount to $8.60 a ton. The Government has given the railroads permission to charge 15 cents a ton more for hauling, and this reduces the benefit to the consumer, and Mr. Schley estimates the actual reduction over last Winter at 35 cents a ton.

An inquiry into coal prices by The Journal of Commerce gives this result:

Uptown Manhattan—Ordinary quality stove size, $8.55; egg, $8.80.

East Central Manhattan—White ash stove, $8.65; red ash stove, $9; egg, $8.90; white ash stove, $8.75; red ash stove, $9.50; egg, $8.75.

Brooklyn—White ash, $8.90; egg, $8.75; white ash, $9; egg, $8.75.

Westchester—Egg and stove, $10.75; pea, $9.75, delivered. The price is $1 less at the yards.

Mr. Schley was asked whether complaint had reached him that dealers were using all sorts of subterfuges to raise the price. It was reported that in some instances they were charging the price for delivering the coal as an additional charge. Mr. Schley said that no such complaint had reached him, but he served warning on all retailers that such charges were illegal. The dealers are allowed to make an additional charge for labor if the coal is delivered in the cellar of the consumer. This charge is authorized at from 25 to 50 cents a ton.

The Coal Age in discussing the present anthracite situation will say today:

"Supplies of the domestic sizes of anthracite coal are short, and the efforts made by a number of dealers to stock up proved unavailing. And this in spite of the fact that March was heralded as the banner month in the history of the anthracite industry. The situation is serious. Great improvement must be shewn in the near future if the plans to have a large tonnage stocked this Summer are to be carried out."

TO REVISE COAL PRICES.

Aministrators to Inform Consumers What They Must Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The Fuel Administration announced tonight that all county Fuel Administrators had been instructed to revise their price lists as of April 1 and make the figures public, so that consumers might know the price they are to pay for their coal. These official prices will apply to all orders which have been placed.

Reports that orders were in excess of the supply of coal on hand have been received by the Fuel Administration from many of the large cities, including New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. In this connection it was explained tonight that the falling off in production and the lack of transportation facilities had made it impossible to move enough coal to fill all orders at this time.

HIPPODROME ACTORS HURT BEFORE 5,000

Machinery of Flying Military Novelty Breaks, Throwing Performers to Stage.

BOY IN WINGS ALSO INJURED

Most of the Audience Applauded, Seeming to Think Fall Was Part of the Show.

Two actors were hurt on the stage of the Hippodrome last night when a piece of machinery on which they were performing broke. A property boy standing in the wings close by was hit by a falling bit of the mechanism and suffered a possible fracture of the skull. The 5,000 persons in the house were apparently unaware that anything out of the ordinary had happened.

The accident occurred in the second scene of the second act of "Cheer Up." The piece in which it happened is called by theatrical people a military novelty. An armored motor car rolls slowly out on the stage. To the car is attached a tower, resembling the skeleton masts of a warship. At the top of the tower, possibly thirty feet from the stage, is extended a crossbeam, at one end of which is a trapeze, and the other a tiny craft resembling a torpedo with a propeller, and a seat hollowed out for a man to sit in. The revolutions of the propeller send the whole mechanism whirling at great speed.

The act is owned by the Mirano Brothers, and Axel Mirano was on the trapeze last night at 9:30 o'clock when the motor car came on the stage. Eugene Flaun, his partner, was seated in the tiny car. Both men wore olive drab uniforms, to appear as American soldiers. One waved an American flag and the other a French flag.

Everything went off perfectly in the act, and the audience was engrossed with the scene. At the very end, however, when the machinery was going at top speed, and both the performers were waving their flags and bowing to the people in the dark expanse out across the footlights, the kingpin holding the beam gave way, and the two sections dropped to the stage.

Mirano was hurled clear around the machine and fell with his head resting against the front wheels of the motor car in full view of the audience. He was almost over the footlights and a little more force would have precipitated him into the front seats of the orchestra. Flaun, in the whirling car, was held by the comparatively slow falling of the beam and did not suffer such a fall as his companion. Mirano suffered a fractured shoulder and possible internal injuries, while Flaun was only bruised.

The car in which Flaun was seated, however, in its descent struck a property boy, Henry Casey, who was standing in the wings waiting to catch the flags which Mirano and Flaun would throw him as the act closed. His head was badly cut and he may have suffered a fractured skull.

William G. Storr, stage manager, sent a hurry call for an ambulance and Casey and Mirano were sent to Bellevue Hospital.

The accident came at the very end of the act and most of the audience seemed to think that it was part of the show. Several women screamed as Mirano fell and lay huddled against the motor just in front of them, but the big curtain quickly shut off a view of the machine and in a few moments the performance continued with the next act as though nothing had happened.

Fall Kills Consul General's Wife.

Mrs. Theresa Bengoechea, wife of Dr. Ramon Bengoechea, who for the last twelve years has been Consul General of Guatemala, fell from the window of her apartment on the fourth floor of 100 St. Nicholas Avenue to the street yesterday morning and was killed. Mrs Bengoechea had been ill for some time. She went to the window while her nurse and her maid were absent on errands for her. Beside her husband she leaves a son, Ramon, and a daughter, Mary.

NEW FIGHT FOR SUFFRAGE.

National Association Plans to Assure Ratification of Amendment.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 18.—Following an optimistic report as to the outlook for passage by the Senate of the Susan B. Anthony amendment to the Federal Constitution by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National Woman Suffrage Association, the Executive Board of that organization, in session here today, devoted its time to plans intended to assure ratification by States of the amendment. The plans were based on the individual needs of the States and were worked out in detail. Members of the board from practically every State in the Union are in attendance at the council, which will continue through tomorrow.

During the day the board decided to send Mrs. Raymond Brown of New York, Vice President of the national organization, to France at an early date to reorganize the hospital unit of the association. This unit, which was in the direct path of the German drive, has been scattered by the gradual retirement of the British forces, it was reported.

At a luncheon for Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Honorary President of the Suffrage Association and Chairman of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense, Dr. Shaw told of the work of this committee. Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York urged the women of Indiana to organize themselves more thoroughly for war work, and Mrs. Catt made a plea to the women of Indiana to "spread the gospel of Americanism."

Liberty Bonds are the real weapons for Victory

We have made a start on the long hard road to Victory.

Our men are fighting at the front in France.

Our American industries have accomplished prodigious results in building up a war machine to furnish munitions and supplies.

But we have only begun.

We must do more and more.

This is not a war of armies but of nations in which every citizen must do his part.

Every worker in our industries is truly fighting in this war. Every man, woman and child who gives of substance and savings is adding to the national power.

The foundation of all our vast war-making machine is the Liberty Loan.

Money is needed to build more and more ships; to furnish food and guns and powder and transport and airplanes; to raise and equip new armies.

We must oversubscribe this Third Liberty Loan and do it quickly.

We must show the courage that is in us.

We must show a cheerful willingness to make sacrifices for our boys in the trenches.

Soviets Send Out Alarm for Navy Commander Who Gave Up Narva to Germans.

ATROCITIES IN FINLAND

Protest Made to Powers by Reds Against Executions by German-Led White Guards.

BY ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, April 17.—Former Commissary Dybenko, who was on parole in Moscow until a commission of inquiry had finished sifting the evidence of his alleged unnecessary abandonment of Narva to the Germans, has disappeared, and with him Mme. Kollontay, who stood surety for him. A proclamation to the Soviets and Soviet troops demanding his instant seizure wherever found is signed not only by Krylenko and a member of the Naval College, but also by two sailors from Dybenko's own detachments, who, it will be remembered, demanded that they be represented on the commission to insure fair treatment of their late commander.

Yesterday the Red Finn leader, Tokoi, brought me a protest against the barbarous behavior of German-directed White Guards, who in the Tammerfors district, after capturing a number of Red Guards, killed every Red officer down to company commanders, then took out and shot every fifteenth man of the rank and file—this although the Reds have scrupulously treated every captured White Guard as an honorable prisoner of war.

The Red Finns today are sending their protest to representatives of all the powers, asking that the powers shall insist that General Mannerheim's troops treat their captives as prisoners of war and release without further maltreatment persons serving the Red Cross, aged folk, and women and children.

They also ask that political refugees from Finland be allowed refuge in other countries, and that the powers will make an official statement that the forces of the Finnish Socialist Republic are not terrorists, but regular troops.

Tokoi, himself a typical Finnish workingman, talks little English, but closely followed the words of his interpreter and corrected him immediately when the interpreter slightly altered the sense of Tokoi's statements. His simple object was to get things accurately stated. He is a revolutionary of quite a different type from the Russian.

Mme. Alexandra Kollantay, reported to have gone with former Commissary of the Navy Dybenko, was the first woman minister of State in the world. She held the portfolio of Public Welfare from November 10, 1917, until March 24, 1918, when she resigned with a number of Left Social Revolutionaries in protest against the Brest Litovsk peace.

This was on the very day that Dybenko was arrested by order of the Commissaries at Moscow. Dispatches at the time said he was accused of having ordered the fleet not to oppose the German occupation of Odessa. On March 27 he was released on bail, his surety, according to the cablegram reporting the fact, being his wife, a detachment of sailors, and his own parole.

Immediately after her resignation Mme. Kollontay started for Western Europe to make a crusade on behalf of international socialism, accompanied by a dozen assistants and several tons of literature. After trying in vain to enter Sweden via Finland and being stopped by the White Guard, the party set sail from Helsingfors, in a small ship convoyed by a Russian gunboat. The commander of the gunboat was not in sympathy with Mme. Kollontay's propaganda and is said to have led her vessel into a mine field where he abandoned it.

The party, after drifting about on icefloes and losing all their literature, reached the Aland Islands and later Moscow. On account of her complaint of the treatment she had received at the Aland Islands, the Bolshevist Government decided to deny to Sweden the right to send diplomatic couriers through Russian territory.

Mme. Kollontay is the divorced wife of a Russian general and about 28 years of age. At the time she was made Minister of Public Welfare, the official publicity bureau of the Bolshevist Government, sent out a long notice of her career, which contained this phrase:

"Mme. Kollontay, who is a woman of very attractive appearance, addressed large crowds during her lecture tour of the United States under the auspices of the German Socialist Federation of the Socialist Party."

She left the United States in February, 1917, after a sojourn of several months. She is well known as the author of books chiefly expounding the relation of the state to maternity.

GERMANS FIGHT SHY OF ANGLO-AMERICAN FLEET

Large Naval Forces Near Failed to Interfere in Cattegat Raid by British.

LONDON, April 18.—The British naval success against German mine-sweepers in the Cattegat recently, says The Daily Telegraph, is sufficient answer to the Germans, who say that the British Grand Fleet is in hiding.

Contrasting the British fleet in the Cattegat with the German raids in the Strait of Dover, The Daily Telegraph points out that while the Germans in their bases on the Belgian coast are only twenty miles from the strait, the exploit in the Cattegat was a carefully planned operation conducted more than 500 miles from the nearest point on the British coast.

"Such a sweep," it adds, "can be made only by a power in real control of the sea confronted by an enemy who will not risk protecting his small craft and suspecting that such intervention might be the prelude to a general action which he desires to avoid. The Germans had large naval forces near the scene on this particular Monday. They did not send them out, but, on the contrary, permitted ten trawlers to be destroyed virtually under their very eyes."

The newspaper then discusses the theory that the Germans might be inviting naval action near their minefields and coast defenses, and says that all such suggestions have no foundation among those who have knowledge of naval conditions.

The enemy, it says, has gained little new strength for use in the North Sea by the Baltic situation, while British superiority has been increased since the battle of Jutland by the co-operation of the American forces, and the entire naval strength of the United States would be available if necessary. Moreover, if the German naval forces were to be employed advantageously as the right wing of the German Army they should have been thrown in before and not during or after the opening of the battle in France.

"If a naval battle," it continues, "could by any possibility have been decided in Germany's favor she would have been saved the necessity of pressing forward her army, and would have been spared hundreds and thousands of casualties which, on her own confession, she could not afford.

"A battle on the sea is fought simply to gain the right to use the seas for military or economic purposes. The Germans have wanted to attain that end for three years and eight months, and if they have not done so while the odds against them were less heavy than they are today, the reason is on the surface.

"Still, we can dismiss from our minds all unsupported rumors. The watch by sea was never maintained more efficiently or more effectively than the Grand Fleet is maintaining it at this moment."

GERMANS PRAISE STONE.

Press Applauds His Opposition to Wilson War Policy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 18.—The German press comments on the death of Senator William Stone of Missouri.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says that President Wilson is now freed of the most energetic war opponent It praises Mr. Stone's "anti-war policy" in America, saying that he did every thing in his power to prevent the declaration of war.

The Cologne Gazette calls Senator Stone an honest American and says that his death leaves a gap in a circle of Americans who have opposed "Wilson's crazy politics" and that without his influence Mr. Wilson would have gone to war much earlier. The paper says that after the diplomatic break with Germany the President tried to declare war at once, but that, thanks to Stone, the retiring Congress adjourned without fulfilling Mr. Wilson's wish. It asserts that if only Stone had been in Washington in those hectic days before the declaration, war might never have been declared.

WOMEN'S VOTE WAS SPLIT.

Observers Say They Did Not Change Results in "Dry" Elections.

ALBANY, April 18.—When the result of the local option election at Geneva became known today, showing that the city had been carried by the "wets," thus making twenty cities in the State voting against the saloon and nineteen for the sale of intoxicating liquors, politicians turned their attention to an analysis of the votes.

Great interest was shown in the large increase in voters, due to the enfranchisement of the women, but many expressed the opinion that the addition of the women voters had not changed results, but had simply enlarged the total vote cast.

The sale of intoxicants must cease on Oct. 1 in the cities which voted dry.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 18.—District Attorney Moore began an investigation today of alleged repeating by women voters at Tonawanda. A no-license leader made the charge that six women taken from Buffalo voted in more than one district under assumed names. The wets carried both Tonawanda and North Tonawanda.

STRAIGHT from the heaving combats of Flanders and Picardy comes to us a message of Faith. It brings calm assurance of the outcome.

It is as if the same Voice which spoke to Gideon of Manasseh speaks now again to Ferdinand Foch, to Pershing and to Haig. And they speak to us as he did to the people of Canaan.

We fight the same fight today as did Gideon when with 300 men and with God-given strategy he three times defeated the Midianites, the destroyers of the east, the threat of whose armies had hung over Israel for years.

It is an hour for Faith—Faith in our purpose, in our armies, in our allies.

It is an hour for force, the force of our confidence, the force of our determination, the force of our wealth.

Newark High School Teacher Finds Philip Gibbs Dispatches Stimulate Interest.

THE NEW YORK TIMES dispatches from Philip Gibbs, at the British battle-front, are daily used in the "discussion of current events," a part of the history course in the South Side High School at Newark, whose pupils number between 1,000 and 1,500. Miss Helen G. Important events and incidents of the Great Battle, or events related to it, have been reported first in THE NEW YORK TIMES. There is no other record like this in the history of journalism.

Among these events were:

Foch's selection as Generalissimo.

Czernin's famous speech, with its charge against Clemenceau, which produced the greatest diplomatic sensation of the war. It was transmitted to THE TIMES at a cost of 30 cents a word for cable tolls.

Defeat of the British Fifth Army and removal of its Commander, Gen. Gough.

Seventeen special correspondents now serve THE NEW YORK TIMES at war centres.

Subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan recorded yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York amounted to $20,800,550, making the district's total for the ten days $318,249,850. This compares with $249,598,450, the figures for the first ten days of the previous loan campaign. Thus far the New York district has subscribed for about 35 per cent. of its $900,000,000 quota, set by the Treasury, and about 21 per cent. of the $1,500,000,000 mark which the committee has fixed as its goal. In the remaining fifteen business days of the campaign applications will have to come in at the rate of $78,800,000 a day if the aim of the committee is to be attained.

In the current week subscriptions have declined continuously. While last Friday the total subscriptions filed with the various banks in the district aggregated $31,512,400, the total for Monday of this week was $23,230,850, and it was followed by $21,774,400 on Tuesday and $20,800,550 on Wednesday, which is the latest date of which the Reserve Bank has received reports. Wednesday's figures are the lowest thus far in the campaign, excepting the $14,378,800 recorded for Saturday, which was a half-holiday.

Loan Committee in Session.

The Liberty Loan Committee, of which Governor Benjamin Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank is Chairman, had a long session yesterday at which the progress of the campaign was discussed. Contrary to expectations, the committee did not issue a public statement, but it was said that all the members expressed the view that it was essential "to speed up" the filing of subscriptions.

The following table gives the quotas, yesterday's recorded subscriptions, and totals to date for each of the sub-divisions of the New York District:

Long Island, outside of New York City, has thus far made the best showing. It has already subscribed to 70 per cent. of its quota. The percentage for the New Jersey counties is 46, while the Buffalo district has to date supplied only 17 per cent. of its quota. In New York City, the Borough of Queens has the best record, with 54 per cent. of its quota subscribed. Brooklyn comes next with 45 per cent; Richmond is third with 42 per cent., Manhattan fourth with 35 per cent., and the Bronx fifth with 33 per cent.

According to figures prepared by the Metropolitan Canvass Committee, 78,276 individual subscriptions were collected in Manhattan, Bronx, and Brooklyn during the first seven days of the campaign, the same totaling more than $13,000,000 in amount. In the Second Liberty Loan campaign the canvassers brought in about 95,000 subscriptions.

Among the subscriptions announced yesterday was $5,000,000 by the American Sugar Refining Company, only half of which is to be placed in this district, and one of $4,000,000 by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, of which the New York district will be credited with $1,000,000. Speyer & Co. entered a subscription for $1,000,000, and Henry C. Frick also filed an application for $1,000,000.

Meeting at Cotton Exchange.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange, at the close of an unusually active market yesterday, held an enthusiastic Liberty Loan meeting, which was addressed by Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company. There was some music, and then Arthur Lehman, Chairman of the Exchange's Liberty Loan Committee, called for subscriptions. More than seventy of the members responded, the total for the day amounting to $2,580,000. Following are some of the applications listed:

|---|---|
| Lehman Brothers | $500,000 |
| Shearson, Hammill & Co. | 400,000 |
| Gwathmey & Co. | 310,000 |
| J. S. Bache & Co. | 250,000 |
| Sigmund M. Lehman | 100,000 |
| George H. McFadden & Brother | 100,000 |
| Jenks, Gwynne & Co. | 100,000 |
| Daniel Schnakenberg | 93,000 |
| Hubbard Bros. & Co. | 50,000 |
| Stephen M. Weld & Co. | 50,000 |
| Pynchon & Co. | 50,000 |
| H. Hentz & Co. | 50,000 |

| Arthur Lehman | 50,000 |
| Rhd. Siedenburg & Co. | 20,000 |

| J. W. Jay & Co. | 20,000 |
| Hopkins, Dwight & Co. | 20,000 |
| Moyse & Holmes | 20,000 |

The feature of Mr. Mitchell's speech was the statement that in view of the increased cost of commodities—prices having advanced more than 81 per cent. since 1914, and are likely to advance still more—the Government was obliged to issue loans for approximately double the amount it would have required if conditions were normal. He said he believed that in ten years, after the Government paid the principal of the Third Liberty Loan, prices would have returned to the pre-war basis, and consequently the $100 that the subscriber would get from the Government would buy for him about double the amount of goods which he could buy with $100 today. In other words, Mr. Mitchell argued that the purchaser of bonds would in reality not only receive his principal and interest, but an additional 100 per cent. of his principal, if one measured money by its purchasing power.

The East Side Division of the Liberty Loan Committee held a rally in Cooper Union last night and about $40,000 was subscribed to the loan. Samuel C. Lamport, the Chairman, made a patriotic appeal for those present to subscribe to the Liberty bonds. Other speakers were Justice Aaron J. Levy, Max Pines, Secretary of the United Hebrew Trades, and Judge Rosalsky.

A galaxy of operatic stars is scheduled to appear at noon today on the steps of the Sub-Treasury and plead and sing for subscriptions to the Liberty Loan. The program calls for Geraldine Farrar, Pasquale Amato, Antonio Scotti, Rosina Galli, Lucien Muratore, and Yvette Guilbert. At the Liberty Theatre, operated by the Stage Women's War Relief, the speakers will be James Montgomery Flagg, Hy Mayer, Rube Goldberg, and Clare S. Briggs, the cartoonists.

There will be a patriotic rally in the main gymnasium of Columbia University tonight. Bishop David H. Greer is expected to preside, and the speakers will include Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey and A. B. Leach. Mme. Gluck and Mme. Ardini will sing.

Liberty Chorus to Sing.

The Mendelssohn Club will sing tonight at the 69th Regiment Armory where the "Liberty Land" war exhibit is being held. On Monday evening the Liberty Chorus of 1,000 voices will sing at the armory. Hereafter tickets will be required for entrance to "Liberty Land," but as heretofore the exhibition is open to the public without charge. Free tickets may be obtained through any of the various Liberty Loan organizations at two bond booths just outside of the armory. Two entertainments, one at 2:30 and the other at 7:30 will be held daily.

Sir John Foster Fraser, of the British Mission, will be the chief speaker at 4:30 P. M. today at the opening of the Liberty Bond booth at the Union League Club, Fifth Avenue and 39th Street.

The whole Hippodrome organization, from Houdini and the elephants down to the last usher, will participate in a Liberty Loan parade scheduled for tomorrow. The children of the public schools will hold parades in different parts of Manhattan today.

Lieutenant Georges Flachaire, a Frenchman who has won several decorations for daring flights, will make a trip in his airplane tomorrow from the Mineola aviation field to Van Cortlandt Park. He expects to make a landing near the Van Cortlandt terminal of the subway at about 3:30 P. M.

All Surrogate Judges in the Second Federal Reserve District have been requested by the Liberty Loan Committee, through Gilbert B. Bogart, Assistant Director of Distribution, to call to the attention of executors, trustees and administrators of estates the advisability of investing trust funds in Liberty bonds. The judges have agreed to send out letters to thousands of persons who have charge of estates.

Message from Secretary Daniels.

In response to a request for statements on the Liberty Loan, the Publicity Department has received the following from Secretary of the Navy Daniels:

> Buy Liberty bonds because we need every bit of tonnage possible to win the great war of civilization and democracy.

Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, wrote:

> Buy Liberty bonds because this war is waged by democracy for democracy—and democracy must finance it.

Complaints have come from various neighborhoods of the district that the Liberty Loan posters of the Liberty Loan Committee are being mutilated or torn down. The response of the committee is that if patriotic citizens will lodge with it information against persons guilty of this interference with the flotation of the Government's Third Liberty Loan the offenders will be promptly prosecuted under the new Espionage act.

WILSON WROTE TO EASTMAN

President Warned Editor, Now on Trial, About Conduct During War.

Max Eastman, who was editor of the magazine known as the Masses and who, with four co-defendants, is on trial in the Federal District Court charged with being concerned in a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the United States, testified yesterday afternoon that he had been an associate professor at Columbia University, but had resigned to write for periodicals and promote what he termed his ideas as to changes in political life. He first became identified with the Masses in 1911. Morris Hillquit, his counsel, submitted to him various articles and cartoons which appeared in the Masses after this country entered the war, which articles and cartoons, in the opinion of the Government, constitute violations of the Espionage act. He disclaimed responsibility for what appeared except such articles as he himself wrote, and said the contributing editors exercised the right of having their own productions printed without consulting any of the editors.

"Have you ever discussed the matter of nonresistance with President Wilson?" Mr. Hillquit asked the witness.

"I have."

"Did you ever receive a letter from him on the subject?"

"Yes, I did." Mr. Hillquit then asked Eastman to produce the letter, which read as follows:

> I thank you very warmly for your generous appreciation of my reply to the Pope and I wish that I could agree with those parts of your letter which concern the other matters we were discussing when you were down here. I think a time of war must be regarded as wholly exceptional and that it is legitimate to regard things which would in ordinary circumstances be innocent as very dangerous to the public welfare.
> But the line is manifestly exceedingly hard to draw, and I cannot say that I have any confidence that I know how to draw it. I can only say that a line must be drawn, and that we are trying—it may be clumsily, but genuinely—to draw it without fear or favor or prejudice.

Judge Hand, on motion of counsel for the defendants, dismissed the indictment against Josephine Bell, who was indicted because of certain verses which she wrote and which were published in The Masses.

The trial will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. Mr. Eastman was still on the stand when court adjourned yesterday afternoon. He will be cross-examined today by Assistant United States District Attorney Earl B. Barnes.

LOYAL SWEDES ORGANIZE.

John Ericson League Will Combat German Propaganda Here.

To arouse the patriotism of the American citizens of Swedish origin and combat German influence among them the Metropolitan Council of the John Ericson League for Patriotic Service, composed of prominent Americans of Swedish origin, was organized on Wednesday at the Civic Club, 14 West Twelfth Street, it was announced yesterday. The John Ericson League was formed last month in Chicago, and Judge Harry Olson of Chicago was elected President of the National Council.

The purposes of the league were stated yesterday as being "to support the national war policy, to act as a clearing house for patriotic activities among citizens of Swedish origin, to work for national unification, and to promote better understanding between the people of the United States and Sweden."

It was announced that the league would co-operate to the fullest possible extent with the State Councils of National Defense, and for this purpose was planning, under Edwin Bjorkman, Director of the Scandinavian Bureau of the Committee on Public Information, and Secretary of the league, to unify the 2,500,000 American citizens of Swedish blood to participate in the struggle against Germany.

Among the officers of the Metropolitan Council of the league are Peter B. Hanson, Chairman of the Executive Committee; Charles A. Ogren, Vice Chairman; Axel Josephsson, Secretary, and Charles Edling, Treasurer.

SWEDES PROTEST DRAFT.

Legation Asks for the Release of 700 Already Called Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Several thousand Swedish subjects in this country have appealed to the Swedish Legation to aid them to escape being drafted by the United States. They have indicated that they desire to avail themselves of their Swedish nationality.

The legation has already asked the United States Government for the release of nearly 700 drafted Swedes, about 96 per cent. of whom have taken out their first citizenship papers in this country. So far about forty have been freed. More than 100 Swedes of military age have petitioned the legation for permits to return to Sweden. Since Nov. 23 the legation has made representations to the State Department in seventy of these cases.

DANIELS WINS NEW HAVEN.

Gets Hearty Welcome and Puts Loan Drive Nearly "Over Top."

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 18.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, visited New Haven today in behalf of the Liberty Loan. Reaching here at daylight in a fog, the "gallant sea dog," as he was introduced in one of the speeches, talked to a tremendous crowd of munition plant employes in a drizzle and reviewed the Yale Naval Unit between showers as part of his day's activities. He received a hearty welcome. His addresses sent this city's loan total almost "over the top."

The Secretary was met at the railroad station by Mayor Fitzgerald and Philip and Alexander Troup, and was escorted to the Troup homestead for breakfast, following which he visited the naval base here. He spoke in the square at the Winchester Arms factory at noon, and addressed a crowded luncheon at the Hotel Taft under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce at 1 o'clock. He looked over Yale University as President Hadley's guest, and reviewed the Yale Naval Battalion this afternoon. This evening he spoke to 3,000 persons in Woolsey Hall, the Yale auditorium.

In his address to the Winchester Arms employes Mr. Daniels said:

"Those who are turning out the munitions which our boys are using 'over there' are all mobilized, enlisted. When a man enlists for war he does not fall out of the ranks. He fights every day so long as there is an enemy. We must fight all the time until we have won victory, which we are sure to win."

In his speech at Woolsey Hall the Secretary said:

"The men who return from the front will rule over America, as the men of the civil war ruled their generation. One of the problems before the war, 'What shall we do with our ex-Presidents?' has been settled by President Wilson extending to ex-President Taft an invitation to become Labor Commissioner. Professor Taft was told by some one that it was below his dignity to accept this position, and he answered: 'I am not concerned so much with dignity as with duty.'

"I do not know but that ex-President Taft will be working in overalls before the war closes, and I am sure that he would wear them if he could thereby bring us nearer victory."

COLONEL PLEADS FOR LOAN.

Ex-President Urges Neighbors to Wake Up and Do Their Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 18.—"Neighbors, do your duty—buy Liberty bonds," Colonel Theodore Roosevelt shouted this evening as he faced 3,000 persons who had gathered at a Liberty Loan meeting. A service flag for this town was unfurled.

"We have got to win this war if it takes 5,000,000 men," he said; "every one of us has got a duty to perform. We must back up the men at the front. A man or woman who does not do his duty is a traitor to this country, and we at home can do our duty by buying bonds. They are a good investment from an investment point of view. If they are not good, why, Uncle Sam will 'bust' up, that's all."

The Colonel spoke of the lack of guns and airplanes abroad and of his horror of the pacifist and conscientious objector.

In the afternoon, Colonel Rosevelt made an address before the Women's Civic League, of which Mrs. Thomas L. Clarke is Chairman.

"Every American today should feel deeply, for this country has not done all it ought to do," he said. "Our causes are now being defended by England and France. We must wake up and do our duty. We must put fighting men on the line. The mother has her part to play. She must send him off with a high heart, expect him to do what his forefathers did. She who whines and doesn't want her son to go, is as unfit for citizenship as a slacker.

"This is now our war, and if it wasn't for England and France we would have been trampled on like Belgium. The German invader would have been here, in New York City and Long Island, and right here in Oyster Bay, because for one reason, and that is because I am here."

This last was said with a smile.

HOWELLS STICKS TO BUYING

Tells Liberty Loan Boosters He Is Too Old for Press Agent Job.

William Dean Howells does not care at this late date to enter into a new field of authorship, namely, the writing of "press agent" or "publicity" copy. The Treasury Department tried to get him to do some work of this character for the Liberty Loan, but he respectfully refused. Here is the letter he wrote:

"I am so unused to writing any sort of publicity material that I do not think I could do anything of that sort, even for such a good cause as the Third Liberty Loan. But if you care for the fact, I am glad to say that I have invested largely (for an author) in the first and second bonds, and I hope to buy even recklessly of the third, which I think has an increasing claim on our resources. Our money is the least that we can give to our country, especially when our country pays us back so handsomely in interest on our patriotic loan."

It was suggested to Mr. Howells that an article along the lines of his letter would be of great interest, and to this suggestion he replied:

"It is supposing too much of a man nearing the end of his eighty-first year to suppose he can recall what he said a week ago. I cannot put my forgotten letter into publicity form for you, but it will be the best thing to quote it as it stands as coming from one 'True Friend,' which I will believe you are, if you are not too stubborn. In this shape it will have the best effect with the public."

And that's the story of Howells's publicity work.

FOR TAXES BY INSTALMENTS

Would Help Liberty Loan, Congressman Fuller Tells House.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Legislation to permit payment of excess profits and income taxes in installments as a means of increasing Liberty Loan subscriptions was urged in the House today by Representative Fuller of Illinois, who read letters from Loan Committees setting forth that the existing necessity of paying the full amount of taxes in June was retarding the purchase of bonds.

"We want this Liberty Loan to go over the top, and it would help if some provision were made to pay taxes in installments," Mr. Fuller said.

SAYS BOY WAS POISONED.

Liberty Loan Speaker Asserts Action Followed Threat.

Speaking last night before a large crowd at the "Liberty Land" war exhibit at the 69th Regiment Armory, Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, D. P. O'Brien of Hoboken, a Liberty bond salesman, startled the audience by declaring that his four-year-old son had been poisoned following his receipt of an anonymous letter in which the writer threatened to poison one of his children if O'Brien did not cease his activities for the Liberty Loan and if he persisted in expressing his strong feelings against Germany and the Germans.

"A woman came up to one of my twin boys while he was playing on the street and gave him poisoned candy," said Mr. O'Brien. "A few hours later my boy began raving in delirium. That lasted for some time, but we gave him medical attention, and he is better now.

"It is bad enough to fight grown-up men on the battlefields of Europe, but when it comes to attacking a four-year-old boy it is beyond my comprehension."

It was estimated that 10,000 persons attended the exhibition yesterday.

Whitman to Aid Celebration Here.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 18.—Governor Whitman has announced that he has turned over the entire New York Guard of the State to the various local committees to promote the sale of Liberty Loan bonds. The Governor will go to New York on Saturday, where the principal New York Guard Liberty Loan Day celebration will be held.

PRESIDENT ASKS SUPPORT OF LOAN

fore the sales quoted, aggregating $16,549,650, or 79 per cent., represent the rural districts.

Illinois, too, while it has sales aggregating $12,851,150, with a 70 per cent. mark, gives no uneasiness. The larger towns have not reported. East St. Louis, Quincy, Cairo, Jacksonville, and other good-sized cities will carry the State through with an oversubscription.

Kentucky, without the Louisville figures, shows sales of $10,492,950, with a percentage of 68. Mississippi, without a single town of 15,000 population or more, has subscribed $6,038,500, and has a 65 per cent. mark. Tennessee, with a 50 per cent. mark and sales reported of $4,914,250, is in no danger, the State Chairman declared. He said Memphis only began its campaign yesterday, and it would go over before the week was out.

St. Louis and St. Louis County are low, with a 42 per cent. mark and sales aggregating $16,960,000. The organization is good, however, and it is predicted that the city will go over the mark.

The Dallas district, which is running second in percentage, reports wonderful support from the rural element. This is considered the more remarkable because of drought conditions in Texas.

Chicago, which is running third in the percentage list, shows a twenty-four-hour gain of $20,000,000. One of the big features in this district is the subscriptions of railway employes. On April 16 R. H. Aishton, Regional Railway Director for the Chicago District, reported that they had subscribed $17,934,685.

The States of Kansas and Oklahoma are engaged in a race in the Kansas City district. Oklahoma's total is now $12,595,650, and Kansas has $12,475,900. That part of Missouri lying in the Kansas City district, exclusive of the City of Kansas City, is over the top, with near $2,000,000 to spare. Figures for that part of Missouri are $9,628,800. Kansas City alone has $15,000,000. Colorado's total has reached $7,820,500, Nebraska's $10,683,450, Wyoming's $2,172,450, and New Mexico's $661,000.

Liberty Loan Paul Reveres.

"Tonight, the eve of the anniversary of the battle of Lexington," says a Treasury Department statement, "five twentieth century Paul Reveres will ride from Wichita, Kan., over various highways, carrying a message from Chairman C. L. Davidson to district and county Chairmen. Instead of horses, automobiles will be used, and speakers will be carried to spread the Liberty Loan message among rural residents. Each car will carry a Boy Scout bugler to announce its arrival. The message which will be distributed broadcast follows:

"'A bond in every home! The war isn't over; neither is the loan campaign. Every idle dollar is an enemy alien. Put every county over the top.'"

The San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank awarded an honor flag to the city of Tacoma. The number of honor communities in that district is now 235. The City of San Francisco is far ahead in its subscriptions, compared with the second loan. Northern California, exclusive of San Francisco, already has 50,700 individual subscriptions.

Atlanta declared in a report tonight that it had high hopes of increasing its percentage within a few days. All committees are working hard in an effort to boost sales. The special war exhibit trains are appealing so strongly to the people that application was made today to continue one of the trains beyond its schedule.

New York has awarded 167 honor flags, thirty-eight communities going over the top on Wednesday.

A message from the Minneapolis Federal Reserve Bank indicates that 90 out of 314 counties in that district have reported that their allotment is oversubscribed. Splendid rains, which have benefited the crops, but retarded bond salesmen, have prevented other counties from completing their task. The intensive campaigns in Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth are just getting under way. It is predicted that the district will exceed its quota by a big margin.

Leads in Honor Communities.

The Cleveland Federal Reserve district continues to lead in the number of honor communities, its total having jumped to 391. The subscriptions in the Cleveland district are approaching the $100,000,000 mark. The City of Cleveland has $28,989,950; Cincinnati, $17,600,000. Cincinnati expects to reach its quota before the end of this week. Its individual subscriptions number 29,500.

New England is believed to lead all districts in the number of individual subscribers, already having 142,711. This is an increase of 24,000 for a single day. Two hundred and forty-five New England communities have reported oversubscriptions. Seventy-three of them are in New Hampshire, sixty-seven in Maine, forty in Vermont, and the remainder scattering between Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Reports from virtually every section of the country indicate that the foreign-born population is rallying strongly to the support of the loan. At six meetings held recently in Baltimore $1,125,000 was pledged by Italians, Bohemians, Poles, Lithuanians, Orthodox Jews, and Germans. Americans of German extraction at a meeting in Pittsburgh subscribed $137,650. The Cosmopolitan Committee of the Cleveland Liberty Loan organization now is working among thirty-one nationalities. Twenty-nine nationalities are organized in the Chicago district, and at the end of the first week's campaign they had obtained $5,000,000 subscriptions.

Hundreds of clergymen throughout the country are notifying the Treasury Department that they will preach special sermons on the Liberty Loan on Sunday, April 21. Secretary McAdoo has written a letter to 116,000 clergymen asking them to make these special addresses on that date.

FOCH ARRIVES.

The great battle in Flanders and Picardy can no longer be characterized as a "drive." While the strongest pressure of the German offensive is still in the Ypres sector, the enemy neglects no part of the line from Langemarck, north of Ypres, to La Bassée Canal, where an attack may force a way toward the railway system that supplies the British front. He has several objectives, Bethune, Lillers, Aire, and much-coveted Hazebrouck. Held up at Merville, just outside the Forest of Nieppe, he assaults night and day at various points in the neighborhood of La Bassée and Bethune, in a region ten miles south of Merville. Fighting along La Bassée Canal, he was aiming at Robecq on Wednesday night. The British line, nowhere broken, now curves in and out with a general direction southwestward; and on a front of sixty miles the Germans are feeling everywhere for a weakness in the line.

There is one theory that the Germans want to increase the range of assault to avoid vulnerable salients. But it seems clear that what they are trying to do is to attain and hold railway junctions indispensable to the British. There is nothing new in their tactics. In their offensive late in 1914, which was a "drive" for the Channel ports, attacks were made almost simultaneously at Arras, La Bassée, Ypres, and along the coast in the direction of Nieuport. It was as if the Germans had inexhaustible reserves of men and munitions. They persisted in these four assaults for three weeks, violating a rule of NAPOLEON to concentrate at one point of contact or another until victory was won. In the present offensive they are repeating the tactics of the first campaign for the sea, although the risk is great when such a student of Napoleonic strategy as FOCH watches them with the vision of a hawk. He is not likely to make the mistake of failing to have a superiority in men and guns at a chosen point of contact.

What General FOCH's resources are remains a secret. He has reinforced the British in the Ypres sector. Field Marshal HAIG's reports yesterday were confined to a few details, but he speaks of several repulses of the enemy, and there seems to be no doubt that the reinforced British line is holding well. It is too early, however, to conclude that the worst is over. One unofficial dispatch describes the French as in strong force in the Ypres sector. If that is the case, the Germans are not likely to make any further gains of importance at present, and they may have to deal with powerful counterattacks on that front.

Concerning the front between the Somme and the Oise come reports of intense and steadily maintained artillery fire by the French, which would indicate that General FOCH has planned a strategical counteroffensive on a considerable scale to halt the Germans' advance on Amiens and give them pause in the north. It may be repeated that the great battle will be won by well-planned strategy and not by superior numbers and rushing tactics. In another forty-eight hours General FOCH's design should begin to take form.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

The New York City Superintendent of Schools has perhaps the mightiest educational province in the United States. Some 700,000 pupils, a city, no inconsiderable State, of pupils, are under his sway. No feeble man, no mediocre man, unequal to this burden, can administer this gigantic system.

Dr. JOHN H. FINLEY, by common consent fit for that post, refuses to be considered for it. Well, some man of his sort should be chosen. Somebody of the intellectual amplitude, the full training, the commanding ability, the force of character, and the genius for administration that the occupant of the post must have if the city is not to be served wretchedly, disserved.

A first-class man for a first-class place. It is no place for an intriguing politician, for a time-server, looking for a fat salary, for a slight, pushing fellow, who loves the prominence and the pay, but is naked of the acquirements and abilities which the Superintendent must have or fail shamefully in office.

HURRY UP!

The Third Liberty Loan is crawling along, just crawling. Where is the fine leap and rush of the first day? In this district, in particular, what is the matter? New York is used to being first. She did splendidly in the preceding loans. Immense is the maximum set for her. Praising generously States and cities and farming towns that have waked up and worked so notably, she is in no mood, and indeed has at present small reason, to praise herself as to this loan.

The number of small subscribers hereabout is nobly large already, but nothing to what it should be, must, and will be. Big or little, in millions or mites, your subscription, make it now, make it all you can. What will a man give for his life? This country is fighting for hers.

Give? There is no "give" about it. To lend at 4¼ per cent. on the primest security in the world is the soundest business. Become a creditor of the United States today. Help lick Germany? Yes. And you are going to get paid for your help twice a year.

WHAT HAS HE NOT DONE?

Kaiser WILHELM is looking down upon the battlefield of Queant, west of Cambrai. A war correspondent of the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger is near; alongside, perhaps, and notes the pathetic scene:

> His Majesty's silence was broken only once, when he remarked to an officer who stood beside him: "What "have I not done to preserve the "world from these horrors?"

The form of the question implies that his Majesty has done everything, has left nothing undone. This is an important revelation. From it we are able to construct a complete history of the Kaiser's part in the beginning of the war. Since he did everything that could be done to prevent the war, he must have begun his labors at Potsdam on July 5, 1914, when the lords of Germany decided to launch it. He positively forbade them to do so; he must have. When they persisted, he, of course, threatened to abdicate rather than to sanction such horrors. They silenced his protests by binding him and gagging him and imprisoning him in the cellar, while they went ahead with their plans.

It was eighteen days later when the conspiracy bore fruit in the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia. The Kaiser was said to be cruising on the North Sea in his yacht at that time. We know now, from his revelation on the battlefield of Queant, that he had a wireless apparatus on his yacht and was keeping it busy with frantic appeals to Kaiser FRANZ JOSEF not to carry out the Potsdam plot. In the ten days that followed he did not send the hocus-pocus messages signed with his name, in which the writer pretended a Pecksniffian anxiety for peace and at the same time found some way of blocking everything that Sir EDWARD GREY or SAZANOFF proposed for the purpose of bringing it about. On the contrary, the real WILHELM was besieging the lords of Potsdam with urgent pleas to let him accept the proposals of GREY and SAZANOFF and get the dispute arbitrated. He must have been.

Indeed, we can go further back even than this. We must assume that for twenty-five years Kaiser WILHELM had not been planning this blow at the peace of the world; that he had not been building up his army and creating his navy and taking advantage of every incident, from Agadir to Adrianople, to force the domination of the world by Germany. He did not approve, he disapproved, he must have disapproved, the seizure of Bosnia and Herzegovina in 1908, the stirring up of Bulgaria and Serbia against each other in 1913, and all the other steps that led inevitably down the road to this war. He did everything he could to prevent them. It must be so. And he failed. Now, with a clear conscience, he can ask posterity, by way of the correspondent of the Lokal-Anzeiger, "What have I not done to preserve the world from these horrors?" And there is one point on which he need have no doubt—posterity will answer him.

WET AND DRY.

What satisfaction can Republican-Prohibitionist opportunists like Governor WHITMAN get out of the result of the local option elections? Of thirty-nine cities voting, the Drys carried twenty, to be sure, but the more populous municipalities clung to license. Somewhat more than 2,100 licenses were at stake. "The forces of evil" managed to continue over 1,400 of these.

Exposed again was the probably immortal superstition that woman suffrage, opposed so steadily, according to some of its distinguished advocates, by the "forces of evil," "the saloons," "the liquor interests," would bring about the triumph, or greatly augment, the strength of prohibition. In the West prohibition has been approved and woman suffrage disapproved in the same State, and even on the same day; but à priori it was safe to assume that women would divide at the polls substantially as the men do.

In Kansas, where prohibition is a State religion, so to speak, the majority of Republican, Democratic, Progressive, Socialist women voters are stern against the wine cup and the bowl. In this State, of heterogeneous population and culture and habit, are distributed, in what proportion who knows, the severer Puritan and the more liberal and moderate "cosmopolitan" opinion and practice as to the use of strong and mild drink. A marked addition of women to the Dry forces was to be expected only in communities already strongly Dry. This much at least may be said for woman suffrage: Apparently the same result as before can now be had at twice the expense.

Great expectations were nursed, great boasts made by the professional helmsmen of prohibition. The local option elections, carried by the women, were to sound to the Laodiceans or the Amalekites in the Legislature a sharp reproach and warning. The Republicans, not knowing how the cat would jump, played Senate against Assembly, staved off ratification of the Federal amendment. Some were frightened prematurely, a few tender souls converted. In the way of heroic valor and passionate attachment to principle the performance at Albany was truly edifying. Where is the "mandate" for prohibition? Somewhere else, if anywhere, than in these elections. The sin and shame of a referendum were avoided, thanks to the virtues of the Governor and the prudence of the Legislature. Perhaps it was just as well for the Drys that the people were not consulted.

The sadness of many of us will not be caused so much by the excess of licenses retained as by the refusal of nineteen unworthy cities to array themselves on the side of the Governor. Mr. WILLIAM H. ANDERSON of the Anti-Saloon League can be depended upon to blast and deracinate caitiff communities like Schenectady and Syracuse. Who will bind up the wounds in the Governor's fond heart, broken by the ingratitude of the farmers, and now rasped and rent again?

FEDERAL CONTROL OF THE ERIE CANAL.

It seems providential that the Barge Canal should be ready for use when there is an urgent need of it. The development of railway transportation makes the old Erie Canal seem infantile in any comparison, and yet its record is not small. The original belief was that it might carry 250,000 tons a year. The record shows that in sixty years it carried 200,000,000 tons, and earned a profit, without considering interest, of $8,333,458. The profits which did not find their way into the books were larger yet, being the development not only of New York State and City, but of all the States whose traffic is served by the lakes and the canal. If those are realized results, what may not be hoped for from a promise of a capacity of 10,000,000 tons of freight yearly, and a potential 20,000,000?

In a bad year the diversion of so much freight might be embarrassing to the railways. It is desirable to control their rates, but not to bankrupt the companies or take away their reasonable profits. Nothing of that sort can happen this year, or need happen in any other year. There is business offering sufficient to clog both railways and canal, and there will be a process of selection. The coarse, bulky freights, which the railways might carry at a loss for the sake of competition with the canal under Government management, will be carried by water, and thus make more room for the better paying freight. There is need of both.

The State will not look for book profits on the enlarged canal any more than on the old one. The agreement with the United States has not been published, and there is nothing but report that the nation might pay interest and operating costs. It should pay the operating costs, but it is a rare chance that gives the State such an operator. The Federal outlay will be small beside the State's investment of $150,000,000, but it may well be made in consideration of getting such a plant free. The nation, like the State, will find its profit in the promotion of trade, not in a profit and loss balance sheet. The Federal Grain Administration can send grain from all the lake States to the seaboard, and can distribute coal for Mr. GARFIELD on the return. The stimulus will be felt all the way from Duluth to Boston, and in all the cities along the hundreds of miles of the canal route, or the thousands of miles if the lake circuit be included.

This is a happy solution of something like a dilemma for the State. The canal was built on the theory that there would be a rush to make use of it, as wagons crowd the highways. But there had been no such development. The existing boats were not suitable for the enlarged canal, and could not earn profits. They had fallen into disrepair, and there was no rush for new construction. From time to time there were reports that something would be done when the canal was finished, but there was a lack of substance in them. There was painful disparity between engineers' calculations of capacity and private estimates of freight which would be carried. All that unpleasant talk disappears before the statement that the Director General of Railways will furnish hundreds of new 700-ton barges to be operated as railway tributaries rather than railway competitors. Thus opens another chapter in freight transportation. Under the Interstate Commission's policy railways were compelled to divest themselves of coasting trade and steamship extensions. Now it is seen that water traffic and rail traffic help each other, and that the combined service is better than the service of either alone. It is hard to say how long the Commission's theory might have survived if a condition had not confronted the Director General of Railways. He has dealt with the condition in a practical manner, and is to be congratulated as well as the State. The incident is all the more encouraging because it is only one chapter of a story told in detail in a report to the Department of Commerce, by the General Manager of the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce, upon the general subject of inland transportation. There has been a surprising development of all our rivers and coastal canals, due to the shortage of railway facilities. Countless cities are helping themselves and being helped by the Governments of States and nation. It is a good work.

GEN. MAURICE'S INDISCRETION.

Major Gen. MAURICE's peevish question, "What has become of BLUECHER?" was soon answered. On the morning after the General's headache a Reuter dispatch announced: "The "French are heavily engaged in action "in the northern battle area." BLUECHER did not fail WELLINGTON at Waterloo, although the Iron Duke, embarrassed by NEY, had failed the old Prussian at Ligny. The night before the battle the British General was informed that BLUECHER would reinforce him with two corps. As a matter of fact, three appeared on the field during the afternoon, ZIETEN's, PIRCH's, and BUELOW's corps, in spite of the knockdown and mauling which the Prussian commander had received at Ligny.

In the hour of General MAURICE's indiscretion, or before, Field Marshal HAIG must have received word from General FOCH that he was sending divisions to relieve the hard-pressed British infantry in the Ypres sector. As a military historian General MAURICE should have remembered a saying of NAPOLEON's: "Providence is always on the side of the last reserve." General FOCH has begun to put fresh reserves into the line, and the Germans have been using up their own divisions in futile and costly attempts to break through. It is now a month, less two days, since HINDENBURG launched his great offensive, and if the British troops are tired, so must be his. The Allies should have the "last reserve," assuming that LLOYD GEORGE's calculation of the strength of the combatants was correct; at any rate, FOCH's relieving troops constitute a new force, excellent in quality and formidable, no doubt, in numbers.

The French are so polite and their tact is so perfect that they will overlook the gaucherie, to put it mildly, of the British "Director of Military Operations." Waterloo and BLUECHER are not a combination soothing to England's proud and high-strung ally, and a military censor, for that is really what General MAURICE is, should have avoided making the parallel. Moreover, his allusions to "the united front and single command" had a doubtful ring; there was even a touch of satire in them. At Waterloo supreme command was lacking, and there was mighty little co-ordination; yet WELLINGTON and BLUECHER won the day, the one cool and determined, the other sturdily loyal. In the battle now raging in France one soldier, a great strategist and a true man, is in supreme command. He has arrived with reinforcements. HINDENBURG may have his marplots, his NEY and GROUCHY. It is to be devoutly hoped that he has, to carry out the Waterloo parallel. Certainly no opposing General can blunder in the presence of FOCH without paying the cost.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Action Without a Defender.

Protests against the so-called investigation of the Health Board, and against the purposes and methods of it, are accumulating so rapidly that by this time the Mayor must have realized the seriousness of the mistake he made when he set out on his still-hunt after excuses for abolishing the bureaus on which the efficiency of the board depends.

It is the source of these protests that gives them their overpowering strength. The men who are demanding the continuance of all the bureaus and praising the work done by them are the men who speak from knowledge, and they speak with unanimity. They are men whose opinion on such a subject is conclusive with the whole New York public, and it is in vain that the Mayor has tried to justify his course, first on the ground that of the bureaus only two were legally organized, next that they were an unnecessary expense, and lastly that some of them are not honestly conducted.

Naturally, we are all interested in preventing waste of the taxpayers' money, and we are perfectly willing that any grafter in or out of the Board of Health should be punished as he deserves. But in accomplishing either of those ends none of us can see either the use or the necessity for going about it in secrecy, and by adopting that plan the Mayor has created a general and probably unchangeable conviction in the public mind that his motive and object in attacking the board are yet to be admitted or disclosed.

Nobody thinks that the Mayor wants or intends to imperil the health of the city, but a great number of people have no doubt that in his unfamiliarity with preventive medicine he believed, sincerely enough, that what the board gave was "patronage"—salaried positions that could be as well filled by "deserving Democrats" as by anybody else. The estimable Mr. BRYAN had the same idea with regard to diplomatic posts, but it no longer has its old-time popularity outside of circles distinctly and exclusively political—political in the wrong sense of that much-abused word.

Commissioner AMSTER says by implication, though he is too tactful to say it explicitly, that he will resign if his bureaus are "curtailed." And no man of like or approaching competence would take his place if it were done.

A Heavy Blow at "the Demon."

A report has recently been made by a Scientific Advisory Committee to the British Liquor Control that in some respects deserves to be called, as it has been, the most important pronouncement yet on the "physiological action of alcohol." Yet it is evident from examination of the principal parts of this report, as printed in The Sun, that there is nothing new in even one of its conclusions.

These conclusions are that for human beings alcohol is neither necessary nor useful in any conditions of peace or war—that it does not give a man warmth when he is cold, that it does not cure or help him when he is ill, that it does not give him courage when he is afraid, and that always, whether in large quantities or small, it decreases his efficiency, his trustworthiness, his intelligence, and his worth as a social unit.

Every one of these statements has been made again and again by numerous scientists of the highest standing, including the most eminent members of the medical profession in the United States, and while not all of our doctors fully agree with all of them, the exceptions are almost all men far advanced in years, and the American Medical Association, assembled in annual convention, proclaimed by formal resolution, not long ago, that alcohol has no therapeutic value that cannot be better and more safely obtained from other substances.

It is not novelty, therefore, that makes notable the report of the British committee. It is because in England more people than almost anywhere else still believe that alcohol is a stimulant, instead of the narcotic it really is, and cherish the old illusions as to its beneficial and protective powers when indulgence in it is not excessive. The report is therefore in effect a severe condemnation of the British military authorities for continuing the "rum ration" to their soldiers, and it fully confirms our own War Department in withholding, as much as it can, alcohol in any form from American troops at home and abroad.

Whether or not the British investigators have gone too far—whether or not they should have admitted that some of the effects of alcohol are worth more than their physiologic cost—those are still open questions, in spite of this report and of its many predecessors of like tenor. Abstinence from alcohol has not marked the nations of the world that by common consent are called "leading." Somehow they have managed to survive and outstrip the abstemious nations, in spite of all the heavy drinking they have done.

He Died as He Had Lived.

In his death BOLO PACHA did not show even the courage which the majority of criminals can summon up and display when they confront the executioner. To have saved his forfeited life he was eager to betray the other members of his sordid conspiracies, and it is more than likely that he would have been willing to implicate the innocent, too, in his revelations, if thereby he could have lengthened his worthless days.

Of the honor supposed to exist among thieves BOLO PACHA showed not a trace, but even in the agonies of his fear he could still give thought to the careful dressing that had served as his disguise and permitted him to pass as a gentleman of sorts. In his new suit and his white gloves he might have attracted something of the admiration that fed his vanity, but even traitors and criminals have scorn for one of their class who must be tied to a post in order that the firing squad may do its task.

Pity that might have been earned by the man's hard fate his weakness transfers to the soldiers who had to shoot him and to the Lieutenant whom duty and old custom compelled to give with a revolver what may or may not have been the "blow of mercy."

He is well out of the way. It is as a warning to other traitors that he renders his one service. They will be wise to heed it.

LIBERTY BONDS.

Oh, boys of ours! now pitting steel
'gainst steel
In that titanic combat in fair France,
Where Freedom reels before the savage drive
Of brutal Tyranny! Oh, lads of ours!
Upon whose brawn and brain and nerve our fate Depends, to whose strong arms and gallant souls
All that we are, and have, and hope, have been Consigned—Oh, boys, whose blood is our blood,
Whose fate is more to us than our own life,
We watch with bated breath the flaming hell
Of that Gargantuan battle whose red maw
Yawns hungrily to swallow what the world
Hath gained through centuries of bloody sweat!
Our straining ears are tensed to catch across
The sea the roar of guns 'mid which you fight
And die—for us!

You watch and listen, too,
Across that selfsame sea, with pulsing hearts
And tingling nerves, to hear soon how the folk
For whom you fight pour forth the golden flood
Without which all your blood were spilt in vain!

Lo! boys of ours, that golden stream into
A conquering tidal-wave shall grow; for well
We know, who, breathless, watch your fight, that if We do not give—and starve—yea, die!—
for you,
We have no right to live beneath the flag
You proudly carry—are not worthy of
Your precious blood, beloved boys of ours!

SENATE PASSES THE BULLION BILL

Provides for Melting 350,000,000 Silver Dollars to Meet Trade Balances.

AN EMERGENCY MEASURE

Urged in Telegram by Secretary McAdoo—Price of $1 an Ounce Fixed for Silver.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The Senate today, by a vive voce vote, passed the Pittman bill, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to melt 350,000,000 silver dollars and to use the resultant bullion to meet trade balances against the United States. The measure, which was urged by Secretary McAdoo, establishes $1 an ounce as the price to be paid by the Government in subsequent purchases of silver bullion. In the last few years silver has fluctuated between 48 cents and $1.12 an ounce.

The bill directs the Secretary of the Treasury to recall silver certificates to the amount of $350,000,000. To take their place the issue is authorized of an equal amount in Federal Reserve notes of various denominations, including $1 and $2, which are to be backed by certificates of indebtedness or one-year gold notes.

Senator Owen offered a report from the Committee on Banking and Currency, in which the purposes of the measure were set out as follows:

"To conserve the gold supply of the United States, to permit the settlement in silver of trade balances adverse to the United States, to provide silver for subsidiary coinage, to assist foreign Governments at war with the enemies of the United States, and to stabilize the price and encourage the production of silver in the United States."

Senator Owen said Secretary McAdoo sent him a telegram from San Antonio this week urging the immediate passage of the bill as a "war emergency of the utmost urgency."

"India," said Senator Owen, "is demanding silver. We need $50,000,000 alone to take care of our jute trade with that country. The silver we are to use is lying unemployed, as dead metal, in the Treasury. It would become the basis of Federal Reserve notes, and would not interfere with the value of our gold, but would ease the financial strain."

Senator Thomas pointed out that the Federal Reserve notes would be interest-bearing, while the silver certificates do not bear interest. He doubted the financial advantage of such a scheme.

Senator Owen said the interest rate to be charged on the Federal Reserve notes would be only a little over 2 per cent., or 3 per cent. at the most. The bill, the Senator went on, would stabilize the silver market and encourage production. He thought the miners ought to be guaranteed an advantageous price.

Senator Pittman said silver producers were anxious to have the price fixed.

"Men who own the mines don't want to take chances on the price they are going to get for the silver," he said. "If we dump 350,000,000 silver dollars on our market, and don't have a fixed price for it we are doing a foolish thing with our financial stability."

"But this money is going to India, they tell us," interposed Senator Thomas. "They will keep it in India."

NEW GERMAN REVENUE.

3,162,000,000 Marks in Added Taxes—National Debt Dismays.

AMSTERDAM, April 18.—Germany's proposed new taxes, according to a telegram from Berlin, are expected to yield a total of 3,162,000,000 marks. Of this sum 1,000,000,000 marks will be obtained by an extension of the tax on business turnovers, while 850,000,000 marks will be derived from the spirits monopoly.

With a view to preventing evasion, persons leaving the country must pay personal taxes for five years.

Germany will have to observe the greatest economy, for her national debt is now 124,000,000,000 marks and the hour of reckoning will come when there will be wailing and gnashing of teeth on the part of the taxpayers. This reflection on the German financial situation was made in the Reichstag on March 1 by Count Arthur von Posadowsky-Wehner, former Vice Chancellor, according to the Cologne Gazette.

The Count, who is not a member of any political party, said that when he was at the head of the Imperial Treasury Department the national debt was 1,750,000,000 marks and he had considered that amount terribly high. Schemes to decrease the debt through new taxes were not approved at the time and the Government continued to increase it instead of taking up the battle for new taxes.

Talk of depriving the wealthy classes of part of their possessions was deprecated by the Count. He did not think that Imperial loans should be redeemed by taking the holdings of those classes "who desired to uphold the economic life." Count von Posadowsky-Wehner continued:

"Up to a few years ago the German cities were still paying off war debts and indemnities resulting from the wars of the Napoleonic period. We all hope that there will be no such war as this again within a measurable period of time, and that we will find statesmen who will be able to guide the country in such a manner that we will not again be involved. In that case it is not necessary to redeem the financial burden within a relatively short period. We could allow ourselves decades in which to do that.

"It would be a good thing if the Secretary of the Imperial Treasury would consult the Financial Ministers of the individual States regarding a plan to improve the system of tax assessments. In that matter you are often faced by a conundrum. You see persons who lead a life of wealth and indulge in great expenditures, but who pay their taxes on a basis of assessment which would astonish you."

START PATRIOTIC EDUCATION

Pamphlet Entitled "Know Your Enemy" to be Widely Distributed.

In an effort to awaken this country to a realization of just what sort of peril Germany is to the world, a group of Americans have organized a Committee for Patriotic Education with headquarters at Fraunces Tavern, the historic home of the Sons of the Revolution at Broad and Pearl Streets. As its first active work, the committee has just issued a pamphlet, "Know Your Enemy," by Elmer Ellsworth Rittenhouse, which will be distributed throughout the nation and in the army and navy.

"Know Your Enemy" aims to depict from the words of German war lords and of observers just the horrible sort of warfare the Teutons are waging and just what the ideals are that impel the Prussian soldiers to strive for victory at any cost.

Among the members of the committee are James Mortimer Montgomery, Eugenius H. Outerbridge, Alexander C. Humphreys, Robert Olyphant, John B. Lunger, Major W. I. Lincoln Adams, U. S. A.; William Alexander, Theodore Thomas, E. E. Rittenhouse, and others.

OVERMAN PUSHES FIGHT.

Intends to Keep His Bill Before the Senate Until Vote Is Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The Overman bill, to give the President authority to reorganize departments, was again bombarded in the Senate today. Before the day's debate ended, Senator Overman, unable to obtain unanimous consent to take up the measure for final vote on Thursday of next week, announced that he would keep it before the Senate, to the exclusion of other legislation, until it was voted upon.

Senator Hoke Smith attacked the measure as giving the President power to overthrow all the governmental machinery, even to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Reserve Board.

"I admit that there have been governmental functions that have failed to do their work properly during this war," declared the Georgian. "One of them, it appears, is the Aircraft Production Board. We have been informed that they have not yet got an American airplane to our army in France."

"That's not true," interrupted Senator Fletcher of Florida. "We have shipped many of our planes over."

"The Senator has been misinformed," said Senator Lodge. "Our aircraft production before the war was devoted to making machines for our allies. Instead of turning this great activity to making machines for our own forces, we have lagged and delayed."

Senator Smith remarked that he had read with interest of the appointment of Charles M. Schwab to the head of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"I hope that the big men of our nation are at last to be called to the front and given important posts," commented the Senator. "I would like to see some big man at the head of the airplane and other war programs."

"I indorse that," put in Senator Gallinger, "but it seems that we have taken a long time to discover the big men."

URGES MORE RIGID CONTROL

Essential for Systematizing War Work, Says Economic Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Large profits have not insured the necessary amount of labor and material for war work, says a special report made public tonight by the American Economic Association's committee on "The Purchasing Power of Money in Relation to the War," and greater governmental control of industry is essential to systematize large necessary shifting of labor and capital.

Reviewing what happened shortly after the United States entered the war, when great contracts were let on the "cost-plus" basis, the committee points out that experience proved that ordinary business methods would not produce the extraordinary results required by the emergency, and the Government found it necessary to remedy the industrial confusion which followed by various measures of public control.

The report indorses the steps now being taken by the Government to convert plants producing non-essentials into essential producers, and urges that the country's ablest industrial experts be employed in a far-sighted and unified planning of an industrial campaign.

Members of the committee are Irving Fisher of Yale, Chairman; B. M. Anderson, Jr., of Harvard; E. W. Kemmerer of Princeton, W. C. Mitchell of Columbia, W. M. Persons of Colorado College, and Royal Meeker, United States Commissioner of Labor Statistics.

BILL FOR 20-CENT COTTON.

Trade Also Advocates Executive Order for Greater Compression.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—A bill to fix the maximum price for raw cotton, when sold by the producer or dealer to the manufacturer, at 20 cents a pound during the war was introduced today by Representative Emerson of Ohio. It provides that the President may reduce or raise the price, in his discretion. Views of cotton organizations advocating the change have been presented by Colonel Harvey Jordan, President of the Southern Cotton Association.

Delay in the movement of last year's cotton crop, which, it is contended, could have been avoided if greater compression had been required, was blamed today by Colonel Jordan for the sensational drop in cotton prices during the last week. He estimated that 1,000,000 bales of cotton still remain in the South awaiting transportation.

"In this time of national emergency," Colonel Jordan said, "when every freight car and every steamer should carry its utmost load, greater compression of cotton is a national necessity; and it can be obtained quickly only by executive order of the Director General of Railroads."

POSTAL RULING FOR NAVY.

Packages Meant for Sailors Must Clearly Indicate Destination.

Postmaster Patten of this city called attention last night to the following order issued by the Second Assistant Postmaster General:

"Postmasters will not accept for persons in the naval service packages containing fruits or perishable foodstuffs, and they will require that all packages be securely wrapped, strongly tied and plainly addressed, preference to be given to packages that are inclosed in strong and suitable boxes or wrapped in sacking, bagging or cloth, sewed for examination.

"As the whereabouts of men in the navy are not known to the Postmaster at New York, letters simply addressed 'John Doe, care Postmaster, New York,' cannot be dispatched to destination. Each letter or package should bear the full name of the addressee, the branch of the service he is serving in, such as navy, Naval Reserve, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard, his rank or rating, if known, and the name of the vessel or station on which he is serving, this information to be in addition to the required address, care Postmaster, New York."

AGAIN URGES PAPER SAVING.

News Print Consumed Faster Than Produced, Commission Reports.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Elimination of waste and curtailment of consumption of print paper in every way possible as a patriotic duty was urged on publishers again today by the Federal Trade Commission in announcing publishers' statistics for March. The figures indicate a considerable increase in percentage of returns of daily newspapers, and free copies of weekly and monthly newspapers. The average size of both daily and Sunday newspapers showed considerable increase, apparently owing to an increase in advertising. Weekly, semi-weekly and monthly magazines, however, showed a considerable decrease in average size.

"During March newspaper publishers continued to consume paper faster than it was produced," says the commission. "This shows the necessity of immediate action to curtail consumption."

BRITISH IMPORTS HIGHER.

Exports for March Show Decrease as Compared with Last Year.

LONDON, April 18.—The Board of Trade figures for March show an increase in imports of £26,090,000 over last year and a decrease in exports of £8,109,000.

The principal increases in imports were: Food, £7,000,000; raw materials, £11,000,000, of which cotton accounted for £7,000,000. The chief decreases in exports were in manufactured articles.

NATIONS PREPARING FOR ECONOMIC WAR

National Foreign Trade Committee Reports Steps Taken in Britain, France, Germany.

NEW METHODS IN ENGLAND

Tradesmen There, It Is Said, Are Now Willing to Co-operate to Defeat Foreign Competitors.

CINCINNATI, April 18.—According to the report of the Committee on Exports Control, submitted to the National Foreign Trades Council, which opened its fifth annual convention here today, the restoration of peace is bound to be followed by a renewed struggle for the markets of the world, which, "to judge from the way the nations are preparing, will surpass the commercial competition of the epoch that ended in 1914, as the present war surpasses that of 1870-71.

"England is preparing, France is preparing, Germany is preparing," says the report, "and just as in the military struggle each side learns constantly from the other and their methods become in various respects more and more alike.

"The English," continues the report, "are obviously preparing themselves to submit after the war to a great deal of Government interference, of industrial and commercial regimentation which they would not have tolerated in the epoch that ended, because their individualism has become national through the war, and they are now willing, if necessary, to co-operate with the former British competitors for the purpose of defeating a common competitor in foreign lands.

"Germany's preparatory effort for the coming struggle takes preponderantly the form of greater consolidation, amalgamation, and centralization. It is the same process that showed itself so markedly before the war in Government ownership or in bureaucratic control of industry and commerce and labor, to which the name State socialism has been given in the close co-operation of high finance and big industry. But it is to be very much more intense and complete.

"France also remains true to type."

C. P. Austin, statistician of the National City Bank of New York and former chief of the United States Bureau of Statistics, in a paper read before the council, following this report, said that world commerce after the war will not differ radically from that which existed before the war.

"The great trade currents of the world," he said, "were built up as the result of the fact that the world's manufacturing is chiefly performed by a limited number of countries, which distribute their products to every part of the world and bring back manufacturing material and food in exchange. Of approximately $80,000,000,000 worth of manufactures produced annually in the world in normal times, about $8,000,000,000 worth enter international trade, and the countries exporting them take in exchange an equal value of manufacturing materials and foodstuffs.

"The manufacturing world consists chiefly of the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria-Hungary, Italy, and Japan, all of them (except Switzerland) now at war. The nonmanufacturing world consists of all North America, except the United States; all of South America, all of Asia, except Japan; all of Africa, all of Oceania, and those countries of Europe not included in the above list of manufacturers. Thus the manufacturing world is now at war, the non-manufacturing world at peace.

"With these general conditions of interdependence of the manufacturing and nonmanufacturing sections of the world, and each section in need of the supplies which the other can furnish and able to offer its own products in exchange, we may expect a return to practically normal conditions, unless the war and the trade agreements which follow it shall produce such radical changes as to nullify the causes which have built up the trade current between these two great world sections."

C. E. McGuire of Washington, Assistant Secretary of the International High Commission, in addressing the council tonight, said:

"The problem that will confront the civilized world from the very moment that formal public and semi-public agreements begin to be concluded after the present war will demonstrate how inevitable it is that the great and representative producing classes should take a more direct part in constructing the rules of organized life—commercial and political—and even of the law. That problem is how to maintain everywhere in full force equitable laws and regulations pertaining to international commerce, to the formulation of which the banker, the manufacturer, and the merchant will contribute their practical knowledge, at the same time aiding the jurists and the legislative draftsmen to simplify and improve the form."

Discussions of how best to help win the war, as well as of preparedness for largely increased foreign trade relations following the war, took up today's sessions of the council. A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Oil of the Council of National Defense, assured the 1,000 delegates gathered that the oil men have forgotten their differences in the common effort to win the war, and that men who for years were the keenest of business rivals are now working shoulder to shoulder. "Every producer has risked large amounts in drilling in the hope of increasing oil production, and will invest still larger sums," said Mr. Bedford.

"You must remember that following this war," he continued, "we will be called upon and it will be our economic part and duty to assist in providing for a cold, tired, and hungry world."

In discussing "metals," E. A. S. Clarke of New York predicted that the advantage in having the largest quantity of metals most needed in the prosecution of the war, such as iron and steel, copper, lead, zinc, gold, and silver, while our allies or the other neutral nations had similar sources for the supply of tin, manganese, and other necessary metals, "must in the long run be a deciding factor in our favor as against the less favorable situation of the Central Powers."

In discussing foreign trade after the war, Mr. Clarke advocated that the Government consider establishing a separate administrative department, with a Cabinet member at its head—in effect, a Secretary of Foreign Trade—whose duty it would be to foster and assist in mobilizing the development and extension to the foreign trade of the United States.

J. H. Wheelwright of New York discussed the coal situation and how the American output is helping to win the war.

A. O. Corbin of New York, who recently returned from Russia, discussed the economic situation in that country, and urged American financial and manufacturing interests to lend a hand to the parties which are striving to set up a standing government there. He said that the United States was the logical leader to properly develop Russia's resources, and if she undertake that task Great Britain, France, and the other Allies would get behind her. He urged American co-operation with the commercial banks in Russia to prevent German commercial control in that country.

MAY RESTORE ADDRESSES.

Baker Says Military Opinion Will Govern Casualty Lists.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Secretary Baker said today that the proposal that the home addresses of the men named be restored to casualty lists would be taken up soon, and that the prevailing opinion of his military advisers would determine the decision.

He said the practice of many newspapers in requesting relatives of soldiers named in the lists to communicate their addresses and other data would have the effect of destroying the object of the present system, the concealment of important information from the enemy.

WANT NO SHIFT IN HEALTH INQUIRY

Graft Investigation, Dr. Frankel Says, Should Not Obscure the Mayor's Announced Purpose.

FIGHTS FOR A CLEAR ISSUE

District Attorney Questions Health Board Employès About Oyster Bribery Allegations.

MacBRIDE CHARGES GRAFT

Says the Department "Is the Most Fertile Field in the City."

While witnesses were being questioned yesterday in the office of District Attorney Swann regarding allegations of graft in the Health Department, the eyes of persons interested in Mayor Hylan's investigation of the Health Department turned toward the purposes of the investigation as announced originally by the Mayor and Chairman James E. MacBride of the Civil Service Commission.

"It is important that this graft investigation should not obscure the point of the investigation, which on April 8 the President of the Civil Service Commission announced," said Dr. Lee K. Frankel, Chairman of the Committee of Twenty-one, appointed by the conference of social welfare and civic organizations, to call on the Mayor in relation to the inquiry.

"He (the President of the Civil Service Commission) then said: 'New bureaus (in the Health Department) have been created and high salaries have been paid without authority of law. The Mayor has ordered this inquiry so that he may have the facts upon which to base a complete reorganization of that department. Such a reorganization, it is believed, will result in a great reduction in the cost of operating the Health Department.'"

Continuing, Dr. Frankel said:

"While we desire that the District Attorney, as the officer of competent legal jurisdiction, shall make the most searching inquiry possible into charges of graft in any department, we still feel that the Mayor should grant the request of the committee for information regarding the opinions of the Corporation Counsel and for open hearings of the Civil Service Commission on the question of the legality of the bureaus of the Health Department and their possible reorganization."

No word came from the Mayor's office yesterday with regard to when he would see Dr. Frankel and the members of the committee who desire that the hearings of the Civil Service Commission shall be held in the open instead of behind closed doors and also that the Mayor shall inform them regarding the opinions of previous Corporation Counsels on the legality of the seven bureaus now under attack.

Mayor Writes to Dr. Goldwater.

Dr. S. S. Goldwater, former Health Commissioner and Chairman of the Mayor's Hospital Committee, yesterday made public a letter received from the Mayor in which the latter said that when a question arose concerning the efficiency of the Health Department along medical lines, the "advice of medical men will be asked for and taken." Dr. Goldwater said that the letter was very "gratifying" but it was pointed out that it made no mention that the bureaus of the Health Department would be retained. In the view of others the document said plainly that the Mayor would refrain from seeing the Committee of Twenty-one or any other social service organizations or representatives in regard to the investigation, at least for the present. The Mayor's letter to Dr. Goldwater was as follows:

New York, April 17, 1918.
Dr. S. S. Goldwater, 1 East 100th Street, New York City.

My Dear Dr. Goldwater: Your letter of April 15 is received, saying that you desire to have a talk about the Health Department. I will be pleased to see you at any time, but insofar as the Health Department is concerned, I do not care to discuss that until such time as I receive a report from the officials who are investigating some phases of that department.

Complaints have been made alleging violations of the law, blackmail, graft, and discourtesy of employes to the people who are obliged to deal with the Health Department, which, if true, must be ended once and for all. The Health Department must be healthy within before it can properly administer health without.

It does not require a person trained in medicine to correct these abuses. When the question arises concerning the efficiency of the Health Department along medical lines, the advice of medical men will be asked for and taken, and I shall be the first to insist that the standard of the Health Department of the City of New York be second to none in any city in the United States. Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Finds Bureaus Legally Established.

In response to a request made by the Public Health Committee of the New York Academy of Medicine that its counsel, Howard Van Sinderen, should render an opinion as to the legality of the bureaus of the Health Department other than those specifically provided for in the charter, Mr. Van Sinderen reported that in his opinion Section 1,179 of the City Charter, providing for two bureaus of the Department of Health, "was not intended to be a limitation upon the power of the Board of Health to establish such bureaus as it may deem to be necessary or expedient to establish in the performance of its duties."

Attempts to obtain copies of the two previous decisions by former Corporation Counsels yesterday were fruitless. Health Commissioner Amster said several days ago that he transmitted these records to Chairman MacBride of the Civil Service Commission. When Mr. MacBride was asked yesterday to make public the opinions of the former Corporation Counsels, he said that they had been sent to him several days ago by Dr. Amster and that he had not had time to examine them.

"Will you make them public after you look them over?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I'll have to see what they contain first," replied Mr. MacBride.

Wants Health Problem Studied.

Charles A. Beard, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, sent Mayor Hylan yesterday a five-page typewritten letter which reviewed the changes in the Health Department for the last twenty years. After saying that the health of millions depended on the action of the Mayor, Director Beard suggested that the latter should appoint a commission to study the health problem of New York. The recommendation was made that the commission be selected from the New York Academy of Medicine, the State Health Department, the United States Public Health Service, the New York County Medical Society, the Kings County Medical Society, and other recognized agencies concerned in the public health.

"Such a commission," Mr. Beard continued, "should, in the opinion of this bureau, make a comprehensive study of the present organization of the Health Department; review the claims made in behalf of community services; inquire into the functions and organization of the Board of Health as now constituted, and bring to bear upon our city problem the experience of all large cities of the world. After a complete and careful study, the commission should recommend the proper organization of the department, pointing out the specific changes which must be made in the charter to bring our law into harmony with improved practice. This, of course, should not interfere with any inquiry now in progress into alleged misconduct on the part of employes."

Swann Hunts for Graft.

No arrests were made yesterday in the graft investigation, although one witness was taken before the Grand Jury by Assistant District Attorney Dooling, while a number of others, including two Inspectors in the Bureau of Food and Drugs and Director Lucius P. Brown of that bureau, were questioned in the prosecutor's office.

The witness taken before the Grand Jury was referred to by District Attorney Swann, Assistant District Attorney Dooling, and Chairman MacBride as a "go-between" who collected money from oyster men in New York and Princes Bay, S. I., which the District Attorney and his assistant alleged, he turned over to persons connected with the Health Department, after deducting 10 per cent. The money, Mr. Swann said, was paid so that the oyster men might dispose of oysters from polluted beds.

Both Mr. Swann and Chairman MacBride said that the transactions amounted to "thousands of dollars," although they also said that the "go-between" asserted that he had received only $159.50 instead of $635 due him for collecting $6,350. The two men accused of accepting the money were named to reporters by the District Attorney and the others concerned in the investigation. They are holders of comparatively minor offices in the Health Department receiving salaries of about $1,500 a year.

Mr. Swann said that a specific charge of bribery was made against two men. He said that the "go-between," whose name he declined to give, was the complaining witness. Both men, he added, denied the charges against them.

Pressed for further information as to alleged wrongdoing in the Health Department, Mr. MacBride said finally:

"The indications are that graft permeated every part of a certain bureau of the board. If the stories told us are true, and on this point we have only uncorroborated evidence, the allegations reach many persons."

Following requests for specific information, Mr. MacBride said:

"One man has named to us a director of one of the bureaus, not the Bureau of Food and Drugs. The information also names another man holding a very high position in the department, a man who was named as being in a position to deliver things. The investigation appears to go higher up, and may bring into the net, conservatively speaking, a dozen men."

In conclusion, Mr. MacBride made this unqualified assertion:

"The Health Department as at present organized is the most fertile field for graft in the city. The police have nothing like the opportunities that Inspectors in the Health Department have. They have broader powers than anybody in the Police Department, except a Captain or an Inspector. Men who are receiving $1,000 and $1,200 a year have practically no supervision over them."

There was no session of the Civil Service Commission yesterday because of Chairman MacBride's interest in the graft hunt. It was indicated that hereafter he would devote his attention to this phase of the proceedings, and that Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield would continue the inquiry into the legality of the seven bureaus of the Health Department.

Call for Open Inquiry.

The Executive Committee of the Labor Sanitation Conference at a meeting last night at 32 Union Square discussed plans to co-operate with other bodies in helping maintain the bureaus of the Board of Health as at present organized. A resolution was adopted urging that the investigation by the Civil Service Commission and the Commissioner of Accounts be thrown open to the public, and recommendation was made to the Mayor and the investigators, that the work of the Bureau of Industrial Hygiene, of which Dr. Louis I. Harris is director, be not curtailed because of limited jurisdiction or lack of inspectors.

A copy of the resolution was sent to the Mayor, the Civil Service Commission, Health Commissioner Amster, and the Central Labor bodies.

The Central Federated Union will meet tonight and the recent developments of the inquiry may form a basis for action by the body.

Second Son to Mrs. Shackford.

Mr. and Mrs. William Moore Shackford (Miss Olive Schley) are being congratulated upon the birth of a son, their second, yesterday at their home, Glenwood, at Englewood, N. J. The newcomer has been named Charles Reeve Schley for Mrs. Shackford's uncle, General Charles McC. Reeve, U. S. A., retired. Mrs. Shackford is a daughter of Mrs. William T. Schley of New York.

A NEW BILL AT THE GREENWICH VILLAGE

One-Act Plays by Harold Brighouse, Eugene O'Neil, and Arthur Schnitzler.

FRESH NOTE OF 'THRILLAGE'

Lord and Lady Aberdeen Speak of Franco-British Friendship and the War.

THE BIG SCENE, a play in one act by Arthur Schnitzler, translated by Charles Henry Meltzer; ILE, a play in one act by Eugene O'Neil, and THE MAID OF FRANCE, a play in one act by Harold Brighouse. Acted by the following Greenwich Village players: Frank Conroy, Claire Eames, Harold Meltzer, Joseph Dailey, Helen Robbins, Francis McDonald, Everett Glass, Joseph Macauley, Margaret Fareleigh, John Ahearn, and Ruth Boyd. At the Greenwich Village Theatre.

A fresh note was added last night to Greenwich Village thrillage. The chief feature of the new bill at the local theatre is the little play by Harold Brighouse, which voices the half humorous and wholly heroic spirit of the modern comradeship of England and France.

A Tommy and a Poilu meet at the base of a statue of Joan of Arc and speak, each in his native manner, of the Maid of France. The Poilu is all reverence and patriotic fervor, but the Tommy maintains his matter-of-fact humor, which is yet sympathetic and cheery. It is Christmas Eve, and the Poilu half believes that the old legend is true, and that at midnight the Maid will breathe again, and speak to them. So they lie down to sleep on the steps of the pedestal.

As midnight chimes, it all happens. The Maid is perplexed at first to find an Englishman there, but soon forgets the ancient enmity and bids him welcome in the name of France. At times Mr. Brighouse's touch, in both comedy and sentiment, lacks lightness and finesse. But there is much real humor in the piece and the genuine thrill of patriotism. Above all, there is the spirit of poetry and legendary beauty. The play is as delightful as it is novel in the Greenwich Village repertory.

In the entr'acte, Lord Aberdeen spoke from the stage of the new spirit that is animating the Allies in general. Then Lady Aberdeen stepped forward in the central aisle and added a few words on the work of the Child Welfare Association, introducing a band of young women who sold its emblems in packages. And so to the thrill of patriotism was added the high spirits of respectability and contribution. Altogether an experience for the genius loci!

"Ile" is another of the dramatic sea scenes which we owe to Eugene O'Neil. The Captain of a whaler in the Bering Sea has missed his usual luck in the matter of blubber. The two years for which his crew signed are over, and his wife is hysterical from the long arctic isolation. On the one hand he is threatened with mutiny and on the other with madness.

But his professional instinct and pride are at stake. A school of whales is sighted, and he marshals his crew to go after it, though in that moment his wife has gone mad and is gibbering in the cabin. It is not a pleasant play, but it is vigorously characterized and ably acted, and so made a really powerful impression.

The final piece was a characteristic scene by Schnitzler dealing very cleverly with the infidelities of a celebrated Continental actor much in the spirit of Hermann Bahr.

The scenes of the three plays were admirably atmospheric, and the acting competent throughout. Manager Conroy played Mr. Brighouse's Tommy and Schnitzler's Shakespearian star with his unfailing skill and authority. Joseph Macauley gave a really notable characterization of the whaling Captain, mingling the egotistic mania of the man with a quiet and masterful reason, even with a note of tenderness for his wife, that made the whole quite credible. Harold Meltzer was capital as the Poilu, and Ruth Boyd as the Maid of France.

All together the bill is quite the best which Mr. Conroy has presented.

Thos. Wilfred Plays Lute and Sings.

Thomas Wilfred, singing in Troubadour costume to his own accompaniment on the lute, gave a matinée yesterday at the Punch and Judy Theatre. Mr. Wilfred, who is a Dane, was heard in Scandinavian songs, as well as in airs of early England and folksongs of France.

Ethel Barrymore in 'Belinda' May 6.

Ethel Barrymore, it was announced yesterday, will be seen at the Empire Theatre on the night of Monday, May 6, in a new comedy called "Belinda," which was produced last week in London, with Irene Vanbrugh in the leading rôle. "The Off Chance," accordingly, will be withdrawn in two more weeks, and the promised production of "The Bridge of Sighs" and the revival of "Mid-Channel" have been postponed until next season.

Leslie Faber, Actor, Killed in War.

Confirmation of reports recently received from London that Leslie Faber, the English actor, was killed in the retreat from Messines Ridge has been received from London. Faber played the leading rôle in the original production of "The White Feather" in New York, and later appeared at the Empire Theatre in "Diplomacy."

Honor Macy Fighters.

A bronze tablet, the gift of the Macy Men's Club will be presented to the employes of R. H. Macy & Co. on Saturday evening, in honor of their co-workers who have entered the service of the country. The tablet is symbolical of the different branches of service which the ex-employes have entered. It bears the following inscription:

"The World War. We honor those who do us honor. In this metal we inscribe our humble expression of appreciation to those of our co-workers who have gone from our midst to defend a principle and bring peace to a stricken world." The tablet will be placed in the vestibule of the 34th Street entrance, facing the tablet in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Isador Straus.

FUSIONISTS ARRAIGNED.

Sulzer Condoles with Reynolds in Justice Goff's Court.

William Hamlin Childs, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Fusion Committee of 1917, who directed the general campaign for the re-election of Mayor Mitchel in November; ex-State Senator Josiah T. Newcomb, and ex-Governor William Sulzer were arraigned yesterday before Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court to answer an indictment returned against them on Tuesday, charging a conspiracy to conceal disbursements of money in the Fusion campaign. The court refused their request for two weeks' time and ordered them to appear on April 24 to plead to the indictments. Each of the defendants was released in $1,000 bail.

The Fusion campaign men appeared in court at the same time that ex-State Senator William H. Reynolds and three others were present to respond to an indictment in the Seaside Park land sale to the city. Sulzer, who smiled throughout the proceedings, reached a hand across a rail to Reynolds and remarked:

"How are you, Bill? Misery likes company, doesn't it, Bill."

Colonel A. S. Bacon was attorney for Sulzer. John B. Stanchfield and Isidor Kresel were counsel for Childs, and John A. Bolles appeared for Newcomb.

A copy of the indictment, made public yesterday by District Attorney Swann, charges the defendants with failure to make specific return of two campaign payments in their report of expenditures filed after the election, one of the items being $5,000 paid to Sulzer for campaign speeches and $6,500 paid to Misha Appelbaum of the Humanitarian Cult. The indictment concludes with the statement that these amounts were filed in the report as follows:

"Nov. 22—William H. Childs, $11,500, rental of halls, salaries, and expenses of speakers, auto hire, &c., for various meetings."

The Extraordinary Grand Jury continued their investigation into the Fusion campaign funds yesterday by examination of two witnesses—F. M. Loper, private secretary to Sam A. Lewisohn, Treasurer of the Fusion Committee of 1917, and Lewis L. Clark, Treasurer of the City Democracy Publicity Committee, and his private secretary, H. N. Armstrong. The jury adjourned until Monday.

Justice Goff has ordered sixty election Inspectors to appear this morning to be sentenced for making false returns of the ballots in the Republican primary on Sept. 19.

FOR OVER THERE THEATRE.

Call for Actors to Entertain Soldiers to be Made at Meeting Tuesday.

A meeting of the leaders in every branch of the theatrical world, at which the report of E. H. Sothern and Winthrop Ames regarding the amusement needs of our soldiers abroad will be formally received, is announced for next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Palace Theatre. On this occasion the first organized plans for the entertainment of American soldiers in France, exclusive only of the limited work being done in the Y. M. C. A. huts, will be made, and volunteer players will be called for to go abroad. All actors, actresses, and managers are urged to attend.

To take charge of the work of entertaining our men abroad an organization called America's Over-There Theatre League has already been formed. The President of this organization is George M. Cohan and the Directors E. F. Albee, Rachel Crothers, Walter Damrosch, John Drew, Charles B. Dillingham, Daniel Frohman, Joseph R. Grismer, Marc Klaw, Willard Mack, Lee Shubert, Augustus Thomas, and the Francis Wilson.

Mr. Sothern and Mr. Ames will describe the needs of the soldiers at next Tuesday's meeting and will also formally present a letter from General Pershing, in which he approves of the plan to provide the soldiers with diversion. Mr. Cohan will preside, and the speakers will include Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey and Augustus Thomas.

GABRILOWITSCH CONDUCTS.

Pianist Opens His Own Series of Concerts with National Anthem.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, recently a guest conductor at Detroit and Cincinnati, and now mentioned for the premier orchestra in Boston, opened his own series of symphonic concerts in Carnegie Hall last evening under auspices far different from his first local essay with independent players a season or two ago. There was another difference, in that last night's concert began with "The Star-Spangled Banner," well played and without ornamentation of America's air. Mr. Gabrilowitsch, like other conductors, of whom many were present, had accepted the anthem as a personal test. It was an opportunity to prove that he himself, a Russian born and the son-in-law of Mark Twain, was to be counted pro-American and pro-Ally. Unknown to many, C. A. Ellis and W. H. Brennan of the Boston Symphony had seats in the hall.

Beethoven's First Symphony and "Coriolanus" overture made up the program's opening half, followed by Mozart's pianoforte concerto in D minor, with Arnold Volpe leading and the star at the piano, while in conclusion a late change of plan brought Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet." Gabrilowitsch led the symphony with authority, with plastic nuance, more as one man playing on the hundred assembled instruments, though these represented the veterans of both the Philharmonic and Symphonic Societies of New York. The slow movement was of great beauty, the scherzo greatly applauded, and at the end there were many recalls. The dramatic "Coriolanus" found also congenial treatment, as did the Russian fantasy, while in the concerto, Gabrilowitsch as soloist was in his familiar element again.

"The Barber of Seville" and Ballet.

"The Barber of Seville" and "The Dance in Place Congo" filled the Metropolitan last evening with another of the great audiences of grand opera's farewell week before a coming flight to Boston. Barrientos and De Luca, both reappearing tonight with Caruso, shared the honors of last night's opera with Carpi, Mardones, and others who were taking a season's leave. The entire house remained for Gilbert's ballet at the close, as danced by Galli, Bartik and Bonfiglio, and again witnessed by its composer. The conductors were Papi and Monteux.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"An American Ace" will be withdrawn from the Casino Theatre after next week.

"Her Country" will end its engagement at the Harris Theatre at the end of next week. A special matinee will be given next Tuesday for the French Restoration Fund.

Roland Young will play Krogstad in Arthur Hopkins's production of "A Doll's House," which will be seen at the Plymouth on April 29. Katharine Emmet will also be in the cast.

There will be a special showing of Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey's film, "Over the Top," at the Lyric Theatre tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock for the benefit of Red Cross Auxiliary 197.

Bird Millman, the aerial performer, and the Fairbanks Twins, late of the "Follies," have been added to the company which will be seen in the new "Midnight Frolic," the first performance of which will take place on next Wednesday night.

"Good-Bye, Bill," a musical show written and acted by members of the United States Ambulance Service, will be the attraction at the Forty-fourth Street Roof Theatre beginning next Monday night. Two performances of the piece were given at the Forty-eighth Street last month.

Among motion picture actors and actresses announced to appear at the Liberty Theatre in front of the Public Library tomorrow, Adolph Zukor Day, to speak for the Liberty Loan are Lina Cavalieri, Ann Pennington, Jack Pickford, Pauline Frederick, Elsie Ferguson, George M. Cohan, Marguerite Clark, Billie Burke, Norma Talmadge, and Alice Brady.

BUYING MONOPOLY BIGGEST IN HISTORY

Hoover Tells of Situation That Brought About Single Control by Supply Bureaus.

QUESTION NOT UNDERSTOOD

No Principle of Price Fixing as Broad Economic Policy So Far Developed by Government.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 18.—Herbert C. Hoover, discussing the Food Administration at the annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Press Club here tonight, declared that the Government had so far developed no principle of price fixing as a broad economic policy.

Mr. Hoover explained in detail the worldwide condition which made the Food Administration necessary, and said that discussion throughout the country over price stabilization by the Government was partly academic, partly misinformed, and most of it without any knowledge or admission of the total economic dislocations imposed by the war.

"So far the Government has developed no principle of price fixing as a broad economic policy," said Mr. Hoover. "Dislocations apply first to one great commodity and then to another, and therefore our aspect of the problem is to deal with them as they arise, commodity by commodity. We are dealing with conditions and not with theories.

"Disturbances through shortage in supply, failure of inland or overseas transport, or because of other matters with which we must contend, all lead to hardship on either producer or consumer. Our view is to review the alternative courses of action and to choose that course which leads to the lesser hardship. We are not exploiting economic reform or economic revolution.

"Every export from the United States is under control. It is controlled so that it may serve the positive military ends of the Government. All of our exports are directed to supporting the Allies, or alternatively, where we deal with neutrals, to get the quid pro quo for the sacrifice of our commodities. Thus our food exports are directed toward but a few hands on the other side of the water.

"The European Governments have been compelled to undertake, as a consequence of shortage of supplies, the single-handed purchase of their supplies both for civil and military purposes. There has grown up an enormous consolidation of buying for 120,000,000 European people, a phenomenon never before witnessed in the economic history of the world. Furthermore we have aggregated in this country something like 2,000,000 men under arms, and we shall expand our forces to 3,000,000 or 5,000,000 before we are finished. The buying for these men is necessarily concentrated in one agency instead of 5,000,000 agencies, as before, and we thus have a second engine growing up in our midst as a necessity of war conditions.

"In order that these two buying agencies should not get in each other's way, it has been necessary to place them under joint direction. In the final outcome, therefore, we find ourselves in the presence of a gigantic monopoly of buying just as potent for good or evil, as any monopoly in selling, and in many instances either making or influencing prices. Therefore, not through any theory, but through an actual physical fact, the price made by this gigantic buyer dominates the market."

Society Expresses Itself as Convinced of Conductor's Loyalty—Concerts to Continue During War.

The Philharmonic Society, at a formal meeting of its Board of Directors and others of its patrons to the number of seventy-five persons, called together yesterday afternoon at the Park Avenue home of Arthur Curtiss James, voted down a proposal made in some quarters to discontinue concerts for the duration of the war. The Directors unanimously pledged support for next season. The meeting also took up the question of the political status of Conductor Josef Stransky and his orchestra, and indorsed both. According to a statement issued later, "all present expressed themselves as being fully convinced of the loyalty to the United States of Josef Stransky, the conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, and his pro-ally sympathies."

Those present included John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Thomas L. Leeming, Henry E. Cooper, Howard Taylor, Arthur Curtiss James, Miss Anne Deas Duane, Mrs. George L. Cheney, Nelson S. Spencer, Felix Leifels, Francis H. Markoe, Miss Annie B. Jennings, and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James.

Secretary Leifels at the close of the meeting gave out the following resolutions, which he said had been passed unanimously:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the patrons and Directors of the Philharmonic concerts, here assembled, that it would be a serious setback to the musical development of this country to discontinue the Philharmonic concerts, even for the period of the war.

That the concerts should be continued on the same high plane as heretofore.

That we pledge ourselves individually to use our best efforts, through personal subscriptions and in other ways, under the guidance of a committee to raise a guarantee fund to cover the estimated deficit for the coming season, and the balance of the deficit for the season just closed.

Be it further resolved, That the Directors be asked to appoint a committee made up of representatives of their own body and of the patrons to plan and direct this financial campaign.

BREVITY OF TRAINING SEASON BLAMED FOR LAME ARMS IN BIG LEAGUES

Riding the "goat"!

The public takes our advertisements so literally that we now and then find ourselves open to some friendly bantering, though we think that the friends who called recently knew just what we meant whether we said it or not!

It seems, so they claim, that in a discussion, where our advertising had been upheld as proof-positive of what unexaggerated, unadulterated and unvarnished truth in advertising could and would do, somebody had intimated that at the moment we were "getting away with murder" (to quote them exactly) when it came to talking about cutting a first class tailor's bill in half by coming here.

Whether we said "first class," "high class," or "most expensive" ought really to have made but little difference. As it gave rise, however, to some misunderstanding as to just what we had in mind, we're glad to forget that it's hair-splitting and say publicly (to clear the mists of misunderstanding) that the only comparison we ever ask, is with the very highest priced custom made—not "first class for the money" that some less expensive tailors ask, but highest class as understood by the output of New York's best and exclusive tailors.

LAME-ARM EPIDEMIC IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Many Pitchers Not in Shape Because of Short Training Season in South.

DAY OF REST WELCOMED

Manager McGraw Favors Extension of Southern Trip to Six Weeks Next Season.

The three New York teams, Giants, Dodgers, and Yankees, had a day of rest yesterday, wet grounds preventing the game at the Polo Grounds, while the Yankees and Washington were unable to play for the same reason. Managers McGraw and Robinson were both glad to get the layoff, as it is evident that their pitchers are not in shape.

Manager McGraw said yesterday that the training season, limited by the National League to thirty days, was too short and that six weeks were needed, at least, for the pitchers to get into the right physical condition to stand the pitching burden of the early season games. The Giants were lucky in having Anderson and Barnes in good enough shape to pull through the two victories the Giants have already taken from the Dodgers.

In the past the pitchers have taken their time about getting into condition and have found a slow rounding into form only a slight strain on their pitching arms. On account of the short training season, the flingers have been asked to get into shape in such a short space of time that there is an epidemic of lame arms throughout the leagues.

Tesreau was supposed to have been in shape, even more so than the other Giant pitchers, but after four innings of hard pitching he found that his arm was not yet in shape to stand the strain. Ferdie Schupp has a sore arm, and McGraw is afraid to risk Sallee and Benton until the soreness has left their pitching wings.

As all the managers have experienced the same difficulties with their pitchers this Spring an effort will be made to make the training season next year at least six weeks.

The Boston and New York clubs have decided to keep secret the terms under which Charley Herzog was tempted into consenting to play with the Braves. It is supposed that the player got almost everything he asked for, and that the New York club has assumed some of the responsibility of meeting Herzog's demands.

Even with the Giants sharing part of the burden of Herzog's terms, the New York club looks as if it received the better end of the deal, for Doyle looks as if he would be able to hold down the second base job, while Barnes looks like the most valuable addition Manager McGraw could have made to his pitching staff. With Barnes in shape to work in these early season games much of the pitching burden is going to be lifted from the shoulders of McGraw's lame-arm squad.

The experiment of starting ball games at 4:30 o'clock, which was tried at Washington by the Yankees and Senators, brought a storm of protest from the housewives at the national capital because all the fans came straggling home long after the customary dinner hour. As a result the late starting has been abandoned and the games hereafter will start earlier.

The Yankees at Washington showed that the pitching staff is weak and that the batting strength of the club is vastly improved. The Yankees made a lot of runs against the Senators, but they needed them all to win.

In former years the Yanks have been weak in hitting and strong in pitching, but now an opposite state of affairs confronts Miller Huggins. There has been a vast improvement, however, in the playing and in the spirit of the club, and as Huggins is already on the lookout for additional pitching talent, the Yanks will be a much improved aggregation when they made their début at the Polo Grounds next Wednesday.

REDS' RALLY WINS IN NINTH.

Lee Magee Starts Batting Bee and Pirates Lose, 7 to 6.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 18.—Cincinnati won the third game of the series from Pittsburgh here today, 7 to 6, in a sensational ninth inning batting rally. Beaten 6 to 3 in their last inning, Lee Magee and Roush singled.

Miller was taken out and Harmon went into the box for Pittsburgh. He walked Chase, and Griffith hit for two bases, scoring Magee and Roush. Carlson then went into the box.

Neale hit far into left, scoring Chase and Griffith, and the game was over with none out in the ninth. Mollwitz's leaping one-handed catch of a hard liner off Roush's bat was one of the greatest fielding features ever seen at Redland Field.

CUBS POUND DOAK HARD.

St. Louis Pitcher Hammered for Victory by 6 to 4.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 18.—Doak was driven from the mound in the fourth inning of today's game after three singles, two triples, two bases on balls, and an error had given Chicago a lead of five runs over St. Louis. The final score was 6 to 4. The visitors added one in the sixth at May's expense on three singles and a sacrifice.

Vaughn, although a trifle wild at times, was never in danger, although in the ninth Baird connected for a home run, sending in Smith ahead of him.

WHITE SOX BLANK BROWNS.

Williams Holds St. Louis to Four Hits and Wins, 5 to 0.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Claude Williams, backed by perfect support, held St. Louis to four scattered hits, while Chicago batters bunched hits off Shocker, and shut out the visitors, 5 to 0.

Jimmy Austin played third for St. Louis today, as Maisel was called East by the death of his brother.

GREAT PLAY BY SPEAKER.

Tris Rushes to Second Base and Makes Double Unassisted.

CLEVELAND, O., April 18.—Cleveland inaugurated the American League season here by defeating Detroit, 6 to 2. The opening game, which was twice postponed on account of rain, was played today through showers. Cleveland batted Boland hard, but luck was with him and nine hits yielded only one run. Erickson, who relieved him, was wild, and his passes and Bush's error brought about Detroit's defeat, Roth hitting a triple with the bases full.

Speaker trapped a fly ball in the ninth inning and, dashing in to second base, executed a double play unassisted, tagging Vitt, while Ellison was forced. Ty Cobb has recovered from his illness and probably will play tomorrow.

DRAFT HITS CARDS HARD.

St. Louis Nationals May Soon Lose Half Dozen Regular Players.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 18.—Further inroads of the army draft into the St. Louis Nationals became evident today when announcement was made that Douglas Baird and James (Red) Smyth, both team regulars, probably will be placed in class 1-A as soon as the Government acts upon their questionnaires.

Jack Smith yesterday received notice of his class 1-A classification, and it is said he will not be with the club after May 5. Snyder, Horstman and Howard are other class 1-A men who cannot be counted on to finish the season.

ALEXANDER TO GO APRIL 30.

Great National League Pitcher Notified to Report at Camp Funston.

ST. PAUL, Neb., April 18.—The official notice summoning Grower Cleveland Alexander, star pitcher for the Chicago National League Baseball Club, to go with the draft quota from Howard County, Neb., to Camp Funston, April 30, was sent to Chicago by Alexander's draft board today.

MONA LISA JUDGED BEST OF BULLDOGS

Fangmann's Entrant Awarded Leading Laurels in Annual Specialty Show of Club.

Julius M. Fangmann's Monte Carlo Mona Lisa, the winning bitch, which showed like a piece of statuary before the critical eye of Judge Vinton P. Breese, was last night declared the best dog in the tenth annual specialty show of the French Bulldog Club of America. The show was held in the sun parlor of the Waldorf-Astoria, and, despite the war conditions, was even larger than the fixture of last year. Ninety dogs of both sexes were entered and practically all were on exhibition. A large crowd turned out for the show, and the result was an encouraging gate.

Against the Fangmann entry was a collection of good specimens of the French bulldog, but the competition for the best prize simmered down to the animal owned by Fangmann and George M. Stearns's Tyner's Parsque Perfection, which was previously adjudged best dog. Judge Breese was forced to put both these dogs through various paces, and throughout the ordeal Monte Carlo Mona Lisa showed best.

Many prominent dogs of both sexes were defeated, furnishing the enthusiasts several surprises.

POLICE RIDE AT HORSE SHOW

Mounted Traffic Men Give Display of Daring Horsemanship.

Continued applause and shouts of approval from the spectators last night at the Brooklyn Horse Show, being held this week for the benefit of the American Red Cross, greeted a troop of local traffic squad mounted police, commanded by Lieutenant John A. Park, who gave an exhibition drill, followed by rough riding.

This demonstration of cavalry horsemanship was the feature of the second night of the show. The versatility of the uniformed riders, as well as their daring, made them the favorites of the evening's performance. All were mounted on animals of high rating.

Rescuing a woman from a runaway horse was one of the feats demonstrated by a member of the troop. The rider pursued the runaway animal, and when the horses were neck to neck the trooper lifted the imperiled woman bodily from her saddle to the back of his own mount. Picking up handkerchiefs from the ground, a single horseman riding two, three, and four horses at once, and five troopers riding three horses were further feats of riding skill. The spectators were then given a real thrill when one of the members of the troop galloped his horse around the arena while he hung to the saddle by his feet, his head being only a short distance from the ground.

The contest was close, and the judges were compelled to base their decision on the utility of the horses. Mack, the faithful steed ridden by D. T. Tunstall of Traffic Division A, was awarded first prize. He was presented with a gold watch by Thomas L. Leeming, the President of the Riding and Driving Club. Second prize, Gist, ridden by John Bridegroom of Traffic Division B, received from Mr. Leeming a silver wrist watch. Third prize went to Al, ridden by Sergeant T. Darrow of Traffic Division C. Fourth prize went to Lincoln, ridden by J. McGowan of Traffic Division D.

A combination event for horses suitable both for harness and saddle opened the evening, and the first prize, a silver cup offered by Frederick Loeser & Co., Inc., was won by Miss Clara S. Peck, driving and riding her chestnut gelding Allah. The horses were first shown harnessed to vehicles and then under saddle.

Miss Isabella Wanamaker followed her victories of last night by again capturing a blue in the exhibition of pairs of harness horses over 14.2 and under 15.2 hands. The winning team, a chestnut mare named Sauve, and Matchless, a chestnut gelding, showed in excellent style.

Splendid action describes the event for polo mounts. The control of the riders over their mounts won the enthusiasm of the spectators. The "riding off" between contestants made the tanbark fly and after a close fight for premier honors the heavyweight blue was awarded to Maxim Karminski's bay gelding Tony and the lightweight blue went to Miss Sophie N. Pond's bay mare Siren.

The awards:

TWIN CITIES GET FIGHT.

Willard and Fulton to Meet in or Near St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, April 18.—Selection of the Twin Cities as the site for holding the contest for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world between Jess Willard, champion, and Fred Fulton, the Rochester, Minn., challenger, is contingent upon the raising of a subscription of $10,000 in St. Paul and Minneapolis. This announcement was made tonight after a conference between Colonel J. C. Miller, who will stage the battle, and local promoters and enthusiasts. Colonel Miller was told that the $10,000 practically was already subscribed and that a guarantee would be forthcoming by Saturday.

July 4 was immediately fixed as the date for the contest, which, according to the State law, may not exceed ten rounds. The result of the battle will hinge on the referee's decision should both men be on their feet at the end of the ten rounds.

Colonel Miller, after his talk with Minneapolis and St. Paul boxing promoters, business men and enthusiasts, said he had secured their co-operation and the formal closing of the agreement awaited only the $10,000 subscription. He intimated that he would waive the "subscription inducement" if he could obtain the St. Paul baseball park without expense. This, he said, was doubtful, and as a result he thought the deal could be closed within twenty-four hours.

BILLIARD MEN BOOST LOAN.

Plan Campaign to Raise $100,000 for Liberty Bonds.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the New York Billiard Room Owners' Association at Joseph Thum's Academy yesterday afternoon $35,000 was subscribed to the Third Liberty Loan. Speakers from the local Liberty Loan Committee addressed the meeting, and it was decided by the room owners to start a campaign for the loan among the billiard players of the city.

Subscriptions for bonds will be solicited in all the academies, and, according to John Doyle, special matches will be played between professional billiardists at various places in the city in order to attract prospective subscribers to the loan. He said that the association expected to get subscriptions of about $100,000.

CHAJES VICTOR AT CHESS.

Gains on Rival by Winning the Fifteenth Game of Match.

Oscar Chajes, New York State chess champion, gained still more upon D. Janowski of Paris in their chess match at the Manhattan Chess Club yesterday when he won the fifteenth game of the series, thereby opening up a gap of two points between their respective totals. Janowski had the white side of a Queen's pawn game. Chajes won the game after sixty-three moves. The score to date: Chajes, 5; Janowski, 3; drawn, 7.

Stern Beats Lewis at Billiards.

Harry Stern defeated John Lewis at Daly's Billiard Academy last night in the 18.2 balk line match in the American Amateur Billiard Association tournament. Stern won by a score of 200 to 149. His high run was 28 and his average 3 44-52.

JACK HARE JR. TAKES WILMINGTON PURSE

W. E. Applegate's Costly Colt Victor in First Big Clash of Three-Year-Olds.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 18.—W. E. Applegate's clever colt, Jack Hare, Jr., ran away with the first important three-year-old stake of the year here today, when he took down the Wilmington Stakes, a five-and-one-half-furlong test, with more than five lengths of daylight separating him from the rest of the field. A soft, muddy track militated somewhat against the performances of the others in the contest, but the going did not bother Jack Hare, Jr. Although he made a comparatively miserable showing in his first out of the season last Tuesday, Jack Hare, Jr., came back today as if the work of his first race was just what was needed to put him on edge.

From the raising of the barrier to the judges' stand, Jack Hare, Jr., made each furlong post a winning post. E. McBride's Charlie Leydecker hung onto the leader for the first half of the journey, but was unable to hold the speed, and faltered to such an extent toward the end of the race that Emil Herz's imported High Cost almost won second money. Charlie Leydecker got the place by a head, and High Cost was a nose in front of J. S. Tyree's Sweep Up.

Trainer A. Simon exhibited another clever two-year-old from Harry Payne Whitney's stable in the first race of the day. It was Cresson, a filly by All Gold-Bonnie Star, and proved the stamina of its once-famous father by coming from behind in the last furlong to gain its winning brackets in the final strides of the contest by a nose from S. Ross's Armonda. Cresson raced in close pursuit of the others, saved ground on the turn into the stretch, and held on with enough courage in the final strides to outgame its rivals.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For 2-year-old maiden fillies, four furlongs. Cresson, 112 pounds, (Robinson,) $3.30, $2.60, and $2.50, won; Ormonda, 112, (Troxler,) $3 and $2.50, second; Madam Byng, 112, (McAtee,) $3.80, third. Time—0:48. Lendonia, Marmon, Mrs. Kate Leydecker, Superba, and Miss Inver also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—The Wilmington Stakes, for 3-year-olds, five and half furlongs. Sweep Up 2d, Ballast, and Red Sox also ran.

TITLEHOLDERS WIN BOUTS.

Sieger and Kamins Come Through in Bensonhurst Tourney.

Two amateur bantamweight boxing champions were among the contestants last night in the preliminary round bouts of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club's amateur tournament, and both of them came through their trials successfully. Sam Sieger of the Rutgers Place Gymnasium, New York State titleholder at 108 pounds, won by default from P. Gilmore of the Union Settlement A. C. in the 110-pound class. In the same division Dave Kamins of the Clark House A. A., holder of the metropolitan district championship at 108 pounds, competed against F. Sinclair, unattached. Kamins earned the judges' award in three rounds. Sam Nable, a runner-up for title honors at this poundage in last year's tournaments, also was successful, getting the judges' award over W. Stewart of the Ozanam A. A.

In addition to the 110-pound class, there were bouts at 118, 128, and 138 pounds. The 118 and 128 pound divisions were for novices who had never won a first prize at an amateur boxing tournament. One of the largest entry lists of the season was received for the tournament, and the result was a number of interesting exhibitions.

"A Mere Bit of Womanhood"

JUST as the Belgian treaty was a "mere scrap of paper" ground by the German heel into the bleeding heart of Belgium, so is this woman a mere straw of helpless humanity in the crushing paws of German brutality.

She is the victim of a broken faith that has unleashed unspeakable forces that we thought had died with the savages.

Not all the tears of Europe have made any appeal to the German heart—for there is no German heart!

Not all the German-made pledges of honor can stay the ruthless German hand—for there is no German honor!

Not all our prayers for peace are of any avail—for the German does not want a peace of justice, but of territory and gold and enslaved subjects!

Remember that there is no longer any geography in this war. For who is he who can mark the boundaries that confine German hate, lust and greed?

The Western Front is our own front door these days! What are you going to do about it?

CALIFORNIA LEADS FIGHT ON DISLOYALTY

Death Penalty Provided in Bills Establishing Court-Martial in Sedition Cases.

HOPE TO REACH I. W. W.

Sacramento Editor Tells How Vigilance Committee Ended Further Outrages on Pacific Coast.

Out of the experience of Sacramento, Cal., where, just as its inhabitants were preparing last year for their Christmas merrymaking, the Executive Mansion was wrecked and the entire city shaken as the result of a bombing outrage committed in an attempt on the life of Governor William D. Stephens, has grown an insistent demand that the arm of the Federal Government be strengthened so that disloyalty by word or deed may be effectively dealt with by the Federal authorities in the future.

In response to this demand bills have been introduced in Congress by Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon and Congressman Charles F. Curry of California, who represents the State capital district. These measures provide for heavy penalties and trial by court-martial, not only for acts but for utterances of a disloyal and seditious character.

V. S. McClatchy, publisher of The Sacramento Bee, to whose earnest advocacy is due in large measure the initiative taken by Senator Chamberlain and Congressman Curry, revealed to a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday a chapter of Sacramento history not generally known in the East which prompted his propaganda and led to the introduction of the Chamberlain and Curry bills. From what Mr. McClatchy had to tell it would appear that it required the organization of a vigilance committee by the people of Sacramento and a demand by the counsel for the I. W. W.'s of California, who ordinarily hold law and order in such contempt, for the law's protection against lynching to stir the Federal authorities into action which led to the indictment and punishment of some forty-five members of the organization after their release had been ordered by an agent of the Department of Justice.

The attempt on Governor Stephens's life was made on the night of Dec. 17 last year. The entire rear end of his mansion was blown out. It was only by a miracle that the Chief Executive and members of his family, all asleep within the house, escaped injury or death.

Gave Three Cheers for the Kaiser.

"The next morning, after Sacramento had partly recovered from the shock, the Chief of Police swooped down on the local headquarters of the I. W. W.," said Mr. McClatchy. "He gathered in forty-eight members of the organization and took along a mass of papers found at headquarters. No sooner had the prisoners been lodged in jail than one of the leaders proposed three rousing cheers for the Kaiser. These were given with a will by the other members of the band. For three or four days afterward, while they remained in the city jail, the neighborhood for blocks around was stirred into a white heat of indignation as the people who lived there were compelled to listen night and day to foul curses heaped on the Federal Government and on the head of President Wilson and to loudly shouted hopes that every man who went to the west front in the military service of the United States would promptly meet his fate at the hands of our enemies, the Germans."

Finally an agent of the Federal Department of Justice was dispatched from San Francisco. He was told of the conduct and disloyal utterances of the I. W. W. prisoners. After spending three or four hours examining the papers seized in the raid on the I. W. W. headquarters, he directed that all of the prisoners, except three, against whom incriminating evidence had been found in the papers, be released.

"We held a hurried conference, Governor Stephens, Mayor D. W. Carmichael of Sacramento, the Federal agent whose name was Rathbun, and myself," said Mr. McClatchy. "Mayor Carmichael told Rathbun that it would be most unwise to turn the I. W. W. men loose. The Mayor was told, however, that there was no law which gave authority under which men could be held for disloyal utterances, in the absence of prima facie evidence of any disloyal act or participation in a conspiracy to commit such an act."

No Law to Cover the Case.

After a careful scrutiny of the California statutes had revealed that there was not embodied in these any provision to meet the situation, Mayor Carmichael directed the Chief of Police on his own authority to hold all the prisoners. Then and there it was decided to organize a Vigilance Committee to deal with the I. W. W. men, should the local authorities finally be compelled to release them. Telegrams were sent to Senator Hiram W. Johnson in Washington and to the Attorney General, fully advising them of the course determined upon, since the arm of the United States did not seem long or strong enough to mete out merited punishment to a group of men who had openly defied and cursed the Government to the deep humiliation of the loyal people of Sacramento.

Federal Agent Rathbun, according to Mr. McClatchy, had even expressed himself as unwilling to assume responsibility for holding the prisoners long enough to permit the local authorities to look up their records and antecedents. The telegrams to Washington, however, largely through the vigorous representations made by Senator Johnson, brought quick results.

"Three hours after the message had been sent," said Mr. McClatchy, "a long distance telephone communication was received from United States District Attorney Preston, in San Francisco. He was anxious to know whether the prisoners had been released and urged that if they had not they be held. This was after the counsel for the I. W. W. organization in California had sent a telegram to the Department of Justice, in which, waving aside the well-known I. W. W. contempt for law and order, he had invoked the protection of the law for the prisoners against lynching at the hands of our newly formed vigilance committee."

The Sacramento Vigilance Committee did not have a large membership. It was a secret organization. Mr. McClatchy remained in ignorance of who the members were. "All I know," he said, "is that it was composed of responsible, reliable, temperate, but resolute citizens who were determined to see to it that absolute justice was done and at whose hands no one whose guilt was not evident had anything to fear."

I. W. W. Headquarters Closed.

The vigilance committee had no sooner been formed than the local headquarters of the I. W. W was closed for good. Fifteen of the forty-eight men who had cheered the Kaiser and cursed our own Government in jail at once filed a disclaimer of any connection with the I. W. W. The committee had means of keeping in close touch with developments in relation to the imprisoned I. W. W. men and to receive instant information with regard to any disloyal utterances or any attempt at disloyal acts. It was never called upon to step in and play the part of summary justice, the mere knowledge that it existed had such a wholesome influence in the community.

"That, of course, was all well and good," said Mr. McClatchy, "but it would have been far better if the Federal authorities had stepped in at the start and done what they have done since in the case of the forty-eight I. W. W. men who were put in jail simply because we forced the issue. With the exception of two or three the prisoners have been indicted, and nearly all of them for what occurred after they had been locked up. Only a few have been held on charges originating before the raid on the headquarters.

"In my opinion, it is the apparent unwillingness on the part of the Federal authorities to deal in a spirit of stern and unremitting justice with disloyal utterances that is responsible for lynchings which we must lament and for bringing tar and feathers into play again. Undoubtedly these things will continue and many innocent persons will suffer unless Congress awakens to a realization of its duty and enacts laws which will leave no doubt regarding the powers of the United States Government to deal with belligerents at home as drastically as they are dealt with abroad."

The Curry bill declares these to be unlawful acts:

To utter by word of mouth or by writing any disloyal statement.

To spread by word of mouth or by writing false reports, or reports likely to cause disaffection to the Government or to interfere with the success of the Government's forces by land or sea or to prejudice the Government's relations with foreign powers.

To teach, advocate, promote, or encourage, or to be, or become a member of any society, organization, group, or assemblage of persons that teaches, advocates, or encourages sabotage, murder, the destruction of property, or the commission of crime, violence, or other unlawful acts of terrorism for any purpose whatever.

Carries Death Penalty.

It is provided that none of the above provisions shall be deemed to inhibit fair and honest criticism of the official acts of the Government or any of its officials.

One section of the bill provides that "every person who shall conspire with any other person to destroy any building or structure in such a way that the life of a human being may be endangered shall be guilty of a felony" punishable by death or imprisonment for a period not exceeding fifty years. Other offenses defined in the bill are punishable by imprisonment not to exceed twenty years or by a fine of $25,000. The bill also provides for trial by court-martial.

The Chamberlain bill was introduced to meet a situation arising out of a decision by the United States Supreme Court in 1866 in a case growing out of the civil war. The court, divided, and by a majority of one decided that trials in sedition cases shall be held before civil tribunals wherever conditions are such as to render it possible for such tribunals to sit, and that court-martials shall hold jurisdiction solely in the actual theatre of war. This decision has been incorporated in many State Constitutions and has been invoked by labor organizations frequently when attempts have been made for dealing in a more summary manner with acts of violence growing out of labor disturbances. They made a fight along such lines before the recent Constitutional Convention in this State.

The Chamberlain bill affords a revised construction of the term war zone:

"That, owing to changes in the conditions of modern warfare, whereby the enemy now attempts to attack and injure the successful prosecution of the war by the United States by means of civilian and other agents and supporters behind the lines spreading false statements and propaganda, injuring and destroying the things and utilities prepared or adapted for the use of the land and naval forces of the United States, he is constituting the United States a part of the zone of operations conducted by the enemy."

It was Sacramento's second warlike experience with the I. W. W.'s. Several years ago San Francisco wearied of their presence, and gathering its adherents in the city shipped them across the bay to Oakland with rations to take them some distance on their way across the continent, which they were preparing to negotiate the best they could and, as they hoped, at the expense of the public. In Oakland they camped in a public park until the people got worried, and, again providing them with rations, escorted them to the adjacent County of Contra Costa. From county to county they were dispatched in a similar fashion until they reached the County of Yolo, across the river from Sacramento. Fifteen hundred strong, they descended on the capital of California, the members of the band dispersing throughout the city, terrorizing women and children, while the leaders made demands on the city authorities for four days' rations and free transportation to the Nevada boundary.

"We fear that unless our demands are granted, we will be unable to keep our following in check," or words to that effect accompanied the demand. To this implied threat the spokesman for the Sacramento City Government responded in effect that if the I. W. W. leaders did not know how to deal with their followers, the City of Sacramento would find a way of handling them.

In the latest I. W. W. unpleasantness it was a Vigilance Committee. On this earlier occasion it was the "Pick Handle Brigade" that rounded up the I. W. W. and drove them across the bridge over the Sacramento River and back into the County of Yolo. Here the band camped for some time until disintegration set in.

"They went all over the country complaining of the brutal treatment they had received in Sacramento and tried hard to give our city a bad name with the workingmen, so we made up our mind, last December, that we would stand no nonsense," said Mr. McClatchy. "Of course I am glad that the Federal authorities found a way to deal with the offenders, but had they been released our Vigilance Committee would have dealt with them in even more summary fashion than did the Pick Handle Brigade of old."

HELD FOR PREACHING AGAINST LIBERTY LOAN

CLEVELAND, April 18.—A. L. Hitchcock, Socialist member of the Board of Education, was arrested this afternoon on a warrant issued by United States Commissioner Marlatt, charging him with violating provisions of the Espionage act by making remarks against the Liberty Loan. Hitchcock waived preliminary examination and was bound over to the Grand Jury. In a speech at Sandusky on April 6, Hitchcock is alleged to have made this reference to the Liberty Loan:

"I do not believe in the Liberty Loan. Every dollar goes into the pockets of profiteers. I won't contribute any of my money to the war profiteers. By purchasing bonds you are aiding the political ambitions of the head of our Government. All who buy bonds are being hoaxed."

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 18.—Five Austrians who refused to purchase Liberty Bonds at the Lyttle colliery, near here, were taken by the heels by the workmen and dipped into a steel tank used for heating oil for the colliery engines. Threats to sue the ring-leaders of the crowd brought the statement that a suit would result in the Austrians being strung up. The men all purchased bonds today.

AYER, Mass., April 18. — Sergeant Ernest L. Plentje of Cambridge, a member of the 301st Infantry of the national army, who is on trial at Camp Devens charged with disloyal utterances, took the witness stand in his own defense today and denied all the twenty specifications against him. He asserted that he was not disloyal, and that if he had made any of the statements charged it was in the heat of argument with supposed friends.

Evidence was introduced today to show that Plentje was discharged from the navy a few years ago because of alleged "traitorous and treasonable statements." In this connection he was quoted as having said in a saloon at Portsmouth, N. H., that if this country went to war with Germany he would blow up the ship before he would fight with a German vessel.

The trial will be continued next Monday.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 18.—Walter Schade, an automobile agent, was arrested here today by United States Marshal James on a Presidential warrant charged with being a "dangerous enemy alien." Schade, who is a Prussian, has lived in this country fifteen years without becoming naturalized. His wife, who was killed about a year ago in an automobile accident, was a sister of Walker D. Hines, an assistant to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo as Director General of Railroads.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 18.—Flavio Gionabile of Webster was held in $5,000 for Federal Grand Jury today by United States Commissioner Frank F. Dresser on a charge of obstructing the draft.

Keppel Confirmed as War Aid.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Appointment of Frederick P. Keppel, Dean of Columbia University, to be Assistant Secretary of War was confirmed today by the Senate.

ARREST THREE HERE FOR EVADING CENSOR

Two Steamship Men and an Exporter Accused of Violating Mail Regulations.

RESERVE OFFICER INVOLVED

Letter He Sent to Woman Friend Revealed Routes of Ships in War Zones.

Giuseppi Schiffiano, an officer on an Italian steamship plying between New York and the Mediterranean, was arrested by agents of the Naval Intelligence Service yesterday charged with violating the war regulations. The charge is that he brought into this country an uncensored letter from an officer of the United States Naval Reserve, now on duty in European waters, in which the officer disclosed information which the censor would have deleted had the document passed through his hands.

When arrested, Schiffiano, on whose person the letter was found, told all he knew about the matter. He said the officer had given him the letter and had asked him to mail it on his arrival in New York. The letter is addressed to a woman friend of the writer. The Reserve officer wrote concerning the kind of work he was doing, and also imparted certain information, it was said, regarding routes taken through the war zones. The officer is also said to have written about a mysterious ship that the Americans, according to his letter, are using against the U-boats.

"If any one at home makes fun of the Naval Reserve, just tell them what the Reserve is doing," the officer said in the letter.

The Federal authorities refused to make public the name of the officer who wrote the letter. The matter will be referred to the Navy Department in Washington for action, so far as the officer is concerned, and it was said that he might find himself before a court-martial as a result of his indiscretion.

Schiffiano was arraigned before United States Commissioner McGoldrick in Brooklyn yesterday. He admitted bringing the letter into the country, and was held in $1,000 bail for the action of the Grand Jury.

Rene Fribourg, an importer and exporter, living at 200 West Fifty-eighth Street, with an office in the Equitable Building, and George Masure, Captain of the Belgian relief ship Liege, were arrested yesterday by Thomas McAniff, United States Inspector of Customs.

They were arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock charged with "unlawfully, wilfully, and feloniously conspiring to commit an offense against the United States, in transmitting letters to and from this country outside the mails."

The complaint said that since August last the prisoners had been engaged in passing communications between this country and Holland.

Both prisoners waived examination. Fribourg was held in $2,500 bail for the Federal Grand Jury. Captain Masure was held in $100 bail. Assistant Attorney Julian Hartridge recommended that the bail be nominal in the shipmaster's case, as it was understood he knew nothing of the contents of the missives he carried. Bail was furnished in both instances.

Counsel for Fribourg said that the letters were personal communications to Fribourg's sister and that the last letter received by Fribourg was one in which his sister simply thanked him for some shoes. Fribourg and Captain Masure are Belgians.

Matthews Vaitiekounos, a Lithuanian, was placed on trial yesterday before Judge Thomas I. Chatfield, in the United States District Court in Brooklyn, charged with carrying on board the U. S. S. Madawaska a detonator used in setting off explosives. Assistant District Attorney Thomas J. Cuff conducted the prosecution. The defendant was represented by Lawyer Louis Rothbard.

The defendant testified that he was 32 years of age and married. He said that his sympathies were with the Allies and asserted that the detonator must have been placed in his pocket by somebody other than himself. The trial will be resumed today.

AIR MAIL SERVICE TO CAPITAL STARTS MAY 15

Running Time Will Be Four Hours—To Carry Letters for 24 Cents an Ounce.

Plans have been completed for the opening on May 15 of the first air mail route to be established in America, according to an announcement by the New York City postal authorities yesterday. The route, between New York and Washington, with a short stop at Philadelphia, will be covered by mail planes in an actual running time of four hours, providing there is no head wind. Mail will be delivered within the hour after arrival at its destination.

The War Department is furnishing two airplanes for the service, each capable of carrying 300 pounds of mail, and with a speed of ninety miles an hour. New York mail will leave Belmont Field, Long Island, at 11:30 each morning, arriving in Washington at 3:30 P. M. There will be a stop at Philadelphia only long enough to take mail on and off. The same hours apply to the delivery from Washington. Trains will carry the mails between New York City and Belmont Field.

Instructions issued by the department for the new service declare that the price of air mail will be twenty-four cents for each ounce. It is pointed out that this is only nine cents more than the price of a special delivery letter, and delivery will be made a full hour and a half earlier. Letters must be mailed in New York so as to reach the Pennsylvania Station before 11 o'clock in the morning to go by airplane.

While the plans of the Post Office Department call for only two planes now, the authorities declare that, if justified by the demand, they will gladly increase the service. They are asking for the co-operation particularly of big firms, and for the last few days have been quietly canvassing the city to ascertain just how much business houses will take advantage of the new mail route.

HEARST CALLS ON HYLAN.

Editor Makes First Visit to City Hall Since Gaynor's Time.

William R. Hearst and Mayor Hylan had a conference yesterday at the latter's office in the City Hall. Later they went to luncheon together, accompanied by Mrs. Hearst and Grover A. Whalen, the Mayor's secretary. The visit led to reports that the Mayor and the editor, who is understood to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor this Fall, had discussed politics. The Mayor had nothing to say regarding the visit. It was said to be the first time that Mr. Hearst had visited City Hall since early in Mayor Gaynor's administration.

The Hearst automobile, containing Mr. and Mrs. Hearst, drew up in front of the City Hall shortly after 1 o'clock. While Mrs. Hearst went across the plaza to the Liberty Loan booth the editor went into the Mayor's private office. In about twenty minutes he was joined by Mrs. Hearst, and when the Mayor emerged from his office he was smilingly happily and talking earnestly with the editor.

In Times of War—Build Up Your Body

If your blood's a slacker, your body can't measure up to the needs of a war-stricken world. Nature and Gude's Pepto-Mangan are powerful allies in routing the physical disorders that spring from poor blood.
In times of peace the need for able-bodied men and women is great enough. In times of war it is trebly great. Yet for every man fit to fight and every woman fit to do war work, there is a man or woman incapacitated by physical weakness.
The average weak person has no serious organic trouble. He is run-down, anemic, and under weight because his blood is below par. The depleted red blood cells are unable to perform their vital function of carrying and distributing life-giving oxygen to all parts of the body.
If you are numbered among such men and women, cast off the shackles of ill health and weakness. Step forth physically regenerated into a world that needs strong, enduring men and women as never before. Combine abundant fresh air, sleep, exercise, and sensible diet with Gude's Pepto-Mangan, "The Red Blood Builder."

Study this picture so you will know how genuine Pepto-Mangan looks.
Gude's Pepto-Mangan
"The Red Blood Builder"
Try Gude's Pepto-Mangan for the quick upbuilding of your blood and the reconstruction of your whole system.
Gude's Pepto-Mangan is more than a temporary tonic. It is a true blood builder. It fills the red blood cells with new vigor. It increases their number. It helps to make you the red-blooded man or woman Nature meant you to be.
Physicians everywhere endorse and prescribe Gude's Pepto-Mangan, because they recognize its unequalled blood-building value, its worth as a general tonic and appetizer, its agreeable taste, its ease of digestibility. They have used it for twenty-five years.
FRIENDLY WARNING: There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

Steel Leads Sharp Advance Made on New Turn in War News—Money Up.

Judging by the movement of prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday the great battle in Flanders is not going at all to the Germans' liking. The opening did not reflect much uneasiness over the disturbing situation described in the dispatches carried by the morning papers and few issues opened under their previous night's final figures. For the first part of the session the market was firm but not active, a condition which was promptly succeeded by spirited buying on advancing prices when news was received of the arrival of French reinforcements for the hard pressed British. It had been expected for several days that something would be heard from General Foch before the German drive at Messines and other strategic points had made as much progress as has been reported, and the dispatches yesterday telling of the beginning of a terrific counterbombardment by the French was followed immediately by increased activity and rising prices.

Yesterday's market was led by Steel, which moved forward in aggressive fashion and closed up 2½ points for the day. In its wake traveled Republic Iron and Steel with a net gain of 2⅛, Lackawanna with 1½ and Bethlehem B with 1⅝. Gains of 2 points or more were also scored in Industrial Alcohol, Texas Company, New York Air Brake, American Sugar, American Ice, and several issues which were less active.

Dealings in Government bonds were on a larger scale than has been seen for some sessions past, with the second 4s moving upward and closing at their best price for the day. Call money, after several days at terms more favorable to the borrower, loaned throughout most of the session at 6 per cent. yesterday.

On the Cotton Exchange the tendency was upward at the opening, but another break was brought about on resumption of reports to the effect that it is only a matter of time until the Government fixes prices for cotton yarns and cloths, and possibly for raw material as well. The close was made well under Wednesday's final prices.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Trend of Battle Sentiment.

When news was received at the Stock Exchange around 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon that the French had opened a terrific artillery fire against the Germans, the brokers raised a cheer which was heard far down Broad and New Streets. The shouting represented relief to feelings overtense in regard to the pressure on the British front, and was followed by increased activity in stocks. Around the Steel post the members surged back and forth, executing buying orders which carried the quotation to its highest point of the day, at 94⅝. In practically all directions the industrial list moved forward with vigor, and, as the market had previously been fairly strong, the spurt was enough to leave quotations close to their best levels at the close.

Steel's Loaning Rate.

Brokers reported an unusual occurrence in the loan crowd after the stock market closed, when the borrowing rate for Steel common stood equal to the average rate for other issues. Usually the supply of Steel is so plentiful that in order to borrow money on it from brokers in the crowd the borrowers have to pay a higher interest rate than the general run of stocks command. The rate is reported usually from one-half to 1 per cent. higher. Yesterday Steel loaned at 4½ per cent., except for a few transactions, the same as the average issues. The movement indicated a scarcity of Steel as collateral for call loans on the board.

Spanish Exchange Reacts.

Spanish exchange dropped 2½ cents to the peseta yesterday, following a decline on Wednesday. The influence prompting the recession appeared to have foreign origin, and it was only a secondary movement as far as the New York market was concerned. While specific information was lacking, it was assumed in some banking quarters that Great Britain had made a credit arrangement at Madrid. Such a step has been forecast of late in London banking comment. At 26½ cents a peseta for cable transfer, the rate reflected a reaction of 4½ cents from the top price of the week.

Nerves and Good Judgment.

Nerves are apparently beginning to show signs of wear and tear on the local cotton market as a result of the three weeks of spasms which it has been experiencing. At least, the cool heads yesterday couldn't find much but nerves to account for a break of more than 100 points in a few minutes upon the re-entrance, in novel form, of one of the most frequent visitors to the floor this season—the price-fixing bogey. Three or four weeks ago price-fixing stories as positive and circumstantial as yesterday's, and much more reasonable-sounding, didn't produce one-half the effect in an entire session that yesterday's story did in half an hour. As for the men who really handle the cotton crop, as distinguished from speculators, they seemed unanimously to regard the project of a fixed price of 20 cents for raw cotton as absurd.

Prices and Price-Fixing.

"As it is, with the present scarcity of labor and fertilizers, we are going to see, unless somethng is done to save the situation, the biggest abandoned acreage in cotton this year the South ever saw," one big spot dealer said. "To tell the farmers now that they cannot hope to get more than 20 cents a pound next Fall would mean that a year from now you'd be paying $1.50 for a pound of cotton to put in a museum showcase." Another large dealer in cotton has worked out, and presented yesterday, figures to show that a fixed price for cotton, to compare with present wheat prices on a per-acre basis, must be at least 35 cents a pound.

New Haven Dividends.

There appears to have been some misunderstanding from the reports yesterday of the allusions made in the New Haven stockholders' meeting last Wednesday to the possibility of dividends under the Government control contract. The New Haven management is not making any definite promises of dividends, but wished to inform the stockholders that, under the Government contract, there is almost certain to be a surplus available for dividends amounting to at least 1 per cent., and possibly to as much as 3½ per cent., a year on the capital stock. A careful calculation made for THE NEW YORK TIMES some months ago put the amount at approximately 3 per cent., with possibilities for more under a liberal allowance for the additions and betterments the road has been carrying out. But this does not mean that dividends will actually be paid. The management may consider that the best interests of the stockholders are served by reserving this surplus to strengthen the road's position when it is handed back to them.

The Shipowners' Bargain.

Evidences are accumulating of the reasons behind the pleasure of stockholders in coastwise shipping companies on finding themselves removed from the control of the Shipping Board and sheltered under the aegis of Mr. McAdoo. The latest development reported in the long negotiations between shipping companies and the Shipping Board, regarding the compensation to be paid them as operating agents of commandeered shipping for the Government, is this: The British Shipping Controller, under similar circumstances, pays operating firms the classic fee of 5 per cent. on the freight list. American shippers, in the honest belief that they were making a patriotic sacrifice to the Government, after discussion among themselves, offered to do the work for 2½ per cent. But the Shipping Board, apparently interpreting this as a haggling price, promptly offered a flat rate of 1 per cent. Shipping men who have been doing the work since Oct. 15 last for nothing, in the hope that eventually the board would deal as frankly with them as they with the board, naturally regard such a proposition a little doubtfully.

FAVORS HOUSING BILL.

City Club President Urges Senators to Act Quickly.

In letters to United States Senators Wadsworth and Calder, made public last night, the City Club, through its President, Nelson S. Spencer, pleads for the quick passage of the Housing bill, with its $60,000,000 appropriation for Government housing of workers at munition plants and other enterprises identified with the military program. The bill was held up in the Senate because of unexpected Republican opposition, though a similar measure carrying $50,000,000 for homes for shipyard workers has been passed.

Mr. Spencer takes issue particularly with Senator Fall, who was reported as objecting to the bill because he said the Government proposed to continue in competition with private enterprise after the war. The club's head points out that the bill only provides for the Government to dispose of its interests after the war ends. The letter also emphasizes the fact that the building season is on and that delay now would mean another year's crippling of industries which admittedly have been hampered by lack of facilities for caring for their workers.

BANKER URGES PLAN FOR DIVIDING TAXES

Head of American Association Asks Clearing Houses to Support Installment Proposal.

FEARS STRAIN ON CREDIT

Says Payment of Vast Amount Due on June 15 Is Likely to Cause Contraction.

In the belief that preparations for meeting the heavy Federal income and excess profits taxes that will have to be paid on June 15 are mainly responsible for delay in making subscriptions to the Liberty Loan, bankers all over the country are endeavoring to convince Congress and the Secretary of the Treasury of the advisability of enacting legislation providing for the payment of taxes in installments. Various bills on the subject have been introduced.

According to bankers who have discussed the matter with Secretary McAdoo, his objection to the plan is based on the ground that some corporations and individuals have already made arrangements to pay their taxes by investments in Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

Sales of the so-called tax certificates have amounted approximately to $1,400,000,000, which is one-half or one-third of the estimated payments due on June 15. Bankers say that those corporations which have bought certificates and are prepared to pay their taxes on June 15 should be permitted to do so, while others should have more time in which to pay. It is also asserted that the so-called tax certificates mature on June 25, and it is not obligatory upon holders to turn them in for taxes, but they may retain them until maturity, when the Government will pay its obligations.

In some parts of the country, bankers are apprehensive lest the heavy payments on June 15 will cause an unsettlement in banking conditions, by seriously affecting the money markets, and many of them have written letters and sent telegrams urging the passage of bills providing for installment payments of taxes

Urges the Installment Proposal.

C. A. Hinsch, President of the Fifth-Third National Bank of Cincinnati, as President of the American Bankers' Association, which has a membership of nearly 18,000 banks and trust companies, has sent a letter to all the Clearing Houses of the country, enlisting their support for the tax installment proposal. In the letter he says:

"You are doubtless familiar with the provisions of the Pomerene bill—Senate 3,963—providing for the payment of the income and excess profit tax on the installment plan, as follows: One-sixth on July 15, one-sixth each month thereafter; deferred payments carrying interest at 3 per cent.

"The Government estimated this tax would produce about $2,800,000,000. It is now believed that the tax will produce in excess of $5,000,000,000. If this vast amount is made due and payable on any single date, it is liable to bring about a contraction in credit that is neither necessary nor desirable.

"A great many concerns have invested a large percentage of their profits of last year in brick, mortar, and machinery, to increase the production of the things needed by the Government in the prosecution of the war, and they are now confronted with the necessity of paying a large percentage of these profits in cash to the Government on June 15. At the same time they find it necessary to carry abnormally large stocks of merchandise, which at the prices that now obtain absorb a large proportion of their working capital.

"A great many concerns have already exhausted their bank lines, and it is therefore believed that it would be wise if this tax could be paid out of current profits, which would be possible under the installment plan. I realize that the Government needs the money and must have it. Short-time Treasury certificates, however, could be sold to mature in harmony with the several installments provided by the Pomerene bill.

Aid to Bond Campaign.

"On April 6 we began a campaign for the sale of a large amount of Liberty bonds, and it is desirable, therefore, for our people to look forward to the financial future of this country with courage and confidence, which is fully justified by the wealth of this country, and which has been placed at approximately $300,000,000,000. Many who desire to evidence their patriotism by subscribing for Liberty bonds may find it somewhat difficult to do so unless some provision is made for the payment of the income and excess profit tax on the installment plan.

"Unless, therefore, it is inimical to the best interests of the Government, I believe that the Pomerene bill or a modification thereof should be enacted into law. Possibly the first payment of one-sixth should be made on May 15, equal monthly payments thereafter; deferred payments to carry 4 per cent. interest.

"This measure was presented by referendum to the Federal Legislative Council of the American Bankers' Association and received an almost unanimous indorsement.

"I would suggest, if you approve of the Pomerene bill or a modification thereof, that your association adopt resolutions in harmony therewith, and that copies be sent to Senator Pomerene, Secretary McAdoo, the Senators from your State, and the Congressmen from your district.

"I will appreciate your advising me, care of the American Bankers' Association, New York City, of the action, if any, taken by your association."

McADOO TO START LAKE LINE

Seven Vessels to Operate Between Buffalo, Chicago, and Milwaukee.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—To relieve railroads of much through traffic between the East and West, Director General McAdoo today ordered the establishment of a Great Lakes steamship line under the railroad administration to operate seven ships between Buffalo and Chicago and Milwaukee. Other vessels may be added later.

This action is in line with the Director General's policy of hauling heavy freight by water whenever possible and leaving the rail lines freer to handle commodities requiring speedy transportation. The lake service, to be started within a week or two, will take much of the overflow of bulk freight moving westward from Eastern manufacturing centres. All-rail rates will prevail, and to a great extent it will be optional with the railroads as to the method of transportation.

Thousands of cars are now held up on Western railroads as a result of the congestion at the big Western terminals and the inability of Eastern roads to accept the traffic. Considerable of this freight now will be taken by the steamers and the freight cars released.

"Shippers of heavy staple commodities from the East, such as sugar, coffee, and manufactured articles," said a railroad administration announcement, "will take advantage of this service, as it will be a steady and regular movement. There will be assigned to this lake line service seven large, modern, electric lighted steamships, and it is intended to work day and night shifts at the terminal points, so that the ships can be turned rapidly and afford the greatest possible relief to the railroads. It will be known as the Lehigh Valley Transportation Company and will serve all Eastern trunk lines over a common terminal at Buffalo. Two of the ships assigned were owned by the Lehigh Valley Railroad; the other five were chartered from the Great Lakes Transit Corporation. Additional ships will be added as the service requires."

The all-rail rates which will prevail are to include marine insurance.

READING CO. EARNS $9,780,242 IN YEAR

Decreased Profits of Railroad Offset by Increased Income of Coal Concern.

The annual reports of the Reading Company, holding corporation for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company and the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company, and of those two subsidiaries made public yesterday, show taht the railroad's income fell off to a marked degree during 1917, while the coal company's income increased to an even greater extent, so that on balance the profits of the holding company, despite heavy increases in taxes, increased slightly during the year, the figures for 1917 being $9,780,242, and for 1916 $9,543,186.

The report was made for the calendar year 1917 and also for the last six months of 1916, as the corporation a year ago changed its fiscal year to correspond with the calendar year. During this odd period of six months, however, as compared with the corresponding period of 1915, conditions were reversed, the coal company making a poorer showing and the railroad a better one, and the holding company, on balance, showing a slightly smaller return—$5,521,606, as against $5,855,631 for the final six months of 1915.

The Reading Company in 1917 reported total receipts of $8,395,107, as against $8,643,453 in 1916, and paid taxes of $416,830, as against $335,000 in 1916. The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company reported for 1917 total receipts of $49,896,908, an increase of $7,195,847, almost exactly the entire amount being represented by increased anthracite sales, which form about 98 per cent. of the company's business. Expenses increased during the year by $8,707,635, to a total of $43,308,941, and taxes went up from $207,308 to $1,151,383. The net profit for the year, with this and other adjustments, consequently rose from $2,463,790 to $5,436,633.

On the other hand, while the operating revenue of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad increased in 1917 by $6,578,329 to a total of $66,831,398, the largest total in the history of the road, operating expenses, as was the case with every other important railroad property in the United States, increased also, in the case of the Reading by $11,819,825, to a total of $46,699,283. Taxes increased from $1,729,465 to $2,036,567, non-operating income fell off slightly, and as a result of this and other changes the net income of the company declined from $14,656,914 to $8,500,649.

The net income of the Reading Company, after deductions for preferred stock dividends of $2,380,000, amounted to $7,400,242, equivalent to $10.57 a share on the common stock of the company. Dividends of $8 a share are paid.

CHARGES PAVING MONOPOLY

Commissioner Hirshfield Says W. H. Childs's Company Holds It.

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield reported to Mayor Hylan yesterday that after an investigation he had discovered that one concern, the Barrett Company of 17 Battery Place, the President of which is William Hamlin Childs, who was Chairman of the Fusion Committee of 1917, which ran Mayor Mitchel's campaign for re-election against Mayor Hylan, enjoyed a monopoly in supplying wood block pavement to the city. Mr. Hirshfield, who made his investigation at the request of Mayor Hylan, recommended changes in the specifications to allow other firms to compete. He reported that he found that only wood block treated with an oil produced by a process controlled by the Barrett Company was acceptable under present specifications. Pending the proposed change in the specifications, Commissioner Hirshfield recommended that as little wood block material as possible be used by the city. At his home last night Mr. Childs denied that his company enjoyed any such monopoly as Mr. Hirshfield asserted.

"The Barrett Company, to begin with," he said, "does not sell wood block paving. It sells the oil, and in selling this oil it competes right along with other concerns, which can and do compete successfully with it. Just now it happens that we have the oil and others have not, but we have taken no advantage of the city on that account. We sell our oil to the Highway Departments of the various boroughs, each of which has its own specifications. We never have asked for special privileges and we never have had any concern with politics.

"So far as wood block is concerned, another firm of which I am President, the United States Wood Preserving Company, does sell that. We sold the city $421,000 worth in 1913, the first year of Mayor Mitchel's administration, and we sold steadily less each year—only $52,000 worth last year. At present we are giving our entire output to the Government, and have not the slightest interest in a city monopoly."

SEES POSTAL LAW MENACE.

J. A. Thayer Says New Regulation Will Injure Periodicals.

John Adams Thayer of the Periodical Publishers Association spoke last night in the Aldine Club at the dinner of the New York Advertising Agents Association on "The New Postal Regulation." He declared the regulation was a law so drastic and serious that it was a menace to the nation.

"To sum up, the results of this law will be severe and far-reaching," he said. "It will destroy much of the magazine reading; it will defeat its own purpose, which is that of avowedly collecting additional war revenue; it will put thousands of magazines, periodicals, and farm papers out of business; it will deprive many advertising agents, advertising representatives, authors, artists, and printers of their present livelihood; it will increase the subscription price of those magazines and publications that survive; it will enlarge the cost of advertising in these publications, and it will tend to denationalize the country."

COPPER PROFITS CUT BY WAR CONDITIONS

Ray Consolidated and Chino Companies Report New High Records in Production.

OUTPUT 175,547,138 POUNDS

Both Corporations Earn in Neighborhood of $10,000,000—Federal Taxes Underestimated in Each Case.

The Ray Consolidated and Chino Copper companies, two members of the so-called porphyry copper group, show in their reports for 1917 that heavy inroads were made on earnings by increased costs and Federal war taxes. Both established new high records in production of copper, the Ray output being 92,207,356 pounds, a gain of more than 4,400,000 pounds over 1916, and the Chino output being 83,339,782 pounds, an increase of about 7,600,800 pounds over the preceding twelve months.

The Ray Consolidated had a total operating revenue of $21,278,071, an increase of $1,217,288. Operating expenses, including more than $1,000,000 for taxes, aggregated $11,299,415, an expansion over the preceding year of $3,008,782. The company received $437,647 from outside sources, against $224,015 in 1916, and the profit available for dividends amounted to $9,701,170, a drop of $2,015,257. The profit was equal to $6.15 a share of stock, against $7.42 the year before.

The Chino Company reported yesterday operating revenues of $19,261,806, practically the same as the year before, and expenses amounting to $9,434,690, an upturn of $2,733,789. The taxes included were $1,200,000. The net profit reached $9,512,854, a decrease of $2,015,094, almost the same as the decline reported by Ray Consolidated. The balance for dividends equaled $10.93 a share, compared with $14.40 in 1916. Both companies noted in their statements that the amounts charged against earnings during the year, for the estimated tax outlay proved to be short, and the Ray Consolidated added $374,025, making the complete tax reservation $1,430,994. The Chino's full reserve for all taxes was $2,033,439.

Some of the leading items in the statements of the concerns are set forth in this table:

Sherwood Aldrich, President of the Ray Consolidated, said in his statement to stockholders that the increase of costs over those of 1913 amounted to 2.93 cents a pound of copper, while tax charges were ten times the payments in that year and more than three times as large as in 1916.

"The cost of production after the final tax charges," he added, "was 12,649 cents a pound, as compared with 10.577 cents per pound for 1916 after similar tax adjustments. The average price of the company's settlements for copper deliveries was 25.902 cents a pound."

C. M. MacNeill, President of the Chino Company, reported that the net cost was 11.39 cents, against 8.9 cents in 1916, and the full expense after taxes was 12.79 cents a pound. The average price for copper delivered during the year was 25.81 cents. The average content of the ore treated in 1917 was 1.64 per cent. of copper, a figure 0.19 per cent. lower than the year before.

MIAMI COPPER EARNINGS.

Sales in 1917 Reach $10,673,409, a Decrease of $2,699,031.

The Miami Copper Company received $10,673,409 last year from sales of copper, a decrease of $2,399,031 from the total in 1916. The falling off was accounted for in large part by the fact that last Summer's strike cut down output at the mines. Of the total production of 43,863,699 pounds of metal, the first six months accounted for more than 30,500,000 pounds. The net income before charging $289,967 for depreciation, was $5,231,603, against $7,984,601 the year before, and the balance for dividends totaled $4,941,636, a recession of $2,800,000.

The company paid out $6,537,227 in dividends, compared with $4,295,905 in 1916, with the result that the income account at the end of the year showed a deficit of $1,595,591, in contrast with a surplus of $3,448,879. In accordance with Government requirements, the complete surplus was raised $20,412,342 to represent mine valuation.

The report issued yesterday said that no additional tonnage of high-grade ore was developed during the year, and the ore reserves of this class remained, on Dec. 31, at 14,760,000 tons. The tonnage of ore sent through the mill was 1,640,206 tons, of 2.032 per cent. copper content.

COTTON DROPS AGAIN AMID WILD TRADING

Market Goes Down Over $5 a Bale, with Total Fluctuation of 200 Points.

LARGE VOLUME OF BUSINESS

Big Break Follows News from Washington of Introduction of Bill to Fix Prices.

Cotton, which has had three uninterrupted weeks of wild excitement, was still unable to find a breathing spell yesterday. In fact, yesterday's market on the New York Cotton Exchange was, with the possible exception of last Monday's session, the wildest of all the wild sessions which have attended the market's sensational rise and still more sensational break. Not only was the net decline for the day—it finally proved to be the day for the market to go down—more than $5 a bale, or to be exact from 107 to 115 trading points, but the total fluctuation between high and low ranged from 185 to 200 points in old crop months, and not much less in the new crop positions.

Moreover, these fluctuations were complicated by the fact that, like the British and Germans in Flanders, the buyers and sellers fought back and forth over the same ground several times in the session, with prices going up and down the list so fast the blackboard boys scarcely were able to keep up with them. The volume of trading and the number of individual transactions were both up to recent high records on the floor.

The wildest moment of the day came just after the news tickers a few feet from the ring had spelled out a Washington dispatch announcing the introduction in Congress of a bill to fix the price of raw cotton at 20 cents a pound. The first traders to catch a glimpse of the opening lines of this dispatch fairly leaped back to the ringside and began frantically offering cotton in any quantity, 10, 20, 30, 50 points under the market. As nearly as could be estimated—for things were moving too fast to permit exact measurement—prices broke approximately 100 points in five minutes. Then traders apparently began to recover their sense of proportion, and before the close the list was back anywhere from 25 to 50 points, with the early sellers actively covering.

The market opened rather quietly and strong, with Liverpool reporting a recovery and prices up from 4 to 35 points. The first hour saw this more than dissipated, however, as the quotation of prices from 200 to 245 points above Tuesday's low level seemed attractive to many sellers on both sides of the market. Liquidation started to break prices and then the old bear operators followed suit, putting out a new short line, and carrying the list down rapidly. There were very few bidders to be found, and excitement grew until prices were more than 100 points below Wednesday, and in some cases 150 points under the opening.

At this level the early short sellers started to cover and at the psychological moment a combination of optimistic war news and some pessimistic private crop forecasts, with bullish spot advices, arrived to turn the market completely around. Prices went up as fast as they had gone down and were rapidly approaching the morning level when the price-fixing story reached the floor and swept everything before it. This was fairly late in the day. The close was steady.

Southern spot markets are still holding out, and with few exceptions reported little or no business. Galveston and Little Rock alone reported fair sales, in one case 2,953 and in the other 1,155 bales. No exports were reported yesterday. Yesterday's quotations follow:

Tone of the market is steady on high qualities, but there is a free offering of average, good, and ordinary grades, and Western regular packings must be of very prime quality to reach the top quotation for firsts. Storage packings are selling to some extent at 37@37½c for Western, with a little less accepted for some from southerly sections. Fancy Northern marks are generally held at higher prices. Occasional cars may be taken as high as 38c, but the price is extreme. Nearby white eggs still quiet, and the market is sustained chiefly by a disposition to store the surplus. ## OPPOSE LONG DOCK LEASES.

Maritime Association Directors Urge Restraint During War Period.

Opposition to the making of any extended dock leases of water front property controlled by the City of New York during the period of the war was expressed in a resolution adopted yesterday by the Board of Directors of the Maritime Association of the Port of New York. The resolution requests the Mayor, the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and the Dock Commissioner not to make extended leases of waterfront properties or to lease any such property to "undisclosed interests whose affiliations are not fully known, and to ascertain the purpose for which any pier property is to be utilized, so as t oprevent any speculation."

The association also wants the city officials to ascertain what piers are not fully utilized so that they may be worked to the fullest extent. The city is also urged to provide more open wharfage for the adequate need of transient shipping. The Maritime Association has a membership of more than 1,000 representing shipping interests of the port.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Net gains from one-half to more than three points were registered in the general list yesterday at the close of a very active market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The turnover was the largest the Exchange has experienced in weeks. The demand for stocks was particularly heavy from midafternoon to the close. In the final five minutes of trading, the list sold fractionally from the day's high, due to profit taking, but the tone continued strong.

SEES GERMAN DRIVE AS ALLIED BLESSING

French Consul General, at Red Cross Luncheon, Says That It Brought Unity of Command.

LAUDS FOCH AS STRATEGIST

W. C. Breed Tells of Plans for New Campaign to Raise $100,000,000 War Relief Fund.

A Red Cross luncheon at which the coming campaign of the Red Cross to raise a second war fund of $100,000,000 was the subject of discussion was held in the Hotel McAlpin yesterday. Those present included Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., of the Red Cross War Council, William C. Breed, A. B. Leach, Gerhard M. Dahl, C. A. Coffin, Ethan Allen, Horace E. Andrews, C. C. Michener, and Consul General Gaston Liebert of France. Donald McDonald, State Chairman for the War Fund drive, presided.

The speakers were M. Liebert, Mr. Breed, Mr. Bliss, and Mr. Michener. Mr. Michener is campaign manager for the States of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. M. Liebert was the first speaker.

"I wish to make you," said the Consul General, "feel as confident as to what is taking place in Picardy as I do myself. There is every reason for confidence. And we must remember that the German drive has given us the greatest asset that has come to us since the beginning of the war, namely, a unity of command, and in General Foch we have a soldier who is recognized as the greatest strategist in Europe.

"We have a proverb that a certain evil usually brings with it a good result. The collapse of Russia, the German drive have given to us Foch. Don't let the news from Europe depress you too greatly. General Foch's idea is to wear out the enemy. You will hear soon that Foch is striking. Send as many men as quickly as possible; send material; send doctors and nurses; send everything in the power of the Red Cross to send.

"The American Red Cross has already accomplished wonders. It has given us cause to always remember the generosity of the American people. Its generosity will never be forgotten by France."

The Consul General was followed by Mr. Breed, Chairman of the Second War Fund Committee for Greater New York. He explained that the campaign in this city would be entirely apart from that to be conducted in the State, and predicted that New York would be the banner State in the war fund drive.

"Many here," he added, "are now working night and day for the Liberty Loan. Of 120 people in executive positions I know for a fact that most of them will abandon important business work to take up this Red Cross task. It is the spirit of the times which will put this war fund over.

"Here in New York City there will be a campaign in each of the boroughs. In Queens there will be virtually eleven campaigns due to that borough's various isolated settlements. There will be team campaigns, campaigns seeking the support of the employes of great business houses and industrial plants and house-to-house canvasses."

Mr. Bliss called attention to the fact that the Red Cross followed the soldier through all vicissitudes, from his home to the trench and home again.

"We can look forward to the coming campaign," he said, "with confidence. What we did not have last June during the first campaign we have now—a record of achievement behind us, and 30,000 chapters helping out the work."

Tried to Hurt Our Trade.

In an effort to destroy the American textile trade with South America, German agents dumped great quantities of the cheapest kind of fabrics, which they had previously marked "Made in the U. S. A." into Latin-American countries and sold them at public auction at ridiculously low prices. This statement was made yesterday by Chester I. Campbell, a former Mayor of Quincy, Mass., who is now Secretary of the Textile Exhibitors' Association. This organization is staging the textile exposition that will be held in the Grand Central Palace, beginning April 29. "Everywhere our fabric salesmen went in South America," he added, "they were confronted with the statement that our fabrics were of the lowest grade, that we had no mills of any size, and that we were merely jobbers for European manufacturers."

CAR BUILDERS IMPATIENT.

Plants Inactive, Await Government Bids, Says Official.

It has been reported from time to time that Director General of Railroads McAdoo contemplated giving orders for 100,000 freight cars of various types. Officials of the car building companies said yesterday they understood contracts would soon be entered into for a large number of cars to supplement and replace worn-out equipment.

While most of the leading executives, sales and production officials of the car building concerns were in Washington yesterday attending a conference held at the office of John Skelton Williams, Director of Purchases for the Railroad Administration, representatives of the companies here voiced their impatience over the delay in awarding contracts for construction.

An official of one of the largest companies had this to say about the situation:

"The railroads have not been giving out contracts for car construction for a considerable period, with the result that the plants have cleared up most of the work on hand when the railroads were taken over by the Government. I do not care to say what per cent. of plants' capacity is being utilized at this time in cleaning up old contracts, but I can say that it is negligible. Under these circumstances, the companies are eager to begin work under the Government's car construction program as soon as the requirements are set forth in tangible shape.

"Given material, there need be no doubt as to the ability of the manufacturers to go ahead rapidly. Unfortunately, there appears to have been frequent changes in the specifications to govern the construction of this or that type of car, due to fear that material for a given type might not be forthcoming. Hence modifications in plans, with a greater use of wood in construction seemed advisable before contracts were drawn up."

Car builders said they felt quite confident that adequate supplies of materials would be placed at their disposal for construction purposes, provided the Government would announce its plans, and allot contracts.

Seventeen of the principal car building companies of the country have submitted bids to Director General McAdoo, the offers, however, being of a tentative character, pending final decision by the Railroad Administration as to types.

A representative of the American Car and Foundry Company said yesterday that his concern had a capacity of 125,000 cars per annum of all types, while other manufacturers prepared to turn out rolling stock in quick order are the Pressed Steel Car Company, Haskell & Barker Car Company and Cambria Steel Company.

The delay on the part of the Railroad Administration in giving out contracts for freight cars was said to be due to representations made by the United States Shipping Board to Mr. McAdoo to the effect that the amount of steel plates required for the Government's proposed car-building program, would interfere seriously with the demands for plates for ship construction. Reports received by The Iron Age and published in its current issue, however, are to the effect that the production of steel plates is increasing by leaps and bounds, one Eastern producer shipping 5,000 tons of plates weekly for the Hog Island shipyard alone. The trade publication says it would not be surprising if some signs of overproduction were seen within the next sixty days.

LUSITANIA SURVIVORS HEARD

Cunard Employe Denies Ship Had Explosives Aboard.

The hearing before Judge Mayer, of the Federal District Court, to limit the liabilities of the Cunard Steamship Company for the deaths and damage caused by the torpedoing of the Lusitania was continued yesterday. Efforts were made by counsel for the plaintiffs to create a belief that the vessel was destroyed by an explosion from within.

Andrew M. Chalmers, a seaman, employed by the line, testified that he had overlooked the loading of the ship and that no explosives were taken aboard. Irving L. Lippincott, an employe of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, testified that the company had shipped 600 cases of cartridges, but that the order did not come from the Cunard line. Other witnesses testified along similar lines.

Charles E. Lauriet of Boston and Frederick J. Gauntlett of the Newport News Ship Building and Dry Dock Company told of the excitement on the steamer when the torpedo struck her, and of their escape from death.

The hearing will be resumed today.

Fall Rug Prices Are Made.

Prices were made yesterday by the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company on Fall lines of carpets and rugs at levels showing average advances of about 20 per cent. over the quotations in the price list issued on Jan. 1. The production of these goods for the new season, so far as this company is concerned, will be only about 20 per cent. of the normal amount, and it was said yesterday that the season will be entered with the smallest stocks they have ever had on hand. Considerably higher prices than those obtained at the opening of the Spring season last November are being asked for Fall on the products of Shuttleworth Brothers & Co., which are sold through the wholesale department of W. & J. Sloane. Some Fall business has been taken "at value" on the lines of McCleary, Wallin & Crouse, and C. H. Masland & Sons, which are also sold through the Sloane wholesale department.

The Effect Will Be Varied.

The passing of the proposed bill to melt up 350,000,000 silver dollars into bullion would have a rather varied effect in the silverware trade here as to prices on manufactured silver. It was said yesterday, for instance, that while little, if any, change of prices will be made necessary to concerns which saw "which way the wind was veering" and who marked their wares accordingly, other houses which have been selling their goods at prices lower than those warranted by the actual cost of silver would have to make some pretty sharp advances in order to keep abreast of the one-dollar-an-ounce basis of silver. Yesterday actual buyers of silver were bidding 99 cents to $1 an ounce for it. This was quite a little above the day's "official" price for the metal, and was due to the premium it commanded.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The speakers at the annual Spring meeting and dinner of the New York Credit Men's Association, which will be held at the Hotel Astor on April 25, at 6 P. M., will be Gaston Liebert, French Consul General in this city; I. J. Lansing, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Ridgewood, N. J., and G. M. Dahl, Vice President of the Chase National Bank.

The 1918 convention of the National Association of Credit Men will be held in Chicago on June 18 to 21. The association headquarters in that city will be the Hotel La Salle, where all sessions of the convention will be held. Social features will be missing this year.

Ribbon Trade Active.

Local sellers of ribbons report that buying for the last few weeks has been very good, considering the time of year. Compared with the same period in 1917 the figures for the present season are very encouraging. Milliners and dressmakers are said to be ordering in fairly large quantities, and a very wide assortment of lines is taken in this business. It seems also that there are a great many retailers in town just now seeking additional supplies for the late Spring and Summer trade. High lustre satins, both wide and narrow, are very popular in this buying.

Foulards in Millinery.

One of the outstanding features in the style developments in millinery for late Spring and Summer is said to be the extensive use of foulards for trimmings. They are being used a great deal on tailored hats and straw sailors for sports wear. Polka dots, squares, and other more or less conventional foulard designs are the most popular. Backgrounds of navy blue, black, and various tan shades are usually employed. Hats treated in this manner are said to have made a very good impression on buyers for the retail trade, and where they have been offered to the public they seem to have been very readily taken.

Mourning Veils Are Sought.

There has developed a very keen demand for mourning veils, according to reports from a number of manufacturers in this city. It is said that those made with a heavy mesh and with borders of deep crêpe are the most sought. Square veils seem to be preferred, though other shapes are still selling in some sections. There is also reported to be a very good market for veils in various colors. They are being worn on hats a great deal this year, it was pointed out, and in these as well as in the mourning veils the square article is in vogue.

Buyers Looking for Hosiery.

It is said that there have been a great many buyers in town recently looking for supplies in hosiery, but as yet most of them are reported to have been unable to obtain their requirements. Stocks in the hands of jobbers are said to be very low, and with the prospects of replenishment not good they are not at all anxious to sell what little they may have. Silk hosiery for women is particularly in demand, with white, black and a few light colors the most sought. Cotton lines are also wanted, but seem to be no less scarce than are silk lines.

Fine Waists in Demand.

An excellent demand is told of locally for waists, in which the more expensive ones share to a large extent. In the higher-priced merchandise Georgette crêpe is the fabric most sought, with crêpe de Chine coming second. Predictions are that both will remain in vogue for some time to come. The most popular waist colors at the moment, given in the order of call, are white, flesh, gray, navy, and black. On the finer waists considerable hand embroidery is seen, either in colors that match the garments or that contrast harmoniously with them.

Gray Goods Trading Lags.

The further break in cotton yesterday and the appearance of some more goods from second hands did not do a great deal toward restoring the confidence of buyers in the local gray goods market yesterday. The result was that important transactions were few and far between. In the sheetings some nearby business was reported on four-yard 56-60s at 28¼ cents, while a little first-hand business in 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths was done for May delivery at 19 cents. Some further selling of the latter goods from second hands at 18½ cents was told of, with other constructions moved in unimportant quantities at a quarter to a half cent below the general market, according to delivery. Nominal first-hand printcloth prices at the close were:

Light Gray Coming In Strong.

Wholesalers of millinery say that in the last week there have been many demands for light gray Georgette hats combined with pink or old blue. For sports wear hats of white milan with black satin crowns are being shown in banded effects. The shapes include large sailors—some of which have slightly rolled brims—large and small mushrooms, large effects with high, upturned backs, and medium-sized models with roll sides. Some of the leading retail shops are now showing large chiffon dress hats, in sailors and "mushrooms," with soft piquot edgings extending over the brims. The entire crowns of these hats are made of small field or large flat velvet flowers in lavender, orchid, and Copenhagen blue.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Wall Street Office Building Is Bought by Tenant—$300,000 West Side Trade.

Both business and residential properties figured prominently yesterday in one of the most active markets in months. Selling was well distributed, the demand coming from investors and operators.

The Czarnikow-Rionda Company, sugar importers, for a number of years at 112 Wall Street, have purchased this property from the Lyman estate through Horace S. Ely & Co. It is a seven-story office building, covering a lot 22 by 72, two doors from Front Street, in a section where there has been an active buying movement under way for several months.

On Wall, Front, and South Streets, in the immediate vicinity, a number of business men who have been occupying buildings under lease have been buying the fee to assure their occupancy.

West Side Holdings in Trade.

HIGHER GAS BLOCKED BY SERVICE BOARD

Dismisses Application for Increased Rates Made by Bronx Company.

BELIEVES IT LACKS POWER

Question of New Price to Meet the Greater Cost of Production May Go to Court of Appeals.

Because of the belief that it lacks power to authorize an increase in the rates of a public service corporation above the maximum fixed by law, the Public Service Commission yesterday dismissed the application of the Bronx Gas and Electric Company for permission to raise its charge for gas from $1 to $1.50 per thousand cubic feet. Should the company appeal, efforts will be made to have the Court of Appeals pass upon the matter before the Summer adjournment. The matter especially affects the gas companies in this city, because the maximum fixed by statute for gas, except in a few isolated instances, is 80 cents, a rate which every gas company has declared to be far below the actual cost of manufacture.

The commission believes the companies should be permitted to charge a rate high enough to insure efficient service, and its opinion, prepared by Commissioner Whitney, quotes from a decision of the Appellate Division which said that "reasonable prosperity is necessary to reasonable service." In its application the Bronx company stated that the manufacture of gas now costs $1.14 a thousand cubic feet and that within a short time the cost will be $1.20. Similar figures have been submitted to the commission by some of the other companies.

"If the commission is required and expected by the Legislature," Mr. Whitney's opinion says, "to regulate all phases of the operation of a gas corporation such as this petitioner, dictate its service, compel its conformance to standards of quality, purity, and pressure of gas; prescribe its accounts, supervise its depreciation reserve, require the upkeep of property, and otherwise control the factors which determine its aggregate expenditures and influence largely its operations, is it to be expected that the Legislature has left the commission powerless to secure to the company the reasonable revenues requisite for the fulfillment of the statutory purposes and the company's compliance with the regulatory orders? The presumptions would seem to be strongly against an intent to create any such one-sided plan of public regulation, a plan which commands the commission to require the companies to do various things to serve the public, yet withholds from the commission power to obtain for the companies the revenue necessary for the doing of those things."

The commission refers to the enactment of the eighty-cent gas law in 1906, when normal conditions prevailed throughout the country and materials and the service of men could be obtained at a much lower cost than is now possible. It believes that the eighty-cent law, created after a long and fierce contest before the Legislature, and another similar contest in the courts, was intended only to run as an experiment for an adequate number of years, and it says that this contention was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. Having enacted the law with much difficulty, the opinion says, it was considered as a measure of public policy, and that it was thought unwise therefore to place in the hands of the commission the power to overturn it.

Attention is called to the recent opinion of Charles E. Hughes, who was Governor when the Public Service Commissions law was enacted, to the effect that the commission lacked power to increase a rate over the maximum fixed by the law. The charge of $1 made by the Bronx company was fixed by a special act, and the commission has reported that the company has conformed to the regulations of the commission and that on the whole its service has been "efficient and progressive."

The opinion refers to recent decisions of the commission and of the courts dealing with the jurisdiction of the commission in the matter of rates of all utility companies. Section 66 of the Public Service Commissions law, which relates to street railroads, provides that the commission may fix a rate, but the Court of Appeals recently decided that it did not have this power when a franchise or an agreement called for a fixed rate, unless the local authorities first modified the arrangement. If the courts find that the commission has the same power to increase rates over the legal maximum as to lower them, it is likely that all of the gas and electric companies in this city will file applications for relief.

HYLAN WANTS BILL VETOED.

Says Measure for Bronx Employes' Salaries Is Unnecessary.

Mayor Hylan sent another telegram to Governor Whitman yesterday urging him to veto the legislative bill regarding the payment of salaries to employes in the newly established office of Commissioner of Records of the Bronx. Under the terms of the bill, the Board of Estimate has no jurisdiction over the payment of the salaries. The Mayor said in part:

"The people look to both you and to me to protect them from such legislation. No such unnecessary and uncalled for additional financial burden should be placed upon the people of the City of New York at a time when the taxes are so high, the demands incident to the war so great, and the probability of a direct tax so certain. I sincerely trust that after you have investigated the bad features of this bill you will veto the measure."

TAKES OVER TWO HOSPITALS

City Loans Institutions to Government for Treatment of Soldiers.

The United States Government completed arrangements yesterday to take over two city hospitals for the period of the war for the joint use of wounded soldiers and city patients. They are the Sea View Hospital on Staten Island and the Otisville Sanitarium at Otisville, N. Y. After representatives of the Federal Government had conferred with Mayor Hylan it was announced that the Government would make extensive improvements in both institutions. Additional wards will be built. When the Government no longer requires these institutions the city will take over all the improvements without cost. Although the details of the plan have not been worked out, it is understood that the Government will pay the city a fixed sum for every soldier treated.

WILL PRAY FOR ANIMALS.

Bishop Brewster Writes a Petition for Use of Churches.

A special prayer for the dumb animals suffering in the war is to be made on Sunday in the Episcopal churches. It is the first time a plea of this kind has been made. At the instigation of Mrs. James Speyer, President of the New York Women's League for Animals, a short petition, for use in the litany, has been written by the Right Rev. Dr. Chauncey B. Brewster, Bishop of Connecticut. It reads:

We beseech Thee to hear us, Good Lord, That it may please Thee to show Thy compassion upon horses and other dumb animals suffering in this war. We beseech Thee to hear us, Good Lord.

This Sunday observance will mark the close of the "Be Kind to Animals Week." The American Red Star Relief Association has forwarded to General Pershing two motor ambulances.

Mrs. Speyer yesterday made public the annual report of the Women's League, including an account of the work done at the free hospital and dispensary, 350 Lafayette Street. A feature of the work in the extreme cold of the Winter was the distribution of warm garments to needy drivers.

CANVASS ALIEN PROPERTY.

Westchester Committee Will Report to Palmer.

With a view to aiding the United States Government in seizing property which has been inherited by enemy aliens now in Europe or interned from estates left by Westchester County residents, Surrogate William A. Sawyer of Westchester County appointed a special committee of lawyers yesterday to investigate and report any estates which the Government can take over. It was reported that at least $500,000 worth of property can be seized by A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian.

It will be necessary to search many records to find out what estates can be taken over by the Government, and the names of the heirs will also have to be sent to Washington before Mr. Palmer can take possession of the property.
